At the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Whitney of Lake Zurich, on Thursday, the 17th inst., at high noon, occurred the marriage of their daughter, Mary Etta, to Mr. Orman Rothenbach. The residence was beautifully decorated with pink and white cut flowers, thus making it especially interesting to the many guests present. Rev. Ott of Chicago performed the ceremony, assisted by Rev. Hageman of Barrington. Miss Lizzie Catlow acted as bridesmaid and the brother of the groom as groomsmen. After the close of the marriage ceremony, while the orchestra played a beautiful march, the company marched to the dining room, where the tables were laden with the most palatable viands. After the dinner hour the guests visited and listened to music by a Chicago orchestra until a late hour in the afternoon. About 125 guests responded to the hearty invitations sent out by Mr. and Mrs. Whitney. All expressed themselves as having spent a happy and enjoyable time. We all join in our best wishes that peace, happiness and prosperity may attend Mr. and Mrs. Rothenbach on their newly begun voyage of life.

W. R. C. Visit Elgin.

Two loads of jolly women consisting of the representative members of the W. R. C. of this village, according to previous arrangement, visited the W. R. C. of Elgin on Tuesday last. Their teams were left at Dundee where they took the electric cars for Elgin, reaching the Bluff city about 2 p. m., after a most delightful ride down the valley of the historic Fox. They were escorted to the G. A. R. hall by a member of the Elgin Corps where the ladies of Elgin gave them a right royal welcome. After the adjournment of the Corps meeting, refreshments were served, both suitable to the occasion and the weather, which was very much enjoyed by all.

The consensus of opinion of the visiting party from this village corroborates the oft repeated statement that the W. R. C. of Elgin never does anything by halves.

After returning home at about 7:30 p. m. a good-hearted and generous member of the party took the ladies to Butzow's ice cream parlors and treated them to something both cooling and exhilarating, and the merry party bade each other good-bye until the next excursion which is now being planned for the near future.

OBITUARY.

RICHARD BOOTHMAN.

Richard Boothman was born at West Riden, Yorkshire, England on Nov. 3, 1838 and died at his home in Barrington township June 14, 1897, having lived 59 years 7 mos. and 11 days.

He was a man of a strong and vigorous constitution, but about four months previous to his death he met with a serious accident which at last was the cause of his death.

Mr. Boothman was married in the month of October to, 1867, to Charity Matilda Bishop and from this marriage one child, an only daughter, was born. Besides his wife and daughter, Mr. Boothman leaves a mother, Mrs. Dnnn, of Algonquin, and two sisters, Mrs. Peterson of Austin and Mrs. Mary Wilmer of Barrington all of whom feel the loss of him who has been so near and dear for these many years. Besides his immediate relatives, Mr. Boothman had a great many old friends and acquaintances and the entire community feels the loss of a most excellent neighbor.

Mr. Boothman was an honest, temperate, kind and hard working man and held the highest esteem of all who knew him. In his sickness he was a great sufferer, but God has promised for his children a home on high where trouble and sickness and pain can never come, and where rest and health are eternal.

Mr. Boothman entered the army joining the 113th regiment of Illinois and was in active service for about three years, in which he sacrificed and suffered for liberty and truth and therefore had the honor of dying as an old soldier.

He now rests with his comrades and is one more to join that great army across the river of death. Soon the old soldiers will be gone—a few more years and all will be over, but a nation loves to show its gratitude by honoring them while they live.

His sorrow is past—his pain is gone and he has left a world of toil for eternal rest.

The funeral services were conducted by Rev. T. E. Ream of Barrington at the Barrington Center church where Mr. Boothman was buried.

THE MISADVENTURES OF JOHN NICHOLSON

BY ROBERT LOUIS STEVENSON.

INTERNATIONAL PRESS ASSOCIATION.

Any strong degree of passion lends, even to the dullest, the forces of imagination. And now as he dwelt on what was probably awaiting him at the end of his distressful drive—John, who saw things little, remembered them less, and could not have described them at all, beheld in his mind's eye the garden of the Lodge, detailed as in a map; he went to and fro in it, feeding his terrors; he saw the hollies, the snowy borders, the paths where he had sought Alan, the high, conventual walls, the what door—what! was the door shut? Ay, truly, he had shut it—shut in his money, his escape, his future life—shut it with these hands, and none could now open it! He heard the snap of the spring-lock like something bursting in his brain, and sat as stunned.

And then he woke again, terror jarring through his vitals. This was no time to be idle; he must be up and doing, he must think. Once at the end of this ridiculous cruise; once at the Lodge door, there should be nothing for it but to turn the cab and trundle back again. Why, then, go so far? why add another feature of suspicion to a case already so suggestive? Why not turn at once? It was easy to say, turn, but whither? He had nowhere now to go to; he could never—he saw it in letters of blood—he could never pay that cab; he was saddled with that cab forever. Oh, that cab! his soul yearned and burned, and his bowels sounded to be rid of it. He forgot all other cares. He must first quit himself of this ill-smelling vehicle and of the human beast that guided it—first do that; do that, at least; do that at once.

And just then the cab suddenly stopped, and there was his persecutor rapping on the front glass. John let it down, and beheld the port-wine countenance inflamed with intellectual triumph.

"I ken wha ye are!" cried the husky voice. "I mind ye now. Ye're a Nucholson. I drove ye to Hermiston to a Christmas party, and ye came back on the box, and I let ye drive."

It is a fact, John knew the man; they had been even friends. His enemy, he now remembered, was a fellow of great good nature—endless good nature—with a boy; why not with a man? Why not appeal to his better side? He grasped at the new hope.

"Great Scott! and so you did," he cried, as if in a transport of delight, his voice sounding false in his own ears. "Well, if that's so, I've something to say to you. I'll just get out I guess. Where are we, anyway?"

The driver had fluttered his ticket in the eyes of the branch-toll keeper, and they were now brought to on the highest and most solitary part of the by-road. On the left, a row of fieldside trees beshaded it; on the right it was bordered by naked fallows, undulating down hill to the Queensferry road; in front, Corstorphine Hill raised its snow-bedabbed, darkling woods against the sky. John looked all about him, drinking the clear air like wine; then his eyes returned to the cabman's face as he sat, not ungleefully, awaiting John's communication, with the air of one looking to be tipped.

The features of that face were hard to read, drink had so swollen them, drink had so painted them, in tints that varied from brick red to mulberry. The small gray eyes blinked, the lips moved, with greed; greed was the ruling passion; and though there was some good nature, some genuine kindness, a true human touch, in the old taper, his greed was now so set afire by hope, that all other traits of character lay dormant. He sat there a monument of gluttonous desire.

John's heart slowly fell. He had opened his lips, but he stood there and uttered nought. He sounded the well of his courage, and it was dry. He groped in his treasury of words, and it was vacant. A devil of dumbness had him by the throat; the devil of terror gabbled in his ears; and suddenly, without a word uttered, with no conscious purpose formed in his will, John whipped about, tumbled over the roadside wall, and began running for his life across the fallows.

He had not gone far, he was not past the midst of the first field, when his whole brain thundered within him, "Fool! You have your watch!" The shock stopped him, and he faced once more toward the cab. The driver was leaning over the wall, brandishing his whip, his face empurpled, roaring like a bull. And John saw (or thought) that he had lost the chance. No watch would pacify the man's resentment now; he would cry for vengeance also. John would be had under the eye of the police; his tale would be unfolded, his secret plumbed, his destiny would close on him at last, and forever.

He uttered a deep sigh; and just as the cabman, taking heart of grace, was beginning at last to scale the wall, his defaulting customer fell again to running, and disappeared into the further fields.

CHAPTER X.

HERE he ran at first, John never very clearly knew; nor yet how long a time elapsed ere he found himself in the by-road near the lodge of Ravelston, propped against the wall, his lungs heaving like bellows, his legs leaden-heavy, his mind possessed by one sole desire—to lie down and be unseen. He remembered the thick coverts round the quarry-hole pond, an untroudden corner of the world where he might surely find concealment till the night should fall. Thither he passed down the lane; and when he came there, behold! he had forgotten the frost, and the pond was alive with young people skating, and the pond-side coverts were thick with lookers-on. He looked on awhile himself. There was one tall, graceful maiden, skating hand in hand with a youth, on whom she bestowed her bright eyes perhaps too patently; and it was strange that with anger John beheld her. He could have broken forth in curses; he could have stood there, like a mortified tramp, and shaken his fist and vented his gall upon her by the hour—or so he thought; and the next moment his heart bled for the girl. "Poor creature, it's little she knows!" he sighed. "Let her enjoy herself while she can!" But was it possible, when Flora used to smile at him on the Braid ponds, she could have looked so fulsome to a sick-hearted bystander?

The thought of one quarry, in his frozen wits, suggested another; and he plodded off toward Craig Leith. A wind had sprung up out of the north-west; it was cruel keen, it dried him like fire, and racked his finger-joints. It brought clouds, too; pale, swift, hurrying clouds, that blotted heaven and shed gloom upon the earth. He scrambled up among the hazed rubbish heaps that surrounded the cauldron of the quarry, and lay flat upon the stones. The wind searched close along the earth, the stones were cutting and icy, the bare hazels wailed about him; and soon the air of the afternoon began to be vocal with those strange and dismal harpings that herald snow. Pain and misery turned in John's limbs to a harrowing impatience and blind desire of change; now he would roll in his harsh lair, and when the flints abraded him, was almost pleased; now he would crawl to the edge of the huge pit and look dizzily down. He saw the spiral of the descending roadway, the steep crags, the clinging bushes, the peppering of snow-wreaths, and far down in the bottom, the diminished crane. Here, no doubt, was a way to end it. But it somehow did not take his fancy.

And suddenly he was aware that he was hungry; ay, even through the tortures of the cold, even through the frosts of despair, a gross, desperate longing after food, no matter what, no matter how, began to awake and spur him. Suppose he pawned his watch? But no, on Christmas day—this was Christmas day—the pawnshop would be closed. Suppose he went to the public house close by at Blackhall, and offered the watch, which was worth ten pounds, in payment for a meal of bread and cheese? The incongruity was remarkable; the good folks would either put him to the door, or only let him in to send for the police. He turned his pockets out one after another; some San Francisco tram-car checks, one cigar, no lights, the pass-key to his father's house, a pocket-handkerchief, with just a touch of scent; no, money could be raised on none of these. There was nothing for it but to starve; and after all, what mattered it? That also was a door of exit.

He crept close among the bushes, the wind playing round him like a lash; his clothes seemed thin as paper, his joints burned, his skin curdled on his bones. He had a vision of a high-lying cattle-drive in California, and the bed of a dried stream with one muddy pool, by which the vaqueros had encamped; splendid sun over all, the big bonfire blazing, the strips of cow browning and smoking on a skewer of wood; how warm it was, how savory the steam of scorching meat! And then again he remembered his manifold calamities, and burrowed and wallowed in the sense of his disgrace and shame. And next he was entering Frank's restaurant in Montgomery street, San Francisco; he had ordered a pan-stew and venison chops, of which he was immoderately fond, and as he sat waiting, Munroe, the good attendant, brought him a whisky punch; he saw the strawberries float on the delectable cup, he heard the ice chink about the straws. And then he awoke again to his detested fate, and found himself sitting, humped together, in a windy combe of quarry refuse—darkness thick about him, thin flakes of snow flying here and there like rags of paper, and the strong shuddering of his body clashing his teeth like a hiccough.

We have seen John in nothing but the stormiest conditions; we have seen him reckless, desperate, tried beyond his moderate powers; of his daily self, cheerful, regular, not unthrifty, we have seen nothing; and it may thus be a surprise to the reader, to learn that he was studiously careful of his health. This favorite preoccupation now awoke. If he were to sit there and die of cold, there would be mighty little gained; better the police cell and the chances of a jury trial, than the miserable certainty of death at a dike-side before the next winter's dawn, or death a little later in the gas-lighted wards of an infirmary.

He rose on aching legs, and stumbled here and there among the rubbish heaps, still circumvented by the yawning crater of the quarry; or perhaps he only thought so, for the darkness was already dense, the snow was growing thicker, and he moved like a blind man and with a blind man's terror. At last he climbed a fence, thinking to drop into the road, and found himself staggering among the iron furrows of a plowland, endless, it seemed, as a whole county. And next he was in the wood, beating among young trees; and then he was aware of a house with many lighted windows, Christmas carriages waiting at the door, and Christmas drivers (for Christmas has a double edge) becoming swiftly hooded with snow. From this glimpse of human cheerfulness, he fled like Cain; wandered in the night, unplotted, careless of whither he went; fell, and lay, and then rose again, and wandered further; and at last, like a transformation scene, behold him in the lighted jaws of the city, staring at a lamp which had already donned the tilted night-cap of the snow. It came thickly now, a "Feeding Storm;" and while he yet stood blinking at the lamp, his feet were buried. He remembered something like it in the past, a street-lamp crowned and caked upon the windward side with snow, the wind uttering its mournful hoot, himself looking on, even as now; but the cold had struck too sharply on his wits, and memory failed him as to the date and sequel of the reminiscence.

His next conscious moment was on the Dean Bridge; but whether he was John Nicholson of a bank in a California street, or some former John, a clerk in his father's office, he had now clean forgotten. Another blank, and he was thrusting his pass-key into the door-lock of his father's house.

Hours must have passed. Whether crouched on the cold stones or wandering in the fields among the snow, was more than he could tell; but hours had passed. The finger of the hall clock was close on twelve; a narrow peep of gas in the hall-lamp shed shadows; and the door of the back room—his father's room—was open and emitted a warm light. At so late an hour, all this was strange; the lights should have been out, the doors locked, the good folk safe in bed. He marveled at the irregularity, leaning on the hall-table; and marveled to himself there; and thawed and grew once more hungry, in the warmer air of the house.

The clock uttered its premonitory catch; in five minutes Christmas day would be among the days of the past—Christmas!—what a Christmas! Well, there was no use waiting; he had come into that house, he scarce knew how; if they were to thrust him forth again, it had best be done and at once; and he moved to the door of the back room and entered.

Oh, well, then he was insane, as he had long believed.

How Snakes Move.

The vertebrae of a snake are fitted together by a kind of ball and socket articulation, which, however, is capable of only lateral or side-to-side motions. A snake moves by propelling himself on the points of his scales, which, to him, answers the purposes of ribs. A snake does not climb a tree or a bush by coiling around it, as most people who have not investigated the matter believe, but by balancing himself very evenly and holding on with the points and edges of his scales. A snake on a pane of glass or other polished surface where the scales cannot take hold is almost perfectly helpless.

"Gracious!" said the summer boarder. "What is that tower with the great wheel on top of it?" "That there is a windmill," the farmer explained. "Really? About how much wind will it turn out in a day?"

The exercises occurred in Military Hall, and were attended by more than 4,000 friends of the institution. At the close of the programme the audience adjourned to the new building to inspect it.

Because he had served four years in Joliet penitentiary, Donald McGregor was refused employment, although he had qualifications for a good position. Last night he resolved to commit suicide, but he feared the hereafter and gave up the idea of death. Hungry and in despair he broke into Santa Fe and Elgin, Joliet & Eastern freight cars and sent word to the police by a boy. He was arrested and today declared that unless he were sent to the penitentiary he would hang himself, as he could not starve, as he had been doing. Letters in his possession show that McGregor is connected with one of the first families in Scotland.

Joliet.—The citizens of Joliet are divided into two factions over the action of the council in ordering that all vagrants found about Joliet be shackled with ball and chain and put to work cleaning the public streets. The chiefs of police obeyed the order, and Thursday a "chain gang" was the attraction all day on Jefferson street. The citizens gathered in groups and discussed the spectacle. Finally the entire business district took sides on the question, one side favoring the action of the authorities in trying to rid the town of tramps, and the other faction denouncing the method as inhuman and revolting. A remonstrance signed by 300 names went to the council, but it was tabled after a fierce discussion, and now the citizens are more indignant than ever.

SUMMER CARE OF BLANKETS.

Blankets which have been used all winter, no matter how white, are never clean, and should be washed before putting away. Many housekeepers satisfy themselves by shaking and airing their blankets rather than risk spoiling them in washing. But this is a mistake, for if the work is properly done no shrinking will take place, and the fleecy soft appearance may be retained, as well the color, for years. The necessary thing in washing blankets is to have plenty of soft water and good pure soap. Inferior soap is really the cause of the damage done woolen goods in washing. It hardens the fibre and yellows the fabric. When ready to begin the work shake the blankets free of dust, fill a tub half full of hot water. Dissolve a third of a cake of Ivory Soap in it. Put one blanket in at a time. Dip up and down and wash gently with the hands. Never rub soap on blankets, or wash them on the washboard. After the blankets are clean, rinse in warm water until free of suds. Add a little bluing to the last water. Shake and squeeze; then hang on the line until dry. Take down, fold, lay under a weight for a day or two, and pack securely in a box and cover. Blankets thus washed will retain their original freshness as well as wear three times as long as if put away soiled year after year.

Sleeplessness from Rheumatism.

A MAN RECOVERS FROM THE MALADY WHICH HAD MADE LIFE A BURDEN.

From the Democrat-Messenger, Mt. Sterling, Ill.

The prevalence of rheumatism in this part of the country has long been a source of unfavorable comment by other localities less subject to this affliction. Indeed there are few adults in the Valley of the Mississippi who at some time in their lives may not expect to realize the direful effects of rheumatism in some one of its different forms. In this immediate section the attention of The Democrat-Messenger has several times been called to particular instances where the effects of this malady have rendered life almost unendurable.

In this connection it may not be out of place for this journal to refer to a recent incident. We refer to Mr. John J. Friday, Jr., of Ripley, Ill., well-known to many of our people as a young man of character and standing. Last spring Mr. Friday was attacked by rheumatism in its severest form, he—like many others—probably inheriting a tendency to the disease. A reporter met him the other day and found him about as lively a looking young man as there is in Brown County. In reply to an inquiry as to the remedies used by him which had resulted so favorable, Mr. Friday said: "In the spring of 1896 I was attacked by rheumatism. The disease progressed until I was past getting around. For a long time I was unable to lie down in bed and was forced to sit up as many as four nights in a week without going to bed at all. I consulted the leading physicians both in Mt. Sterling and Rushville but obtained no relief. My condition was growing worse, and it seemed as if nothing could help me.

"In talking with George Riggles, a friend of mine, he said that he also had suffered from rheumatism and had been completely cured by using Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. He told me that before he began using this medicine he could scarcely bend his knee and could walk only with great difficulty. I knew that he had, shortly before that time, been afflicted as I was, and therefore concluded that if he had been benefited by their use they might help me. I also heard that Mr. James Stout, a prominent farmer near Ripley, had been cured of rheumatism by the same means. I made some inquiries of him and he confirmed what I had been told. It was about all I could do to get to Ripley, but I managed to make the short trip. I bought two boxes of the pills and used them as directed. After I had taken half a box I felt wonderfully better. I kept on and used six or seven boxes. My improvement continued until I was entirely recovered. I now consider myself cured, and have no more feeling of rheumatism than if I had never had it.

"I believe that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are entirely responsible for my recovery, as before I began their use my condition was steadily growing worse. If you care to publish what I have said about this medicine I am perfectly willing that you should do so. I believe it will benefit others who suffer from this disease. I took six boxes and consider Dr. Williams' Pink Pills the best investment I ever made."

There are probably many other instances in this part of Illinois where this painful and stubborn disease had been cured by the use of this remedy, and we will from time to time publish further accounts as they may be brought to our notice.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain, in a condensed form, all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are also a specific for troubles peculiar to females, such as suppressions, irregularities and all forms of weakness. In men they effect a radical cure in all cases arising from mental worry, overwork or excesses of whatever nature. Pink Pills are sold in boxes (never in loose bulk) at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, and may be had of all druggists, or direct by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

A Plucky Schoolma'am.

The Kansas City Journal tells how Miss Ethel Hoskinson the other day started from Corning to Seneca to take the examination for teachers. Reaching a stream which had been swollen by the floods her horses and buggy were washed away. She kept her head, however, and the horses managed to swim out on the other side, after floating quite a distance down the stream, though all the time the buggy was so far below the surface that the water came up to her armpits. Once on the bank she drove hurriedly into Seneca, borrowed some dry clothes from an acquaintance, ran over to the court house, took the examination and triumphantly bore off a first grade certificate.

Frapped Elocution—After the Bicycle Race—The Word That Puzzled the Typewriter—Enriched by a Dream—Rural Life in Arkansas.

The Bicycle Belle.

 ELINDA has bewitching eyes, And Margaret has grace; Marcela is exceeding wise, And Claire is fair of face; But Geraldine, my Geraldine, Has virtues of them all; The fairest maiden ever seen She holds my heart in thrall.

As we together, side by side, Ride up the boulevard, All eyes that see her open wide With evident regard; Her knickers are a perfect fit, Her hat's a jaunty thing, And conscious that she makes a hit, She makes her cycle sing!

She smiles from her bewitching eyes As I admire her grace, And then she looks exceeding wise, And blushes dye her face. For since the law requires a bell On bikes of every kind, This belle, you'll soon, I'm proud to tell, Upon my tandem find!

Word Puzzled the Typewriter.

According to the Washington Star, one morning recently the representative came into his office with a sniffing cold in his head and the first letter he dictated was to his wife at home—a delight, by the way, he indulged in every day, whatever may be said of congressmen in general—in which he told her that owing to the fact that he had slept the night before in a draught and the wind had blown through his pajamas he had caught a pretty severe cold. The word "pajamas" was a new one for the typewriter and he stalled at it.

"How do you spell that word, sir?" he inquired.

"P-a-j-a-m-a-s," spelled the representative slowly, and added: "Didn't you ever have to write it before?"

"No, sir."

"In that case, I'll bet you a dollar you don't know what it means."

"I don't bet, sir," he hesitated, "but I guess I know what it means."

"Well, what is it?"

"It's French for whiskers," and the representative, in the kindness of his heart, smiled sweetly and told the young man he had guessed it the very first time.

Rural Schools in Arkansas.

One cannot be surprised at the slow progress of education in certain parts of Arkansas, where a visitor to that state recently heard a rural school teacher say to his pupils:

"Come, come, young uns, can't you set up a little more erecter?"

And when a tardy pupil came in and left the door slightly ajar the teacher said, sharply:

"You go back and shew that there door shet!" after which he said apologetically to the visitor:

"I try to learn 'em manners, but it's derved uphill work."—Harper's Bazar.

Enriched by a Dream.

Henry Small, a farmer of Brighton township, Pa., dreamed twenty years ago that a deposit of lead ore was located on the farm of David Irons, on Brady's Run. He intends to develop the lead mine.—Philadelphia Press.

WHITE TOPAZ.

Beautiful Stones to Be Seen at the Diamond Palace.

Every day in the week and every hour in the day one can see crowds around the show windows of THE CHICAGO DIAMOND PALACE. The cause of it all is the now widely known White Topaz. The White Topaz, or carbonated diamonds, have come to be recognized as the nearest thing on earth to genuine diamonds, so near indeed is it that the proprietors of the DIAMOND PALACE do not hesitate to place real diamonds in their windows amidst their display of White Topaz, and allow the public to pick them out at the selling price of the Topaz.

The latter stones have all the lovely brilliancy of the diamonds, sparkling steadily and with wonderful fire. The thousands of these stones in the windows forms one of the most gorgeous displays and has proven an attraction which is one of the features of Chicago.

In order to find out the advertising medium best suited to their business, this enterprising concern offers to send a genuine White Topaz to all those who will cut out and send them their advertisement, which appears elsewhere in this paper, together with 25c in stamps.

THE DIAMOND PALACE, like all successful institutions, has many imitators, who endeavor to sell cheap rhinestones and other pastes claiming they are topaz. We caution the public to be careful, as THE DIAMOND PALACE, American Express building, Chicago, are the sole importers of these stones.

DOCTORS HAD GIVEN HER UP.

A Convincing Letter From One of Mrs. Pinkham's Admirers.

No woman can look fresh and fair who is suffering from displacement of the womb. It is ridiculous to suppose that such a difficulty can be cured by an artificial support like a pessary.

Artificial supports make matters worse, for they take away all the chance of the ligaments recovering their vigor and tone. Use strengthens; the ligaments have a work to do.

If they grow flabby and refuse to hold the womb in place, there is but one remedy, and that is to strengthen their fibres and draw the cords back into their normal condition, thus righting the position of the womb.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is designed especially for this purpose, and, taken in connection with her Sanative Wash, applied locally, will tone up the uterine system, strengthening the cords or ligaments which hold up the womb.

Any woman who suspects that she has this trouble—and she will know it by a dragging weight in the lower abdomen, irritability of the bladder and rectum, great fatigue in walking, and leucorrhoea—should promptly commence the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. If the case is stubborn, write to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., stating freely all symptoms. You will receive a prompt letter of advice free of charge. All letters are read and answered by women only. The following letter relates to an unusually severe case of displacement of the womb, which was cured by the Pinkham remedies. Surely it is convincing:

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier cured me when the doctors had given me up. I had spent hundreds of dollars searching for a cure, but found little or no relief until I began the Pinkham remedies.

I had falling and displacement of the womb so badly that for two years I could not walk across the floor. I also had profuse menstruation, kidney, liver, and stomach trouble. The doctors said my case was hopeless. I had taken only four bottles of the Vegetable Compound and one of the Blood Purifier when I felt like a new person. I am now cured, much to the surprise of my friends, for they all gave me up to die. Now many of my lady friends are using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound through my recommendation, and are regaining health. It has also cured my little son of kidney trouble. I would advise every suffering woman in the land to write to Mrs. Pinkham for aid."—MRS. EMMA PANGBORN, Alanson, Mich.

"Resign, Old Rascal, Resign!"

There is something infinitely amusing in the anger of a Frenchman of Paris. If a recent scene in the French chamber of deputies had occurred in the legislative assembly of colder blooded Englishmen or Americans, serious consequences would undoubtedly have followed; but a Frenchman can lash himself into a frothing foam of anger, rave, tear his hair, call his enemy the most objectionable names in the dictionary and go on next day as if nothing had happened. When Socialist Deputy Richard in a meeting of the French assembly called his colleagues "police spies," he used very unparliamentary language, and the president, M. Brisson, did quite right to call him to account. It does seem at this distance a little severe that Brisson should order Richard to be removed from the chamber by the guard, but allowance must be made for the French way of doing things. Brisson was amply punished, however, for his severity by the abuse immediately poured upon him by the other socialist deputies. "Down with Brisson!" they yelled. "Death to Brisson! Canaille Brisson!" Which last, being liberally translated, is equivalent to calling the president poor white trash.

The socialists had helped to make Brisson president of the chamber, believing him most friendly to their ideas, but now they repudiated him utterly, calling him, among other pet names, "miserable reactionary." The climax was reached, however, when, in a chorus that sounded like the yelping of 50 diminutive, hysterical dogs, they cried, "Resign, old rascal, resign!"

The Ruiz Case.

There are no witnesses of the murder of Dr. Ruiz, except those who murdered him, and they will not incriminate themselves. So the truth may never be known. This much is certain, however: Dr. Ricardo Ruiz, an American citizen practicing dentistry in Guana-bacoa, four miles from Havana, was arrested Feb. 4 and thrown into prison by the Spanish government on false charges. Our treaty with Spain demands that any American citizen arrested in Cuba shall be allowed within three days, or 72 hours, to communicate with his friends. Ruiz was kept more than 13 days in prison, "incommunicado," as the Spanish has it—that is, without being allowed to communicate with any one outside the prison. Then his death occurred. His Spanish jailers declare he went insane and dashed his brains out against his cell walls, but fellow prisoners testified privately that Ruiz was beaten to death by the awful torture known as the compote. His widow has his hat with a gash in it that tells a ghastly story. It is on record that Ruiz applied to the American consul to protect him, but no attention was paid to his appeal. It probably was not allowed to reach General Lee till after Ruiz was dead. The United States will demand full reparation for the outrage, and it may become a very serious matter to Spain before she is done with it. Commissioner Calhoun and General Lee had only Spanish reports on which to base their conclusions, but even these show a wrong to have been committed.

Columbkille, or Columba, is one of Ireland's three patron saints. He died 1,300 years ago the 6th of June. If there never was any St. Patrick, it is a matter of historic record that there was a St. Columbkille, and that he was the most Irish of Irishmen, born upon the old sod. Even if there was a St. Patrick, he was not a born Irishman, which is hard on him. But of Columbkille Rev. Thomas J. Shahan, professor of church history in the Catholic university of Washington, says: "Columba boasted of the purest and noblest blood in Ireland. He was a child of the princely family of O'Neills, compared with whom the Colonna or the Hohenzollerns are of yesterday." There are numerous members of the princely family of O'Neills in America. They have the comfort of knowing that no matter how much little William of Germany may pride himself on being a Hohenzollern they belong to a family far older, far purer blooded and more noble. Let the princely O'Neills take courage.

The price of meat is going to be higher, it is announced. Well, we eat more meat than is good for us anyhow. It has been shown by chemical analysis that the various kinds of nuts contain the same nutriment that meat does. There are now on the market numbers of delicate and palatable nut meat preparations which supply the place of flesh food. The flesh of animals must always be more or less infiltrated with wornout and cast off matter in the form of dead cell tissue which we eat along with the healthy muscle. This must be a constant source of possible danger, a danger not incurred in eating nut meats.

If the leading countries of Europe were not so large and if it was not so difficult a thing in these modern times to go to war, they would be fighting at home and abroad as persistently as the little half breed republics of Central America continually do. Only the United States is a great, big, powerful country, peaceful at heart and through and through.

The person of unusual force of character and brain power is always considered "queer" by the common herd.

Our Flag Is Still There.

Flag day this year is one of peculiar interest and importance. It is 100 years ago June 14 since the United States flag, practically in its present shape, was adopted. There have been minor changes since, but only those necessary to accommodate the number and distribution of the stars in the blue field to the rapidly growing sisterhood of states. The stripes remain the same as they were when the congress of the Revolution fixed the number at 13—6 white, 7 red—to represent the 13 colonies struggling for freedom. There were 13 stars then too. At the close of our civil war the number had increased to 34. Nevada, the "battle born state," was admitted to the Union in 1864 during the stormy days of the civil war.

The first flag adopted by the embryo United States had no stars in the blue field. In 1776 the 13 stripes, red and white, were chosen as the national emblem, but instead of the starry field the crosses of St. George and St. Andrew, united as in the British flag, occupied the upper corner next the staff, but the next year the crosses were changed for stars. These at first circled around the blue field in form of a wreath.

It is true that the love of the American flag is only a sentiment, but the love of everything else is mere sentiment, nothing more. And there is no surer way to make this Union perpetual than to teach school children to love that flag as they love the sunshine and sky and all things beautiful. It is a wise law which provides that the American flag shall float over all the people's schoolhouses during school hours every day, likewise over all buildings in which business of the national government is transacted. It is the most beautiful flag in the world, ours is, and Americans cannot see it too often. American children that are taught to love it and cherish as a sacred thing will not be apt to do anything to disgrace it. Every family in the Union ought to own a United States flag and fling it to the breeze on national holidays.

It is a wise law, too, that prohibits the American flag from being used for advertising purposes. Such use degrades it in the popular mind. Let not profane hands be laid upon that radiant emblem of liberty!

We have now 44 stars in our flag. When Alaska, New Mexico, Arizona, Oklahoma and Indian Territory come in, we shall have 49. There the number will cease to grow, unless Texas wants to be divided, or unless, indeed, Cuba, Hawaii and Canada come to us.

The trouble with the Cheyenne Indians in Montana appears to be that they cannot understand why four Indians should be held responsible for the murder of one white man. The Cheyenne chief, White Bull, with three companions, Sam Crow, Yellow Hair and Badger, the last named being also known as Stanley, were the persons concerned in the murder of the sheep herder Hoover. Badger was surrendered to the Indian agent at the Cheyenne reservation, Captain Stouch, the other three being allowed to go free. But the civil authorities took the matter in hand and issued warrants for the arrest of White Bull and the two other Indians. Immediately there was a conflict of the civil and military authorities. The Indians say Stouch told them that the surrender of Badger was sufficient, since Badger was the one who fired the first shot at the herder. Naturally and justly the white people of the country demand that all of the suspected Indians be arrested and tried for murder.

The early summer outlook at the seaside and summer resorts has been glum enough to almost force the belief that the sun has forgotten his business.

WHY PUT UP WITH

Chicken Lice,

the pest that cause the loss of more poultry than all other diseases combined, when one application of

Carbolineum Avenarius

WILL WIPE THEM OUT OF EXISTENCE?

We hold the agency for this celebrated Wood Preserver for this community, and, although it has been introduced in this vicinity but a short time, its wonderful qualities in the destruction of chicken lice is fast becoming widely known and wherever used the fruits of its effectiveness is being pointed out by the fact that in every case where used its fine qualities are spoken of in the highest of terms and more is asked for. Unlike lime, which merely forms a scale on the surface of the walls, Carbolineum not only destroys the chicken lice but is very penetrative and enters into the pores of the walls in which the eggs of the chicken lice are deposited, destroying them before they are hatched. In buying this preparation, please remember to bring some kind of a vessel to put it in, as we buy it in barrels only.

LOW PRICES ON LEAD AND OIL.

We have a large stock of strictly pure Linseed Oil and the celebrated brand of Shipman's Strictly Pure White Lead, and our prices on them have been placed at so low a figure that we know that you can not get them beat anywhere, and in many places you will pay much more for the same quality of material. We want your trade, and are offering inducements in the way of low prices to get it.

LARGE STOCK of MIXED PAINTS, Etc.

We also carry a large stock of Heath & Milligan's Mixed Paints, Varnishes, Hard Oils, Turpentine, Benzine, Varnish Stains, Venetian Red, Yellow Ochre, Kalsomine Brushes, Colors, Sand Paper, in fact there is hardly anything in the paint line but what we have in stock to meet the wants of the public, and we sell them in large or small quantities to suit the trade.

FEUD'S FATAL ENDING

SENSATIONAL SHOOTING AFFRAY IN ILLINOIS.

Mayor Richards Shot and Killed by Capt. Hedley, Editor of the Bunker Hill Gazette—Politics the Original Cause of the Trouble.

Bunker Hill, Ill., is in mourning for Mayor John R. Richards, and Capt. Fenwick Y. Hedley, editor of the Bunker Hill Gazette, is accused of the murder.

A political feud of many years' duration ended Saturday noon, when the two men met in the street. After a few angry words had been passed Hedley shot Richards. One bullet wounded his arm. The other passed through his liver and lodged in the spine. His wound caused his death six hours later. Hedley's friends and witnesses of the shooting assert that it was done in self defense.

Hedley at once delivered himself to the authorities and was taken to Carlinville.

ESCAPE FROM THE MINE.

Fire Destroys the Colliery of the Torry Coal Company.

The immense colliery of the Torry Coal Company, operated at the town of Geneva, Ind., was totally destroyed Sunday afternoon by fire. Fifteen men were down in the mine, but they were all saved by taking them out through a different route than the main shaft.

The plant gave employment to over 200 men and all are now thrown out of employment. The total loss is not known, as only $12,000 insurance was reported, but will probably reach $50,000.

WILLIAM D. BYNUM, WHO ABANDONS INDIANA FOR NEW YORK

William D. Bynum, who has moved from Indianapolis to locate permanently in Brooklyn, will be a big loss to the Clevelandites of that city. Such, at least, is the feeling of those who know the ex-congressman with the big voice. Mr. Bynum's memorable battle for gold at the Indiana Democratic convention has not been forgotten by the free silver men, and it is only natural that the Clevelandites regret losing him. No man in the west has been a more ardent champion of the gold standard than has Bynum. His determination to move east is largely determined by the fact that he is chairman of the national committee of the national Clevelandite party. He believes that more effective work can be done from New York than

UPHOLDS THE WORKER.

Important Decision Rendered by Illinois Appellate Court.

The Appellate Court at Mount Vernon, Ill., has rendered a decision against blacklisting by railway companies.

The case was that of the Chicago, Cleveland, Cincinnati and St. Louis railway company, appellant, against Charles Jenkins, appellee. The appellee, a conductor, had been discharged from the appellant's employ under charges of larceny and embezzlement, and when he applied for a clearance card it was refused him. In consequence of this he was refused employment by all companies to which he applied after his discharge.

The court affirms a verdict for $875 awarded to Jenkins for full pay during the interval between the time of his dismissal and of his exoneration from certain false charges.

LUTHERANS IN SESSION.

Thirty-Eighth Biennial Synod at Mansfield, Ohio.

At Thursday's session of the Lutheran general synod the Rev. Dr. M. W. Hamma, Altoona, Pa., was elected president. Reports showed a deficit of 7,176 in the treasury of the foreign mission board. The board asked for an appropriation of $70,000 for the prosecution of its work during the next two years.

At Friday's session of the general Lutheran synod General Secretary Rev. Dr. A. Stewart Hartman, Baltimore, Md., delivered the fourteenth biennial report of the board of home missions. The total contributions for all purposes were $327,668. The board asked for $45,600 for each of the two years beginning May 1, 1898. The financial report showed a deficiency of $10,000 in the treasury of the board. The amount necessary to cover the deficit was at once raised.

DAIRY AND POULTRY.

INTERESTING CHAPTERS FOR OUR RURAL READERS.

How Successful Farmers Operate This Department of the Farm—A Few Hints as to the Care of Live Stock and Poultry.

The Cow and Her Drink.

IF a dairyman wants to treat himself to a genuine surprise, let him keep his herd of milk giving cows in the stable, and give them water in such a way that the weight drunk by each cow can be ascertained, and be on hand so that each cow may have all she will desire, and when she wants it, writes John Gould in Country Gentleman. We have been through a little experience of this kind, and the quantity drunk by each cow was found out. It is an experiment one will not care to follow up more than a week, before the faucet at the big tank will be turned, and the cows drink out of the basins again. The trial was made with six cows, and it was found that the average quantity consumed daily varied with individual cows from 70 to 140 pounds. One cow drank this last quantity daily right along, and some the smaller quantity, with an average of 90 pounds each. Another thing we found was that some of the cows would drink very often, i. e., their buckets would be frequently found empty, and others drank at longer intervals; and one cow wanted about all her twenty-four hours' supply at one time, and would only drink a little towards night. As these cows were being fed 50 pounds each of ensilage a day, it is seen at once that succulent food did not play any important part in the economy of drinking water. It ted have of late years been very numerous represented at the shows. The plumage of the Blacks is glossy black throughout; the Mottled (fig. 8) are of broken black and white in wings, tail and sickles, and the balance of the plumage is evenly mixed with white and black; the White Java is, as the name implies, pure white throughout. They have a small single comb, standing upright on the head in both male and female. Their shanks and toes are free from feathers, yellow in color, with the bottom of feet yellow. The standard weight of cocks is 9½ pounds; hens, 7½ pounds; cockerels, 8 pounds; and pullets, 6½ pounds.

Dominiques.—Similarity in plumage of the American Dominique and Barred Plymouth Rock has been the price of the former's popularity. Their color is grayish-white, each feather regularly crossed with parallel bars of blue-black, producing the effect of a bluish-tinged plumage, the color being the same throughout. The illustration of Barred Plymouth Rock feathers will do equally well for the markings of the feathers of the Dominique. They have rose combs, in both male and female, and bright yellow legs. Those who are partial to their color of plumage will find the Dominique a good bird to keep. They are good layers, hardy, mature early, and dress well for the table. The standard weight of cocks is 8½ pounds; hens, 6½ pounds; cockerels, 7½ pounds; and pullets, 5½ pounds.

Horses Decreasing.

The large majority of farmers who own horses seem to be quite anxious to get rid of them, even at low prices. Where the farm is mortgaged, and the horses can be spared better than anything else on the farm, this is all right, as it is better to lose the horse than the home; but where it is not, we regard it as very unwise and foolish, says the Kentucky Stock Farm. In a country like ours, where one extreme follows another, it is not wise to float with the current or follow the herd. From 1880 to 1890 we bred entirely too many horses of all classes, and as a natural

MAKE GOLD.

The Process that the Indian Alchemists Use.

For a long time in India the apparent transmutation of tin, zinc, copper and mercury into precious metals has been practiced, says the Paris Cosmos. We have seen there with our own eyes a metal like gold issuing from the crucible of the Indian alchemist—a metal that could not be told from real gold by means of the touchstone. We may say, however, that in old India, as well as in young America, they have not yet succeeded in giving to the metal thus obtained the chemical properties of gold. On this point they are not more advanced in the one country than in the other, and the problem seems to us not to be near solution. The metal obtained can, in fact, be decomposed into its constituent elements. Nevertheless it may be interesting to present to public notice the Indian alchemists and to describe their methods. Around these personages many legends have sprung up. The people assert that they never come into a city except by divine inspiration, in order to cure illness and to enrich certain persons. There is a belief among the Hindus, very widespread, but purely fabulous, that they disappear at certain hours to rejoin the citrars, divine naturalists of the early ages of India, who, according Hindu tradition, meet with their divinity, Hari Ishari, on the summits of the Himalayas, to learn the secrets of nature.

The following is the method employed by these Indian alchemists to make their gold: We give literally, conforming to the weights and measures in India, the list of substances necessary for this delicate operation. These are, according to our documents:

Sulfur of Nelli-Kai (phylanthus lem-blica), 24 rupees' weight (7 ounces); white sedes of Abra preatorius, 9 rupees' weight (2½ ounces); one whole garlic; cinnabar, 6 rupees' weight (2 ounces); English orpiment, 6 rupees' weight; sal ammoniac, 6 rupees' weight. These are powdered separately, and then a paste is made of the whole, with three quarts of "paddy" made of the milky juice of asclepias gigantea. The whole is ground up with this milk. Then little hard balls are made of the mixture, and finally two satts are taken, of fine, hard earthenware, of such size that the material to be distilled occupies only one-third or one-fourth of the vessel. On the lower vessel another satti is soldered with potter's earth, after an opening has been made in the end of this second vase. Over this hole is fitted a bottle whose end is pierced, and it is carefully sealed to the vase. Into the lower vase are put the little balls described above, and the whole is then sealed up.

The powder, when vaporized, rises along the sides of the bottle and condenses around the hole. It is collected with a feather. Then zinc is taken; for each rupee's weight of zinc is allowed a quantity of the powder as large as two or three rice grains. The zinc and the powder are wrapped up together in a bit of paper or linen or a leaf. The whole is put into a crucible, which is then sealed with a paste composed of one part of cow-dung, one of charcoal and one of potter's earth. This is placed in a fire of wood charcoal and heated white hot, after which it is allowed to cool. Open the crucible—you are a rich man!

Easy Going Dutch Spelling.

In the good old days when the Dutch were supreme in the administration of the affairs of New Amsterdam everybody knew everybody else and it mattered little how proper names were spelled. Modern lawyers and civil service reformers would be shocked at the orthographical freedom of the clerks of the burgo-master's court of those times. Here is a sample case taken from the old Dutch records now being translated by Mr. Fernow, in which the name of a plaintiff is spelled five different ways: In a case before the court in 1655 Jan "Hackins" is a complainant against the inspector of tobacco, who has certified to Jan "Hockins" that the tobacco was good. The inspector says in his defence that he inspected the tobacco at the request of Jan "Haeckins" on June 26, and aforesaid "Hagins" kept the barrel of tobacco until the 30th without finding out that it was bad. Then Jan "Hakins" has something else to say in the case.

Chased Home by a Whirlwind.

From the Marietta Journal: John A. Baswell, while out hunting, the other day, was unexpectedly caught in a terrific whirlwind which drove him in haste to his home. He tried every possible means to avoid its fury, but it followed him, no difference in which direction he would go. He only avoided its danger by a hasty retreat to his house, and then, to his surprise it vanished.

DOINGS OF CONGRESS.

WEEK'S PROCEEDINGS IN SENATE AND HOUSE.

Debate on the Tariff Bill Occupies the Time of the Upper Branch of Congress—Good Progress Being Made on the Measure.

Thursday, June 10.

The long-deferred debate in the sugar schedule of the tariff bill came on abruptly. Senators Jones (Dem., Ark.), Vest (Dem., Mo.), and Caffery (Dem., La.), criticised the proposed tax, claiming that only the millionaires composing the sugar trust would be benefited. No final action was taken on any feature of the schedule further than the withdrawal of the original senate amendments. This leaves the house provisions of the bill, with an amendment increasing the house differential from 875-1,000 to 95-100 cent a pound. The amendment giving an export duty on agricultural products was defeated, 10 to 59.

Friday, June 11.

The house held a brief session and adjourned until Monday. The first test vote on the sugar schedule was taken in the senate, resulting in the adoption of the Republican caucus amendment, changing the house rate of 1.95 cents per pound by the close vote of yeas 32, nays 30. It was the closest vote thus far taken on an issue of importance, and was ac-

REFORMED EPISCOPAL CHURCH

Action Taken by Bishop Fallows of Chicago Is Indorsed.

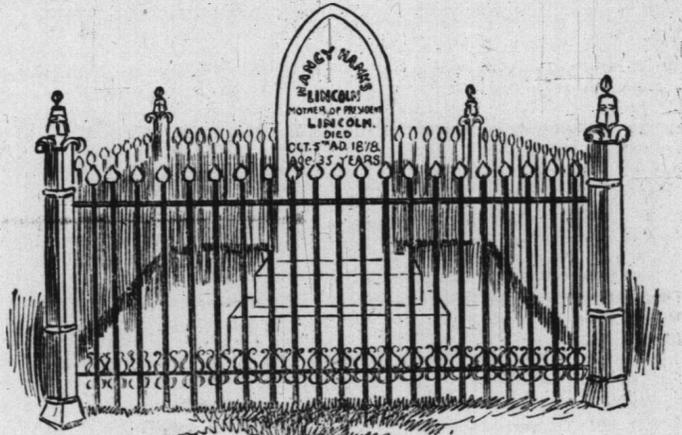

At the second day's session of the general council of the Reformed Episcopal Church the action of Bishop Samuel Fallows of Chicago in ordaining Ballington Booth as a minister in Chicago was indorsed with one dissenting vote. A resolution favoring the prohibition of liquor traffic was adopted. Treasurer John Heins of Philadelphia was re-elected.

At Friday's session of the general council of the Reformed Episcopal church the motion to make the black gown the vestment to be used on all occasions except by those who are now using the surplice was voted on "by orders," and the result was a victory for the black gown by 26 to 15, among the clergy and 31 to 12 among the laymen. The joint vote was 57 to 27.

In consequence of this action Bishop Cheney of Chicago and a number of prominent clergymen resigned their offices in the council. Miss Harriet S. Benson also withdrew the income from her contribution to the special church extension trust and the special synod trust. These trusts provide an income to the church of $15,000 a year. A meeting of the general committee of the church was held to discuss the situation.

The only action taken Saturday at the meeting of the general council of the Reformed Episcopal Church bearing upon the vestment question was to refer to the respective committees, with power to fill vacancies by the

NEGLECTED GRAVE OF THE GREAT EMANCIPATOR'S MOTHER.

President McKinley has interested himself in the grave of Nancy Hanks Lincoln, mother of the martyred president. Her grave, in southern Indiana, has been neglected for many years, and while a nation has been paying homage to the great emancipator, the grave of his mother has been forgotten. John Burt, a citizen of Spencer county, wrote to the president, calling his attention to the neglected condition of Mrs. Lincoln's tomb, and the president at once communicated with Gov. Mount, suggesting that it would be most fitting if the state of Indiana would take some action concerning the matter. The grave is on an eighty-acre farm adjoining the south end of the old Lincoln farm. Half a mile south of the burial place of the mother is the grave of the only daughter of Mrs. Lincoln, Mrs. Sally Ann Grigsby. Mr. Burt finds that years ago the one-half acre of land about the grave of Nancy Hanks was deeded to the United States to be held in trust. No steps have been taken in all these years to make the grave of Lincoln's mother distinguished from the countryside that surrounds it. Gov. Mount is looking the matter up, and there will be further communication between him and the president.

cepted as showing that any amendment having the sanction of the caucus was assured of adoption.

Saturday, June 12.

The sugar democratic assaults in the schedule was again the subject of the senate. Practically no progress was made. Only one amendment was voted upon, and that was defeated. The most sensational feature of the day was the speech of Senator McEnery of Louisiana. He openly avowed himself a protectionist, and as a democrat justified his position upon the ground that tariff views should not constitute a test of democracy. He, moreover, defended the sugar trust, whose interests, he argued, went hand in hand with the sugar planters.

Monday, June 14.

A statement by Senator Hoar that the honest, sober men of the United States looked with contempt upon the charges against the United States senate drew from Senator Tillman a stirring reply, in which he insisted that Mr. Hoar was entirely mistaken. Mr. Allen (Neb.) held that it was the right and duty of the government to take legal steps to dissolve the sugar trust. Mr. Pettigrew (S. D.) followed in support of his amendment proposing that articles made by a trust be put on the free list. The senate then voted on the pending amendment by Mr. Lindsay to strike out the distinction as to Dutch standard in the first paragraph of the sugar schedule and placing all sugar on an equality at 1 cent per pound and 3-100 cents additional for every degree above 75. It was defeated—yeas 26, nays 29. The house adjourned until Thursday after a session that lasted forty-five minutes.

Immigrant Station Burned.

The United States government immigrant station on Ellis Island, in New York harbor, was destroyed by fire Monday. The 200 immigrants were safely transferred from the island to the barge office at the Battery. The cost of the plant is said to have been $750,000.

Death in a Paris Theater.

A fire occurred Sunday night in a theater at Neuilly, a suburb of Paris, France, while a fete was being held there. A panic followed the outbreak of the fire, and in the rush to escape fifty of the spectators were thrown down and trampled upon. Twelve were very seriously injured.

PAIR OF BLACK JAVAS.

was also found that the desire of a cow for water was about an hour after eating, but the evening thirst was never so great as in the morning. With some of the cows there was some variation in the quantity of water consumed daily, but with others it was as steady in quantity as standard measure. In this there might be some variation in results from some other herd not so cared for; these cows being continuously stabled at the time of the experiment, while a herd that ran out-doors more or less might show different results. In another thing I was convinced, that a cow did better that drank several times a day, and so convinced was I of this, that a watering system for the cow stables was put in several years ago; and my opinion of their value has never changed, more than a more thorough belief in their promoting the milk flow; and if our cows were to be turned out every day for exercise, I should not connect outdoor drinking with it, but hold to the manger water basin. In this connection there is another point I think of importance, and that is in stable watering there is uniformity of the temperature of the water, and the cow, being habituated to drinking water at say 52 degrees day after day—as the water in my big stable tank indicates—is not subjected to the extreme temperature ranges of out-door drinking water, and air included, and she must do the better for this uniformity, with the shocks to the cow's system eliminated.

Standard Varieties of Chickens.

Javas.—This variety is the oldest of the American class, and at one time was considered the most profitable of all breeds. At present they are not raised extensively; the more modern or newer breeds have seemingly supplanted their favoritism. There is no reason why this should be so, as they are practical and good general-purpose fowls. In size they are about like the Plymouth Rocks, but differ in general symmetry and appearance. They are good layers and do well in winter, and for table purposes they make nice eating. They mature early, are good sitters and mothers, and are easily kept in confinement. There are three varieties of Javas: Black, Mottled and White. The Black is more generally seen than the others, though the Motconsequence we are now suffering a period of low prices. Our next predicament, if all signs do not fall, will be a great scarcity of horses. We base this opinion upon the fact that everybody is selling and that very few are breeding. We do not believe there are more than 10 per cent of the horses being bred in the United States to-day that there were six years ago. This can not possibly help but produce a great shortage, and this shortage in supply can have but one effect—namely, to increase the price. As it takes five years to produce a four-year-old colt, and as the time can not be abridged by any possible means, and as the breeding began to fall off quite materially in 1893, four years ago, the shortage is bound to begin to manifest itself inside of the next two years. The produce of mares bred this season will not be four years old, or ready for market, before 1902, and between this and that time we predict that there will be a much greater shortage of horses of all kinds than has been seen in this country for many years.—Breeder and Sportsman.

Sitting Hens.—Sitting hens never get fat. In fact, with some of the persistent sitters of the Asiatic breeds, the semi-starvation to which they expose themselves is, perhaps, better for their future as egg producers than high feeding would be. Still it is not best to let this starvation go too far. The hen will not eat nor drink much, but if feed and drink are offered early in the morning, some of both will be taken. We never feed a sitting hen anything but wheat, and do not give very much of that. It is more important that the hen drink freely than that she eat much. She will sometimes drink if milk is offered to her at night. With wheat in the morning and milk at night, the hen will lose fat, but will be healthier and ready to go to laying again by the time her clutch of chickens is grown large enough to care for themselves.—Ex.

A peculiar and alarming disease that baffles the skill of the veterinarians has struck the horses in central Illinois and is carrying them off rapidly. The doctors who have studied it say it is pleuro-pneumonia. The animal is stricken and before anything can be done for it death comes. One man in Bloomington lost four. Sunday morning he attended his stock and went in to breakfast, when he returned to the barn one of the horses was dead. Later in the day he found another in the same condition. The horses had been off their feed, but not to an extent that should have created alarm. A number from the country report death from apparently the same cause. Horsemen are somewhat disturbed over the appearance of this trouble among their stock.

Mrs. Luhring Drewes, wife of Christian Drewes, died at her home, on Russell street, Wednesday morning, June 16, 1897, after an illness lasting nearly five months; aged 39 years. Mrs. Drewes was born in Indiana May 9, 1858, and was united in marriage to Christian Drewes January 27, 1876. They first made their home on a farm near the town of Wheeling, afterward removing to Arlington Heights, where they resided until May 4, 1895, when they came to Barrington, and have since made their home here. The funeral took place at her late residence yesterday afternoon at 1 o'clock, Rev. E. Rahn of St. Paul's Evangelical Church officiating. The remains were interred at Arlington Heights. She leaves a husband, three sons and one daughter, who greatly mourn the loss of a devoted wife and mother.

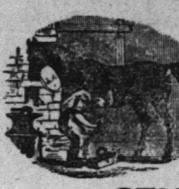

Eighth Grade Exercises, Palatine.

The Eighth Grade closing exercises were held in the Methodist church Thursday evening. The church was tastefully decorated in the class colors, pink and green. The church was filled with an appreciative audience which listened to the program as given below. Each graduate rendered his part well and the essays were well written and delivered. The class trio, composed of Clara Taylor, Elsie Baker and Agnes Danielsen, was a surprise in excellency and with the assistance of Julia Bollenbach they composed a quartet which the audience showed its appreciation of by an encore. After the program W. E. Daniels, in behalf of the Board of Education, presented the diplomas.

Der Mann, der viele Frucht gebaut

— ist sich bewußt, daß die Erntezeit nahe bevorsteht. Idealtischer Ackerbau umfaßt nicht bloß den Bau des längsten Getreides — die meisten Sonnen Heu auf den Aker — den besten Feldbau — den gewinnbringendsten Feldbau — er erfordert noch etwas mehr als dies, denn es giebt eine Erntezeit, und gerade in dem Verhältnis wie die Frucht sicher, erfolgreich, reich und sparsam eingeheimt wird, gerade in dem Verhältnis kann der Gewinn oder Verlust eines Jahres berechnet werden.

MCCORMICK

Erntemaschinen sind die Sorte, welche gewinnbringend; die Sorte, welche die Ausgaben verringert, es giebt andere Sorten, welche dies nicht thun, und in Wirklichkeit fortwährend Ausgaben verursachen, weil sie immer außer Ordnung sind. Kauft uns zu geben, daß wir Alle versuchen, Geld zu machen; auch laßt uns zu geben—denn Erfahrung hat es befähigt—daß nichts billiger ist als das Beste. In Erntemaschinere hier ist es:

Der McCormick Binder, mit offenem Elevator, rechts schneidend.
Die McCormick Neue 4 Räderne Gras-Rähmaschine.
Die McCormick aufklappbare Daisy Getreide-Rähmaschine.
Der McCormick vertikale Mais-Binder.

Kommt und laßt uns Euch diese Maschine zeigen; es sind die einzigen Sorten, die wir hatten; es sind die einzigen Sorten, die man haben sollte.
