Amanda Harmening is visiting with friends in Milwaukee.

George Schweitzer of Chicago visited his mother here last week.

Kenith Smith of Irving Park has been visiting his grandparents here this week.

Get your eye glasses fitted by a competent optician at A. G. Smith's office every Thursday. G. R. BURKITT.

James Peterson and mother visited Palatine friends Sunday, making the trip in an automobile.

Rufus Starck has secured a position as book-keeper for the United States Security company in Chicago.

Frank Bicknase starts for Valparaiso, Ind., today where he will take the summer course in the State Normal school.

The eighth grade exercises were held in the school house Thursday afternoon and a very interesting program was rendered.

The Carnation ball team of Chicago will play Palatine High school this afternoon and have written that they expect to win.

The Palatine Maennerchor will present their amusing farce "The Green Elephant Hotel" in Sheen's pavilion at Schaumburg tonight.

Floyd Gibbs has purchased Henry Harmening's place next to H. C. Matthei's residence, the price being $3,000. Mr. Harmening and family will go South to reside.

Barrington will celebrate the 4th with a grand celebration under the auspices of the Knights of the Globe. Judge Gilmore of Woodstock will deliver the oration.

The High school alumni banquet and reception occurs next Friday night. The banquet will be served in the town hall and the reception will be held in Battermann's hall.

A large crowd attended the Wilson horse sale Wednesday, but the bidding was too low only two horses were sold. It was decided to sell at private sale and a number of horses were sold in this way.

Agents for the Chicago Telephone company have been in Palatine this week and have placed a number of contracts for telephones in residences and business places. They have reduced their rates to patrons.

Ernest Beutler has been promoted to the position of head book-keeper for the Western News company. He entered the employ of this company several months ago, and owing to his strict attention to the company's business has rapidly climbed higher.

We always supposed that the Methodists were the greatest collection takers on earth, but the Salvation Army has them beat. They took up a collection after the lecture Monday night, fifteen cents admission being charged. All took it as a good joke and "shelled out."

The board of education has secured the following teachers for next term of school: Miss Mary Kean of Evanston, assistant principal; Miss Thirza M. Pierce of Evanston, third and fourth grades. Miss Kean is a graduate of Northwestern university and comes well recommended.

The Salvation Army corps, which closed their meetings here Tuesday night, were well received by church people and others. We are glad to see that their received respect in their open air meetings and were not disturbed in any manner. It speaks well for our town and shows there is a scarcity of tough element here.

Mrs. Snider, mother of Sim and Emily Snider at this place, died at her home in Canada last Friday at noon. Sim and his sister went home upon receipt of a telegram announcing her serious illness, and although they were at her bedside a few days before her death, she did not regain full consciousness and failed to recognize them. The funeral services were held last Sunday. Mrs. Snider was injured some months ago by falling and hurting her hip. After some weeks it was found that the hip bone had been broken and it failed to heal properly. She suffered a stroke of paralysis and after a few days lingering found relief in death.

Miss Clara Harrison will teach the 3rd and 4th grades in the Barrington school next year.

FOUND—A pair of eye glasses, at St. Paul's Church. Owner can have same by calling on John Bergman.

Don't get side-tracked in business. Dullness sometimes passes for death. Men with brains reach the goal. Rocky Mountain Tea puts gray matter into one's head. 35c. Ask your druggist.

Mr. and Mrs. Luck of Des Plaines, Ia., came to Palatine last week. Mr. Luck started for Europe the first of this week where he goes on business connected with the Des Moines Seed Co., with which firm he is connected. He expects to be gone for at least two months and Mrs. Luck will remain with her parents in this place until his return.

The stereopticon lecture given by Major Damon in the Methodist church Monday night was a first-class, entertaining and instructive lecture. He gave the large audience an insight to the grand workings of the Salvation Army and it truly was a revelation to those present. Few persons realize the grand and heroic work this this body is doing for the unfortunate. Miss Sanger sang some beautiful songs in a sweet clear voice that will live with the listeners. Those who failed to attend missed a treat.

Commencement Week.

The High school commencement exercises began Sunday with the baccalaureate sermon by Rev. D. J. Holmes in the Methodist church. The sermon was listened to by a large audience and was full of many good thoughts and words of encouragement to the graduating class.

On Wednesday night occurred the class day exercises on the school campus. A big audience was in attendance, despite the threatening storm, and those present were not sorry that they came as the exercises were of a high class order throughout. The class history was given by Miss Emma Godknecht and Orla Sawyer delivered a declamation of "The Two Roads." Miss Eva Biggs gave the class prophecy and it was a clever and well written paper and deserving of more than passing comment. The class poem, written and recited by Miss Winnie Sawyer, was an exceptionally fine production, and received flattering applause from her hearers. The following is an extract:

O, hither, come hither, sweet thoughts of the past,
Come, as on wings of the winds' mighty blast,
O, fade not away in my fanciful dreams,
But e'er gladden my heart with your bright, happy dreams.

This school house, so old, has memories sweet
And its walls echo back the years as they fleet,
They take us once more to our childhood's bright hours,
And leave us to pause amidst the birds and the flowers.

And what is so sweet as a bud near its bloom,
When it fills the air with its dainty perfume,
When each of its petals does slowly expand,
Till it reaches its height in flowerhood land?

Yes, what are so precious as youthful days,
When blessings are strewn o'er our ways,
When our hopes, our ambitions, our aims and our all
Rise to await our manhood's first call?

This campus so vast, the witness has been
Of awful encounters, not fit for the pen:
Yet boys will be boys, and I'll say that these four
Are enough for us girls, say nothing of more.

The farce was next in order and the play kept the audience interested and pleased, being interspersed with droll and witty parts. The subject of the farce was "Rice Pudding," being a presentation of Mrs. Richards and her daughter starting in housekeeping in new quarters and assisted by the timely appearance of Dr. Thwart, who falls in love with Miss Richards. Mrs. Richards, by mistake, assumes that she is the object of the doctor's love darts. Mr. Richards thinks the same thing and a family storm arises. The servant cooks according to directions and sets an interesting and amusing list of edibles. Happily, all turns out well.

The class paper was read by Wm. Harms and the witty sayings kept the audience in merriment. There was not a dry paragraph in it.

The exercises closed with a song by the class.

COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES.

Of Palatine High School Held on Friday Evening.

Last night the commencement exercises proper were held in the Methodist church and the edifice was filled, as usual. The orations were masterpieces of thought and well delivered. Sears' Barrington orchestra rendered music and received flattering attention. The address by Judge C. S. Cutting needs no words of praise, as Mr. Cutting always says the right thing. President Taylor's address and presentation of diplomas was done in a neat manner and his defense of the High school is convincing. The following are extracts of the orations:

Cuba and Congress.

Of all the brilliant affairs which are being accomplished in the world, none are more brilliant than the change of affairs in Cuba. How can we best preserve the affairs of Cuba and at the same time protect the interests of our own country? How can we act so that the Teller resolution will not defeat itself? How can we complete a subject to be answered by Congress? These questions Orville Platt of Connecticut, who was at the head of the Cuban committee, answers well in the Cuban amendment to the army bill. This bill provides that the government of Cuba shall never enter into any treaty or other compact with any foreign power or powers which will impair the independence of Cuba, nor in any manner authorize or permit any foreign power or powers, to obtain, by colonization or by military or naval purposes, or otherwise, to obtain, or to control over any part of the island. It is intolerable that any foreign nation should have control over an inch of Cuban soil; nor even is it tolerable that any foreign power should have a naval station in any harbor of Cuba. Cuba could give such rights if she desired. Think of the consequences. The distance between Cuba and the Yucatan is ninety miles, between Cuba and Yucatan a trifle over a hundred miles and a small foreign squadron with a small patrol along the passage of Yucatan, with Havana harbor in its possession, could blockade the Gulf of Mexico, the canal through the Isthmus, the Mississippi river and utterly cut off our foreign commerce.

It is also necessary that the United States should possess naval stations along the Cuban coast for national defense and for the defense of Cuba. Accordingly, the army bill amendment provides: "That to enable the United States to maintain the independence of Cuba, and to protect its people, as well as for its own defense, the government shall sell or lease to United States lands necessary for coaling and naval stations." The amendment further provides: "That said government shall not assume any public debt to pay interest upon and to make reasonable sinking fund provision for the ultimate of which the ordinary revenue of the island, after defraying current expenses of government, shall be inadequate."

The progress of Cuba does not alone depend upon our keeping foreign papers from taking possession of her, but it also depends on sanitation, which will guard the Cuban people from the ravages of pestilence.

AGNES B. DANIELSEN.

Progress of Women.

Look at that noble character, Queen Victoria, could she be even compared with England's former queens? Truly many of them were good women, but they were not advanced as she was because her opportunities were not theirs. This shows that women, when given a chance, will make every effort to improve her condition. Could you, after comparing the woman who centuries ago spent her time in drudgery with Harriet Beecher Stowe, say that women has not progressed, and greatly, too? Indeed you could not, for Mrs. Stowe wrote a book which not only set the nation in hot debate, but was admitted into the catalogue of permanent literature. This book was "Uncle Tom's Cabin."

Has not women been transformed from a slave to an angel of mercy? Read the life of Clara Barton. She was a nurse in the army of Potomac and a nurse in the Franco-German war; president of the American Red Cross in Egypt, in the Armenian massacres, in the Cuban war and finally in the Spanish war. No man or woman could have done nobler deeds than she. When the gloom of the civil war overhung our country, a maid, who was spoken of as one inspired by heaven, came forward and saved the country. This woman was Anna Dickinson. She made speeches that thrilled the hearts of her countrymen.

Our own familiar scenes, pictured by the brush of Rosa Bonheur, bring added beauty to our sight. Have you ever thought, as you marveled at their wondrous beauty, that it was a woman's hand that painted them?

Nothing delights Mrs. Ballington Booth more than to go to homes for the poor with food and fuel and telling them the old, story, wins their souls to Christ.

Fame is not necessary to prove the true progress of women. We cannot all be heroines or philanthropists; we cannot all write for the enlightenment of mankind, but we can fill the sphere for which nature and nature's God intended us. If we strive to make our home life happy and bring joy and sweetness to the lives of those around us, we are helping in the great march of progression. (CLARA E. TAYLOR.)

The Ideal—Can It be Realized?

Our educational ideal is, and must be a constant change into a nobler life, should take away wrong and put into its place right. Genuine work must have a high and noble purpose—a purpose that means putting something really good into human life.

In education, the higher the motive the better the thought and the better the result. The ideal of the Greek was a perfect physical manhood and for four hundred years they struggled to realize it.

Browning says: "The greater aid in moral development is the formation of an ideal." His ideal was one of conflict; one who never turned his back, but march, breast forward.

In order to reach effectively one must have something to reach for; that something is the ideal. There are two sources for the ideal—the world around us furnishes one and literature the other. The teacher cannot help being an ideal for the pupil.

SESSION LAWS OF 1901

Ready for Distribution—Digest of Work of Last Legislature.

The laws passed by the Forty-second General Assembly, have been published in book form and are ready for distribution. There are a number of the measures of importance to the agricultural classes, foremost being the law appropriating thousands of dollars to reimburse farmers for cattle ordered slaughtered by direction of the state board of live stock commissioners for the discovery of tuberculosis. There will be a new arrangement of numbering school districts. Under the old system every township board of school trustees numbered the school districts in their respective townships. The new law provides that school districts shall be numbered consecutively in each county, beginning with No. 1, and each shall be designated as district No. — of — county and such designation shall be for all purposes for which school districts are now numbered by number, township, range or otherwise.

The sparrow bounty law has been repealed as has the Case garnishment law.

The abandonment of wife and children is made a crime punishable by fine of not less than $100, nor more than $500, or imprisonment in the county jail.

After July 1 it is unlawful to wear any insignia or badge of any lodge or fraternal society unless the person so wearing the same shall be entitled to do so under the constitution and by-laws of such lodge or society.

The crime of kidnapping is made punishable by death, imprisonment for life or any term not less than ten years.

There are a number of other important laws long desired by the people, and some which are not acceptable to the majority, but the solons were not expected to pass measures to please everybody.

WOODMEN IN CONVENTION

At St. Paul Elect Officers and Bar the Big Cities from Jurisdiction.

The Head Camp Modern Woodmen of America has been in session at St. Paul this week, and has attracted the largest gathering in the history of that order. Wednesday was given up to the election of officers and a protracted contest over the admission of cities of over 200,000 population to the jurisdiction of the order. This question has been agitated for some years but defeated at every turn. The proposition to take in city members came upon the report from the law committee. The cities of Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Louis, Pittsburg, Buffalo, Detroit, Cleveland, Pittsburg, Philadelphia, San Francisco and Cincinnati were named in several motions and then taken up one at a time and voted on. On Chicago the vote was 260 to 328, and the others were more quickly disposed of, all being voted down.

The law committee recommended that Utah be admitted to the jurisdiction of the order. This action is considered as settling for some years to come the membership limitations of the Modern Woodmen.

The chief officers elected are:

- Head Consul—W. A. Northcott of Illinois.
- Head Clerk—C. W. Hawes, Illinois.
- Head Adviser—Dan B. Herd, Iowa.
- Head Banker—R. R. Smith, Brookfield, Mo.
- Head Chaplain—Rev. J. L. Churm of Waupun, Wis.
- Head Escort—C. D. Elliot of Washington.
- Head Watchman—H. H. Smith of Missouri.
- Head Sentry—A. E. Bates of Minnesota.

Right You Are, Brother.

"Our experience in the newspaper business teaches us that an editor of a country paper does more gratis work for the public than any man in the county. If all the space we use in trying to boom our town and surrounding country, and in helping individuals and societies was paid for at half the legal rates, we would be the richest men in the county, but we are not rich, yet we believe we do as much for the county and community as the wealthiest men," says a contemporary.

Republican County Convention.

A Republican County convention will be held at the Town Hall in the village of Libertyville, Lake county, on Friday, June 21, 1901, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, for the purpose of nominating a county treasurer to fill vacancy caused by the death of County Treasurer J. M. Foote. Caucuses are called to be held in each primary district, Thursday, June 20, at the usual hour. Cuba township is entitled to 6 delegates; Ela 6; Wauconda 7.

WOMAN AND HOME.

FOR THE WRITING TABLE.
There is a growing liking among housekeepers for a writing table in the drawing room, and there is much to be said in its favor, although at first thought it seems somewhat unnecessary. It certainly cannot be used for private correspondence, bills or other strictly personal matters, but often it is convenient for the visitor who may wish to leave a message for an absent friend, to write an address or some such trifle.

Only a writing table, be it understood, not a writing desk, is to be established in the drawing room, and it should always be made as decorative as possible, harmonizing with the general character of the room. An extremely simple writing table would be out of place in an apartment brilliant in color and furnishings, and a highly ornate one would not be suited to a room rather severe in style. In any case, it is in better taste to use only dark colors, when a cover is needed, leaving to the fittings of brass, silver or glass, the task of providing the desirable brightness. A carved table of slack oak looks well with a scarf of deep crimson or dark blue satin with embroidered ends that hang well over. Such an arrangement would harmonize with a somewhat stately room. A frivolous room with much color and gleam of gold might have a gilt table, but never a black oak, says the New York Tribune.

OUR EMBROIDERY LESSON.
For the new mountmellick work comes numerous designs in graceful patterns. Conventional designs in scrolls and delicate traceries in leaves and five conventionalized fruits and flowers are the most popular, the wreaths and corners are shown in large sprays of fruit and leaves where the stems are stiff and heavy. The fine and heavy are alike developed in white cotton and every stitch known to embroiderers is used in working these pieces. The material for table pieces in this work should be a heavy soft linen while for other uses such as bed spreads, scarfs, and stand covers a goods resembling a fine drilling comes especially for it. This material is close to the first and so on until the scallop is filled, taking care that the stitches on the under side are short thus leaving the cotton where it is needed to properly raise the border. Stems and scrolls in single lines may be worked in outline or couched, wider stems are outlined on either edge and filled with French knots or worked solidly in stem or satin stitch while numerous fancy knot and couched stitches are employed upon others. Fancy runs riot in working the leaves and fruits. Some outlines are couched and the veins featherstitched. At other times the leaves are partly solid and the balance filled with French knots. No housekeeper wishing a dainty and serviceable table piece or stand or dresser cover need hesitate for lack of opportunity for lessons for any good needle woman with a little imagination may supply herself with beautiful articles in this justly popular style of work.

The illustration shows a corner which may be used for lunch cloth or table center.—Anna C. Guernsey, Suggestions, Des Moines.

WINDOW DECORATIONS.

"How perfectly beautiful," exclaimed a visitor as she entered the favorite sitting room of the chateleine of a charming country house. It was no wonder she stood transfixed with admiration. Before her, nearly filling one end of the room, was a deep recessed window and window seat, the former with large plate glass sashes that made the room seem part of a fruit orchard beyond, which was just bursting into pink and white silken cushions to match a great semicircle of hyacinths and tulips just outside that blazed with color within their setting of emerald green turf. Their soft tints of pink, yellow, blue, white, purple, lilac and dark red were all exactly reproduced in the piled up cushions of the window seat.

ENDS THIRD-TERM TALK.

President McKinley Is Out with an Official Statement.
The following statement has been given out at the White House:
"I regret that the suggestion of a third term has been made. I doubt whether I am called upon to give it notice. But there are now questions of the gravest importance before the administration and the country, and their just consideration should not be prejudiced in the public mind by even the suspicion of the thought of a third term. In view, therefore, of the reiteration of the suggestion of it, I will say now, once for all, expressing a long-settled conviction that I not only am not and will not be a candidate for a third term, but would not accept a nomination for it if it were tendered me. My only ambition is to serve through my second term to the acceptance of my countrymen, whose generous confidence I so deeply appreciate, and then with them do my duty in the ranks of private citizenship."

Piano Makers in Trust.

A combination of the piano manufacturers, controlling the entire output of the country, is in process of organization. Marc A. Blumenberg, editor of the Musical Courier of New York, is at Cincinnati, promoting the scheme. Max Blumenberg claims that the purpose of the combine is to reduce the selling expenses, which are now $75 for every piano made. He states that while the combination will cut off a number of hangers-on of the trade it will materially benefit the workmen in the factories. He will endeavor to interest Cincinnati manufacturers in the scheme, and states that nearly all of the large factories have the matter under consideration.

Thirty Entombed in a Mine.

Over thirty men are entombed in mines of the Pittsburg Coal and Coke Company at Port Royal, Pa., and the existence of fire in the shaft makes it very unlikely that any of them can escape. Six men were in the mines when an explosion occurred, starting the fire. Two of the miners escaped, and soon after they reached the surface a party of over twenty-five men went into the works to rescue the four that had been caught. Several explosions were heard soon after the rescuers went down, and since then no sign of life has come from below.

Accused of Fraud in Ohio.

J. Worth Carnahan, president of the United States Army and Navy Historical association of this city, was arrested at Washington, D. C., under an indictment found at Columbus, O., charging him with having conspired with R. L. Winslow and J. O. Davis, agents of the association, to defraud residents of the State of Ohio by impersonating special examiners of the Pension Bureau. Mr. Carnahan admitted his identity as the person indicted and waived a preliminary hearing, United States Commissioner Mills fixing his bond at $1,000.

Denies He Is a Woman.

Joseph Harmon Corder, Jersey City, N. J., whose bride of two weeks alleged that she had been deceived into marrying a woman, has denied the allegation. Corder said that the day after his wedding he was called away on urgent business. The bride told the police that her husband wore long stockings and garters and had a lot of woman's garments in a trunk. Corder explained this by saying that the garments were the property of a former sweetheart.

News of Suicides Suppressed.

An Emporia (Kan.) dispatch says that an epidemic of suicides, which has caused in the towns and county two dozen suicides or attempts in as many months, has led the mayor and board of health to forbid the publication of details of the crimes in local papers. Their action is taken on the theory that publication spreads the contagion by psychic suggestion. Three attempts at suicide were made at Emporia Tuesday.

Thieves Run and Drown.

Constantine Scandal, an American, was robbed on the railway while asleep by three fellow travelers between Modane and St. Michel, France. Recognizing the thieves at Saint-Jean-De-Maurienne, he pursued them across the country and they jumped into the River Ace, where all were drowned.

Patrick's Demurrors Refused.

Judge Foster in general sessions at New York refused to allow seven demurrors filed against the seven indictments against Albert T. Patrick, David Short, and Morris Meyers, charging Patrick with murder, and the others, including Patrick, with forgery and perjury.

Shot for Breaking Parole.

Two Dutchmen, named Venter and Krause, were shot at Pretoria for breaking their parole and attempting to escape from Pretoria, and for shooting at and wounding a policeman. A companion, who was unarmed, was made a prisoner.

Headless Body Is Found.

One of the most puzzling mysteries that have at once shocked and alarmed the state was brought to light by the finding of the headless body of a woman near a wood camp one and a half miles from Chelmsford Center, Mass. The body was found in a clump of bushes not far from the road, and from the appearances the woman had been dead for some days. The clothes, though few in number, were of fine texture and fashionable make, but no jewelry or aught by which identification could be made was found.

FARM AND GARDEN.

MATTERS OF INTEREST TO AGRICULTURISTS.

Some Up-to-Date Hints About Cultivation of the Soil and Yields Thereof—Horticulture, Viticulture and Floriculture.

Horticultural Observations.

Among the visitors at the Farmers' Review office last week was L. R. Bryant, Secretary of the Illinois State Horticultural Society. He brought with him some samples of the apples he has had in cold storage since last fall. It was the Seventeenth of May, yet the apples were as hard and fresh looking as the day they came off the tree, and their color was excellent. Mr. Bryant said that they had been held all through the winter at about 32 degrees. Of this two things may be said; one is that more apples should be put into cold storage warehouses, to lessen the glut in the fall, and another is that the Willow Twig is a most excellent apple for that purpose. We doubt if there be any other apple that will come out better in the spring or sell more readily.

The folly of planting some kinds of trees in the fall in some of our northern latitudes is frequently well illustrated by the results of that practice. Recently the writer of this had occasion to look over a large mass of shrubbery that was planted last fall, the planters insisting that that was the proper time to plant. This spring at least two-thirds of the plantation is dead and most of the shrubs will have to be pulled up and replaced. The advice of our state horticultural societies should be taken. The Illinois State Horticultural society has given the matter due consideration and has declared in favor of spring planting in all localities north of Springfield. In warmer regions fall planting is doubtless all right, especially where the winter supply of moisture is good.

The Illinois State Horticultural Society has for a number of years conducted sub-experiment stations with more or less success. These stations number, we believe, eight, and are scattered over the state. The object of their existence is to try the same fruits in different parts of the state. Every new fruit, whether tree, cane, or bush, is sent to each of the stations. After several years it is easy to approximate its value for the locality in which it is being tried. We say approximate, for even trying a fruit in eight or nine parts of the state will not prove positively what it might do in yet another location other than the eight. Not only the climate but the soils must be considered, and the combinations of soil are almost infinite. The greatest difficulty is to get men that will properly run these sub-stations, and this difficulty is increased by the fact that little money is available for that purpose. A man is paid a rental of about $5 per acre per year for the land on his farm actually occupied by the experimental orchard or small fruits. This land is at the present time not often in excess of three acres. Then the owner gets perhaps $25 per year for taking care of the plantation, and the trees and plants are furnished to him free. If the man be a horticulturist by instinct he will carry on the work from year to year and will get results. Some of the caretakers, however, weary of well-doing in a short time and the trial orchard is neglected. There is also another disturbing factor—namely, death. We instance J. V. Cotta, who was a most thorough horticulturist and had charge of a trial station located on his farm. When death came the whole work there was interrupted, and it now seems likely that the trial orchard will cease to be, as the land will pass to heirs and the land under the orchard is not owned by the State Society. Probably the state will ultimately provide money for the purchase of land to be used for such stations, but the funds of the State Society will not, at the present time at least warrant investment in real estate.

Kansas Gypsum and Its Value.

Many people will be surprised to know that gypsum is found in Kansas in large quantities. In his address before the State Board of Agriculture Erasmus Haworth stated that Kansas ranks second in the Union as a producer of gypsum and the value of its marketed product. Kansas gypsum is of two distinct varieties, which differ from each other in origin and in method of manufacture. The most abundant variety is the ordinary rock gypsum, which exists in broad layers, interstratified with limestone and shale so that in every respect it is a genuine rock. It is this form of gypsum which is so abundant in the vicinity of Blue Rapids and on the south side of the Hill river opposite Solomon. It also occurs near the little town of Hope and many places south of it, from Sumner line to the state line and last but not least to the southwest in Barber county. Here it occurs as immense masses of stratified rock, measuring in some places 30 feet or more in thickness. It also caps the hills in the rough country to the southwest of Medicine Lodge. This rock gypsum in the various places named is exceptionally pure and contains only about one or two per cent of foreign matter. It is equal to any gypsum in the world for the manufacture of the highest grades of plaster of Paris and when properly mixed with efficient retarders makes as high grade cement plaster as can be found on the markets of Europe or America. Another variety of gypsum known in Kansas and elsewhere is pulverulent in form. It is found near or at the surface of the ground in wet or marshy places and is mixed with more or less earthy matter, such as soil, clay and sand.

Experience shows that it is profitable to apply gypsum to some kinds of soil. Last year Forest Savage of Lawrence applied a few hundred pounds of gypsum to a wheat field. The vigorous growth and healthy green color of this portion testified to the benefit derived from the condition of the gypsum. Bro. Haworth thinks that the productiveness of Kansas soil can be greatly increased, particularly in the eastern part of the state where gumbo patches are common and hardpan is abundant. He was betraying no professional secret when he stated that many of the big packing houses used large quantities of ground gypsum to mix with other animal fertilizers. The farmers of the west are slow in getting around to commercial fertilizers, but when these materials can be had near at hand there is no reason why they may not be profitable.

Judging at Kansas City Show.

Frank D. Winn, secretary of the National Breeders' show and also of the organization representing Poland Chinas, gives the following explanation of system of judging adopted by the managing committee on Poland Chinas at the Kansas City show this method to apply only of course to the Poland China breed: The four judges who will tie ribbons on the Poland Chinas at the Kansas City show are T. B. Hart of Illinois, J. M. Klever and J. C. Hendrick of Ohio and W. Z. Swallow of Iowa, who was substituted for W. H. McFadden, who could not serve on account of his official position with the American Poland China Record company. These gentlemen are all well known and have the confidence and esteem of breeders throughout the country, both as to their judgment and their honor. The managing committee does not believe that any one of these men would let any little personal feeling interfere with their best judgment in placing the awards, should there be any, yet there are always those exhibitors who imagine they will not get a fair deal on account of personal differences, etc., and to ease the minds of such men, we have adopted a method of judging which will make it almost impossible for any breeder to be injured without there are as many as two of the judges prejudiced against him. Two judges will work on each class with a referee to decide in case of a disagreement, and one judge will then of course be out on each class. The judges will be rotated, the referee changed each time as well as the man who is out. It can readily be seen that unless both of the judges on a class or one of the acting judges and the referee are disposed to be prejudiced and working against the same breeder, it will be impossible for him to get the worst of it. This method of judging was adopted for the great combined cattle shows at Kansas City this fall and in the opinion of the committee would be the most satisfactory that could be used for the Poland China hog exhibit. I am not informed as to the system that will be employed by the other breeds. The committee determined to go to the extra expense of the additional fourth judge to make it as fair and satisfactory to all exhibitors as possible, which it was thought would be appreciated by the breeders and be the cause of a larger and better exhibit.

Black Spanish.

The Black Spanish is one of the oldest varieties of domestic poultry. Their name has been identified with the industry for hundreds of years, and their practical worth on the farm has long been of much value. Their haughty bearing, large red comb and wattles, and the white face and lobes peculiar to the breed, contrasting with their glossy black plumage, render them most striking fowls. White-faced Black Spanish have long been favorably known for their exceptionally fine laying qualities. The oldest of the nonsitting varieties, they still maintain an unsurpassed record. The pullets are early layers, averaging 150 to 180 eggs per year, the hens beginning somewhat later after molting, but compensating for any loss of quantity by the increased size of the egg, while hens and pullets alike are well above the average for winter laying. Their eggs are large and white and of good flavor. Their white face is a distinguishing feature, and should be long, smooth, free from wrinkles, rising well over the eyes in an arched form, extending toward the back of the head and to the base of the beak, covering the cheeks and joining the wattles and ear lobes, the greater the depth of surface the better, and should be pure white in color. The color of plumage throughout is rich, glossy black, and any gray in plumage is considered a serious defect. Shanks and toes are blue, or dark leaden blue. Comb is single and bright red in color; wattles, bright red, except the inside of the upper part, which is white; earlobes, pure white. No standard weight is given for Black Spanish; they average in size that of the Leghorn and Andalusian.

A Southern writer says that at present a great many in the South are sending North for first class pigs, but owing to the fact that they are not willing to pay first class prices, are getting scrubs at scrub prices.

The present population of Athens in Greece is only 80,000. There is no accurate census of the city when in its ancient glory, but it is supposed at one time to have contained 500,000 inhabitants.

The city of Birmingham, Ala., has already begun to make preparation for a "metallic exposition," to be opened there Nov. 15, 1904, and continue until May 15, 1905.

LATEST ILLINOIS NEWS.

Mute Held for Assault.

One of the most horrible crimes in the history of southern Illinois was enacted near the small station of McClure, on the Cape Girardeau branch of the Illinois Central. Sarah Loeb, the belle of the community, started from her home to visit a sister a few miles distant. As she was passing through a small clump of trees a white man jumped from behind a tree and grabbed the bridle of the horse the girl was riding. Becoming frightened she jumped from the horse and attempted to run, and was felled by a blow from a club in the hands of her assailant. The girl was terribly injured, eleven cuts having been found on her body. Her right eye probably is destroyed. She succeeded in crawling about half a mile to a neighbor's house, reaching there at 7 p. m. She was then nearly dead from loss of blood, and was unable to speak, but by gesture and a peculiar groan indicated her assailant. A party was at once formed, and As Castleman, a deaf mute, was captured at his mother's home. Threats of lynching were freely indulged in, and Castleman's brother induced Judge Winchester to take the prisoner away, and he was taken to Carbondale, en route to the Alexander county jail. Castleman was positively identified by Miss Loeb Monday morning. When he was taken to her bedside she fainted. Castleman is about 30 years of age, and is possessed of more than ordinary ability. His victim is not quite 19, and is of a good family. Physicians consider the girl's condition extremely critical. The story as related above was given by Judge Winchester, who had the prisoner in charge.

Kills His Wife and Himself.

A young husband, a fair young bride whom all men admired, jealousy, an intercepted letter, a pistol, murder, a suicide—this tells the brief story of the life tragedy of O. S. Bryant and wife of Louisvillle, Ill. Bryant was 22, she was 20. He was a laborer; she was very fair to look upon; he loved her wildly; she seemed indifferent to him; she corresponded with a man at Xenia, Ill. It is said; he waxed jealous. Saturday he intercepted a letter from the man to his wife; a violent quarrel ensued, and they separated. Monday he fired a bullet into her body, and as she fell dead at his feet he ended his own life with the same pistol. Apparently the murder and suicide was deliberately planned and coolly executed. Both the man and woman were born and reared in Clay county, and were widely known.

Fire in Big Hospital.

Shortly after he had assumed the duties of warden of the Cook county hospital Daniel Healy distinguished himself as a fire fighter. He was receiving congratulations when he heard cries of "Fire!" ringing through the corridors. A few seconds later the new warden rushed into ward 4, seized a fire extinguisher and directed a stream of the chemical liquid at a burning bed. Surrounded by excited patients he put the blaze out and returned to his office. One of the occupants of the ward was smoking a pipe when some of the ashes fell on the bed clothes. The blaze originated in this manner.

Teachers Chosen at Sparta.

At the regular monthly meeting of the board of education at Sparta, Prof. S. B. Hood was appointed superintendent; Prof. L. J. Sexton, principal, and the following corps of teachers were selected for the ensuing year: Mary Maxwell, Jennie R. Lynn, Lydia McKelvey, Lizzie Carson, Stella Burgess, Margaret Guthrie, Myra Foster, Ethel Pollock, Elizabeth Fairis, Ethel Alexander, Elizabeth Blair, Elsie Miller and Lola Wallace.

Pleads Guilty to Murder.

The third plea of guilty to the charge of murder filed in the criminal court at Chicago within a month was hard before Judge Smith when Alfred Davis admitted the shooting of Gertie Williams, March 31. The defendant's only excuse was that he was intoxicated at the time and had no clear recollection of what had taken place. The court fixed the punishment at fourteen years.

Cass County Sunday Schools.

The Cass County Sunday School Association will convene at Ashland on June 21 for a two days' session. Mr. A. H. Mills, a prominent attorney of Decatur and ex-president of the State Sunday School Association, and Mrs. H. M. Hamil of Jacksonville, secretary of the State Normal Association, will be the principal speakers. An elaborate program has been prepared for the meeting.

New Building at Hawthorne.

The Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific will erect a Y. M. C. A. building at Hawthorne, the new division freight yard in the east end of Moline.

Catholic Foresters at Kankakee.

The three days' convention of the Illinois Catholic Order of Foresters convened in Kankakee. Bishop O'Reilly of Peoria celebrated pontifical mass Tuesday, and Rev. Father Hoefler of Chicago preached the sermon. There was a business session twice each day and over 400 delegates, besides many visitors, were present.

Wanted an Army of Harvesters.

Kansans almost always want something, and they usually get what they want. They now demand an army of 20,000 men to help the farmers of that commonwealth in harvesting the season's enormous crop. The men are wanted at once, and they are promised steady work at high wages for the next 90 days. The same kind of demand has been or is likely to be made in varying measure by Oklahoma, Nebraska, both the Dakotas and Minnesota.

It is a pity that this yearly call for men cannot be met by the formation of an industrial army which might be made up of the unemployed from the great cities. There are doubtless thousands of city men, to whom 60 or 90 days' work in the harvest fields would not only be profitable, but highly beneficial in the way of improving their health. Such an army would find a field for operations early in June in Oklahoma, which raised nearly 20,000,000 bushels of wheat last year, and this season the acreage is largely increased. After the Oklahoma farmers had been helped out of their troubles the army might invade Kansas, with a record last year of 82,000,000 bushels of wheat, and keep on to the north through Nebraska, with 25,000,000 bushels; the Dakotas, which jointly have produced 97,000,000 bushels in a single season, and Minnesota, where more than 50,000,000 bushels are yearly put into the elevators.

The trouble about an industrial army of this sort is the matter of transportation from the crowded centers of population, where many men are from necessity idleness, to the vast wheatfields, where thousands of men are temporarily needed. At present the work of harvesting this enormous wheat crop is necessarily entrusted to a horde of irresponsible nomads, while almost every year thousands of bushels are lost for lack of sufficient helpers. The solution of the wheat harvesting problem is one to which the political economists and savants might well direct their attention.

The unpleasant experience which New Haven has passed through with its recent typhoid epidemic again emphasizes the great need which the public is so slow to realize of some adequate protection of the streams and waters used as sources of city supply. Much of the sickness of an epidemic nature, from which few towns are wholly free, can be traced to the impurities found in their water supply, but not until rivers have become polluted and the mischief is done do suffering communities appreciate their danger. Just now there are several instances of such pollution cases of an extremely exaggerated form in New England and the middle states. The most noted of these are the Blackstone in Massachusetts and Rhode Island, the Housatonic in Massachusetts and Connecticut and the Passaic in New Jersey. These are all receiving the serious attention of the authorities. But the many and perplexing difficulties which have been encountered and the great amount of time consumed in all attempts to cleanse these streams ought to stand as a warning to other sections so afflicted. They should urge every city to look to the condition of its own supply, and if the existing laws are found inadequate to protect them they should demand legislation which will meet all emergencies. The matter is too important to be neglected.

The fact that several gamblers who were released on bail by Justice Jerome of New York have fled the city and that the bail bonds have been found uncollectible has called attention to the loose laws governing this class of bonds. The defect should be remedied as soon as possible, but in the meantime some effort should be made to ascertain the value of a bond when one is offered. If the property is sold or transferred after the lien is made, there is palpable effort to defraud, and it should be easy to punish the offender.

Now that J. Pierpont Morgan has permitted President Loubet of France to hold a private audience with him he should extend the same courtesy to King Edward of England and Emperor William of Germany. In the distribution of his favors Mr. Morgan should avoid any partiality which might be construed as a slight which may lead to international complications.

A West Virginia man who was recently sent to the poorhouse by his seventeenth wife, who was unable to support him, has just eloped with one of the female attendants of the institution. This fellow seems to be carrying the marrying habit to an unwarrantable extreme.

St. Andrews, one of the Scotch universities to share in Mr. Carnegie's $10,000,000 gift, was the first institution of learning to bestow the doctor's degree upon Benjamin Franklin. Americans are glad to learn of its present good fortune.

What Constitutes Libel?

A decision as to what constitutes a libelous publication within the meaning of the law has recently been handed down by the Maryland court of appeals, which should lead persons in the state employing private amanuenses and stenographers to use great care as to the subject matter of dictated letters. According to this decision, which is the first judicial deliverance of a state court of last resort touching the point involved, the publication of a letter dictated and typewritten containing libelous matter is legally complete, although its contents have not been made known to any person other than the stenographer. The court ruled:

Neither the prevalence of any business customs or methods nor the pressure of business which compels resort to stenographic assistance can make that legal which is illegal nor make that innocent which would otherwise be actionable. Nor can the fact that the stenographer is under contractual or moral obligation to regard all his employer's communications as confidential alter the reason of the matter.

Under the ruling publicity within the meaning and intent of the libel law of Maryland is sufficiently accomplished when the objectionable matter is dictated to the stenographer. The libel is "published" under such circumstances as fully for legal purposes as though it were printed in a newspaper and published broadcast. No case presenting the same facts appears to have been before the courts of any other state for adjudication.

If the decision of the Maryland appellate court should be construed as "good law" by the courts of other states, it is important that the people who follow the quite universal practice of employing stenographers and typewriters as confidential secretaries and amanuenses should use care and discretion in their dictations.

According to the census reports from Australia, the population of that country is increasing at a satisfactory though moderate rate. These reports show a total population of 4,550,651, a gain of 740,756 since the enumeration of 1891. While the new commonwealth is adding to its inhabitants at the rate of about 20 per cent in the decade the Canadas are increasing at the rate of nearly 40 per cent in the decade. Australia begins the twentieth century with a population about the same as Ireland's and a trifle less than that with which the United States began the nineteenth century. It is filling up, however, very differently from the way our continent did. Instead of being a distinctively agrarian community the sparse population is largely grouped in a few great cities, in Victoria colony, for instance, the capital, Melbourne, containing nearly 40 per cent of all the inhabitants. This condition is similar to that presented by the Argentine Republic, which lies in about the same latitude. Despite the money and effort devoted to state development of the interior, and perhaps because of both, the Australian people have not shown the boldness and independent spirit of the American pioneer in penetrating their wildernesses. They cling to the coast and to urban employment, but it is possible that under the more liberal political regime of the federation there will be greater development of the country.

The Russian government submits a proposition for a joint loan by the powers to China to enable that empire to pay the indemnities which they have exacted. This proposition is not likely to be regarded very favorably in Washington as implying entangling relations with foreign powers. A better arrangement is suggested—namely, that each power take as much of the loan as its own claim amounts to, all agreeing that, in the event of failure on the part of China to pay, the loss shall be divided in proportion to the claims of each. They are also to agree that no one power shall take measures to collect its claim without the consent of the others. This would measurably obviate any entanglement with the powers, which it is the policy of this government to prevent.

Despite the pronouncement of the supreme court of the United States there is still a diversity of view as to whether the constitution follows the flag, but all competent judges concur in the opinion that the Constitution will not follow the Shamrock, though it may possibly follow Independence.

Upon sailing for Europe the other day the Rev. Dr. Parkhurst told the reporters that New York "as it stands today is the most rotten city in the world." Considering all his efforts at purification for these many years, the good doctor is rather uncomplimentary to himself.

So many expeditions are in search of the north pole or about to start in that direction that it is feared there won't be enough of it for souvenirs for all to bring home. However, the old rule will probably hold true that the one who sees it first can have it.

The Depopulation of Ireland.

The figures of the census of the United Kingdom, which have lately been made public, are not encouraging to the people of Ireland and their sympathizers throughout the world. For the first time in the history of Ireland and Scotland the population of the former has been outnumbered by that of the latter, the relative figures being: Scotland, 4,471,957; Ireland, 4,456,546.

Irishmen generally attribute to the "union" forced upon them by England the decay which has marked their history as a people since then and the fate which now seems to threaten their national existence. That the falling off in population is coincident with the direct control by England cannot be gainsaid. In 1821, when the legislative union with England had been only 20 years in existence, the population of Ireland amounted to 6,801,827, while that of Scotland was only 2,091,521. In 1871, only 30 years ago, Ireland's population numbered 5,421,377, so that it has lost 1,000,000 people, or one-fifth of its inhabitants, within the memory of men not yet reached middle life.

England and Wales, which only numbered 12,000,000 in 1821, or less than twice the population of Ireland, now number 32,526,716, or nearly eight to one. And yet the taxation of England per head, which in 1819 amounted to £3 10s. 3d., had been reduced in 1894 to £2 4s. 10d., while that of Ireland, which in 1819 was only 14s. 5d. per head, had increased in 1894 to £1 8s. 10d. and, owing to the South African war, will be much higher this year. The total taxation of Ireland, which in 1893, when a British royal commission reported that she was being overtaxed £3,000,000, reached £7,568,649, will this year amount to more than £9,500,000.

These figures are not pleasant reading for those who hope for a better fate for a brave, generous, liberty-loving race than the expatriation and loss of identity as a distinct national factor which must ultimately be the outcome of the continuance of the present rate of depopulation and overtaxation.

Prompt Justice.
In the "History of Beverly," Mass., the following anecdote is related of a good justice of the peace in the old colonial times. On a cold night in winter a traveler called at his house for lodging. The ready hospitality of the justice was about being displayed, when the traveler unthinkingly uttered a word which his host considered profane.

Upon this he informed his guest that he was a magistrate, pointed out the nature of the offense and explained the necessity of its being expiated by sitting an hour in the stocks.

Remonstrance was unavailing, for custom at that time allowed the magistrate to convict and punish at once, and in this case he acted as accuser, witness, jury, judge and sheriff, all in one. Cold as it was our worthy justice, aided by his son, conducted the traveler to the place of punishment, an open place near the meeting house where the stocks were placed. Here the traveler was confined in the usual manner, the benevolent executor of the law remaining with him to beguile the time of its tedious by edifying conversation.

At the expiration of the hour he was reconducted to the house and hospitably entertained till the next morning, when the traveler departed with, let us hope, a determination to consider his words more carefully before giving them utterance in the hearing of a conscientious magistrate.

Testing the Schoolmaster.
In the town records of the city of Boston there is a curious passage which records how a schoolmaster was examined and what happened. The manner in which the visit of inspection is recorded makes one incline to the view that the unlucky schoolmaster may not have had fair play, although if he was really inefficient he may be said to have been judged by his peers.

In the record for the 22d of May, 1722, it is set forth that:

"Coll Peir Townsend, Jeremiah Allen Esqr., & John Edwards together with the Select men, Vissited the writing School at the Southerly End of Boston on Thursday the 24th April 1722. and Examined the Scholars under Mr Amos Angers tuition as to their proficiency in Reading writing Scyphering & the masters ability of teaching & instructing youth his rules & methods. Therefore And are of Opinion That it will be no Service to the Town to Continue Mr Anger in that Employ."

Whereupon it was voted that the said Mr. Amos Anger should not continue master of the "Said South school."

It is true that nothing is said of the methods of spelling inculcated at the "writing school," and it is also possible that a clerk rather than the committee was responsible for the errors of the record, but there is certainly something absurd in the passage as it stands.

Minister Conger says that Minister Wu deserves the gratitude of the American people. If we can get even with Mr. Wu with a card of thanks, we will be getting off cheap. Considering the acumen he has shown, it would not be surprising if he should present a bill for all the expert advice that he has been furnishing us from time to time.

Pictures of the Earl of Yarmouth, known historically as Eric Hope, do not much resemble the traditional "belted earl," but he seems to have pretty effectively belted the defendant in a libel suit—a New York newspaper, from which he obtained a verdict for $2,500 damages.

Miss Ruth Neville visited with relatives in Nunda Wednesday.

Wm. Marble of Grayslake was a pleasant caller here Saturday.

J. Cummings transacted business in the city the first of the week.

Reuben Plagge of Barrington was a pleasant caller here Saturday.

Alfred North of Chicago was the guest of his parents the first of the week.

Mrs. L. E. Hughes of Dixon is spending the week with her parents, Dr. and Mrs. C. R. Wells.

Miss Lillian Tidmarsh returned home Wednesday, after a few days' visit with relatives in Elgin.

FOR SALE—Fine large house and desirable lot in Evanston. M. C. McIntosh, 420 Ashland Block, Chicago.

Miss Lillian Aynsley of Diamond Lake was the guest of Miss Lora Harrison Wednesday and Thursday of this week.

Barrington will celebrate the 4th in a royal manner. Make preparations to go to Barrington July 4. You'll not regret it.

E. L. Harrison and sister, Miss Lora Harrison, came out from Chicago on Saturday to spend a few weeks' vacation in our village.

Miss Priscilla Davlin, who has conducted the Bennett school for the past year, closed her final term by tendering her pupils a picnic.

That boy in the center of the county was taken by the Methodists to the Wauconda church and there, but it was the other fellow's girl, "Oh, I beg your pardon," and she was just as angry.

Our school has closed for the summer. The intermediate room, of which Miss Tidmarsh was instructor, closed Friday, but the advanced and primary rooms had missed a day and therefore school was held Saturday.

Wallace Wood, who will be remembered by many of our people, having resided here for several years, committed suicide at his home in Elgin Saturday. He was a thrice married man, his first wife having secured a divorce and he was then married to a young lady in Elgin, who died. He took her sister for a third wife, who survives him.

Miss Estella Grace went to Chicago Wednesday to attend the funeral of her cousin, formerly Miss Alice Grace, but had joined the Catholic sisterhood and was a nun in a convent at St. Louis. The young lady will, no doubt, be remembered by many of our people, she having visited here a few years ago and was an estimable young woman and we extend our sincere sympathy to the bereaved family.

A basket social at the Flint Creek school Tuesday evening under the auspices of Miss Wilnot and pupils marked the close of the school year. A large crowd was present and standing room was at a premium. A fine program was rendered, after which the baskets were sold. Mr. Wilnot of Waukegan, acting as auctioneer and filled the position in a most admirable manner. The gross receipts footed up to $23.

The ball game Saturday at Bang's park between Cary and the Wauconda Juniors resulted in a score of 18 to 14 in favor of Cary. The Cary team is composed of players nearly twice the size of our boys, but notwithstanding this fact, the game was close and a tenth inning was necessary to finish the game. The Juniors play with Libertyville on the home grounds Tuesday and a very interesting game is promised.

CARPENTERSVILLE.

Miss Carrie Dahlbom returned this week to Chicago.

Herman Arndt and family were visitors from Lake Zurich.

Mrs. Kate Runyan of Elgin was a visitor Friday of last week.

Attend the celebration at Barrington July 4th. A genuine old-time celebration is promised.

The ladies of the W. C. T. U. of this place and Dundee enjoyed a picnic at Pottawattamie Park Tuesday.

Miss Leora Hawley graduated at Dundee Thursday evening. She was honored by being given the salutatory.

Invitations have been issued for the marriage of Alicia Whittaker to Will Oatman, son of Frank Oatman of Dundee.

Miss Leora Hawley and Miss Flora Mitchell played a duet at the recital at the Baptist church on Wednesday evening.

Imitators have been many. Thoughtful people have learned that true merit comes only with the genuine Rocky Mountain Tea made by Madison Medicine Co. 35c. Ask your druggist.

COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES.

but this is a good thing for it will help the teacher to look forward to what his ideal might and ought to be. Literature fixes the ideals of the ages. It is the duty of the mind to subtract, add, combine and re-create. If you could take away the selfishness of Napoleon and leave his energy, or if you could add to Julius Caesar the moral patriotism of Alfred the Great; if to Tennyson could be combined the perseverance, bravery and purity he could fashion for us the knightly ideal of King Arthur. Then they would be nearer their ideals.

Ruskin is the great nineteenth century leader of noble social ideals. He wrote this simple, but beautiful passage: "Because I have spent my life in almsgiving, not in fortune hunting; because I have always labored for the honor of others; not of my own; because I have lowered my rents and assured the comfortable lives of my poor tenants, instead of taking from them all I could force for the roofs they needed and would rather watch a sea gull fly than shoot it, and rather hear a thrush sing than eat it, therefore the backs of England art and literature shook their heads at me."

Just such ideals leave their traces on humanity. Today the world places laurel wreaths on Ruskin's grave.

Coming Problems.

Even since the French revolution, in which France beheaded the queen, freed herself of the monarchy and established the republic, she has suffered and is still suffering from a plague known as social parasitism. It is due to three types of society—the shiftless, the idle and the parasites. She is not the only country afflicted, but it seems to be the true danger against which she is compelled to battle during the coming century and which she must destroy if she would escape the perils which beset the existence of nations. After the monarchy was overthrown the nobility was abolished. They were unaccustomed and, at the same time, unwilling to work, for they claimed the right to live at the expense of the nation, hence the name parasite. As soon as one generation of this class disappears another one rises to take its place and to continue the destructive work. These throngs of individuals, discontent, and with an insatiable thirst, are ever ready to attack the existing authority and are striving to upset the rulers and restore the government to an absolute monarchy for the sake of finding a position, or reaping an advantage. In order that humanity may progress and continue its onward march toward the supreme ideal of creation this parasitism must disappear. The suppression of this malady is the most pressing and serious problem with which this century will have to deal and the solution thereof will determine the destiny of afflicted nations.

No thoughtful person need to think that the Austria Hungary of today will continue to remain what it now is after the death of Francis Joseph. On the morrow of his death a war will break out which will change the map of Europe. With the disappearance of the direct heir to the throne all possibility of a peaceful succession has passed away. Just how the war will occur cannot be foreseen, but it is inevitable and any circumstance may light the spark.

JULIA M. BOLLENBACH.

A resident in a small suburban town had a visit from a German friend who knew little English, but played the violin well. One of this resident's neighbors gave a "musical," and of course he and his visitor were invited. The German took his violin, and when his turn came he played one of his best pieces from one of the great masters.

When he had finished, there was an awkward silence and no applause. The people were still looking expectantly at the German, who looked disappointed and flustered. The silence grew painful.

Finally the hostess, quite red in the face, edged over to the side of the German's friend.

"Can't you get him to?" she whispered.

"What do you mean?"

"Why, now that he's got tuned up, isn't he going to play something?"—London Tit-Bits.

His Late Hours.

"You never think of staying out late," said the convivial and ill bred person.

"Sometimes I think of it," answered Mr. Meekton distantly.

"But you don't care for that sort of thing."

"Not in the least."

"Perhaps you never had any experience?"

"Oh, yes, I have. It was only last night that I was out at half past 2 a. m. Henrietta sent me out to see if I couldn't get the back gate from slamming."—Washington Star.

A Telltale Boast.

Nell—She used to boast that she was one of the charter members of the Woman's Suffrage club. She doesn't appear to be as proud of it now.

Belle—Oh, she's just as proud, but you know, the club was organized 15 years ago, and she must have been at least 20 when she joined.—Philadelphia Record.

The Independence of Cuba.

The republic of Cuba will soon take its place in the sisterhood of nations as an independent political entity, subject to certain limitations exacted by the United States, whose war with Spain made "Cuba libre" a present possibility. The Cubans might ultimately have won their independence from Spain without the aid of the United States, but it is reasonably certain that a victorious end of the struggle for freedom which has continued almost since the earliest settlement of the island would not have come so soon had not the United States intervened to put a stop to an intolerable situation.

The acceptance by the Cuban constitutional convention of the conditions required by the United States, known as the Platt amendment, opens the way for the speedy recognition of Cuba's independence. The limitations thus placed upon Cuba's sovereignty are briefly these:

1. That the government of Cuba shall never enter into any treaty or other compact with any foreign power or powers which will impair or tend to impair the independence of Cuba nor in any manner authorize or permit any foreign power or powers to obtain by colonization or for military or naval purposes or otherwise judgment in or control over any portion of said island.
2. That said government shall not assume or contract any public debt to pay the interest upon which and to make reasonable sinking fund provision for the ultimate discharge of which the ordinary revenues of the island after defraying the current expenses of government shall be inadequate.
3. That the government of Cuba consents that the United States may exercise the right to intervene for the preservation of Cuban independence, the maintenance of a government adequate for the protection of life, property and individual liberty and for discharging the obligations with respect to Cuba imposed by the treaty of Paris on the United States, now to be assumed and undertaken by the government of Cuba.
4. That all acts of the United States in Cuba during its military occupancy thereof are ratified and validated, and all lawful rights acquired thereunder shall be maintained and protected.
5. That the government of Cuba will execute, and as far as necessary extend, the plans already devised or other plans to be mutually agreed upon for the sanitation of the cities of the island, to the end that a recurrence of epidemic and infectious diseases may be prevented, thereby assuring protection to the people and commerce of Cuba as well as to the commerce of the southern ports of the United States and the people residing therein.
6. That the Isle of Pines shall be omitted from the proposed constitutional boundaries of Cuba and the title thereto left to future adjustment by treaty.
7. That to enable the United States to maintain the independence of Cuba and to protect the people thereof as well as for its own defense the government of Cuba will sell or lease to the United States lands necessary for coaling or naval stations at certain specified points to be agreed upon with the president of the United States.

To the third clause of the Platt amendment the Cuban convention made this addendum: That the intervention referred to "shall suppose neither sovereignty nor a protectorate and shall only last sufficiently long to establish normal conditions. Said intervention, it is also understood, shall not have the right to interfere in the government, but only the right to preserve independence." An addition to the seventh clause says that "it shall be understood that the naval stations do not give the United States the right to intervene in the interior government, but are established with the sole purpose of protecting American waters from foreign invasion directed against Cuba or the United States." In conclusion it is provided that the government of Cuba suggest a treaty of commerce based upon reciprocity.

The longest steamship route in the world is the one which was established between Tacoma, on Puget sound, and Liverpool via the Suez canal. This is much more than a voyage half round the world, since the distance to Liverpool from Tacoma by proceeding directly eastward is much shorter than by going directly westward. Besides this, a great deflection from the direct route has to be made in order that the steamships may pass through the Indian ocean and enter the Red sea. It is probable that a line of this kind would find it difficult to profitably maintain itself if it were not for the possibilities of obtaining freight for intervening ports, as it is the intention of the steamers to stop at the Philippines, the Straits Settlements, Ceylon and one or two different points on the shores of the Mediterranean sea. The establishment of this line is another instance of the great and growing activity of the commerce of the Pacific ocean, which is becoming every year more and more a thoroughfare of American trade.

Italy has sent an ultimatum to the sultan of Turkey, which, it is asserted, will be followed by warships unless the latter makes prompt reparations for the arrest of an Italian postal agent. Ultimatums do not bother the sultan very much, but a warship might set him to thinking.

It is now stated that Mr. Schwab's salary is only $800,000 a year, or $200,000 less than was first reported. Doubtless he may be able to get along on this salary, but as he is regarded as a deserving young man he may have reason to hope for an early increase.

According to Professor Starr of the University of Chicago, "parting the hair in the middle is one of the evidences of the alarming and growing degeneracy of our civilization." It might be intimated that Professor Starr is hairbrained.

The sultan has changed his mind and caused to be rescinded the recent order prohibiting the importation of typewriters into Turkey. Possibly Abdul Hamid has learned of the fascinations of the American variety.

According to the records of the great steamship lines which carry passengers across the ocean, immigration is having a decided boom. Without exception, these transatlantic steamers are bringing more immigrants just now than they have had to carry in many years. Each of the big vessels arriving at New York brings with it from 1,000 to 2,000 Europeans, who are coming to make their homes and, if possible, their fortunes in the United States. As has been the case for a number of years, a large proportion of these new citizens are natives of the south of Europe or of some one of the Slavonic countries. In the past the Italians and Slavs who have been concentrated in mines and quarries have sometimes proved to be a dangerous and undesirable element; but, as a rule, their children are staunch supporters of American institutions and ideas. So far the United States has found no great difficulty in assimilating all the varied races which have gone to make up its heterogeneous population, and there seems to be no reason to fear that the country will suffer from the present revival of immigration.

Yellow fever has made its appearance officially in Havana, and science will now have a first class opportunity for giving it a discouraging blow at the start. Havana is in a far better sanitary condition than it has been at any time for 300 years, and with a fair field science may be depended upon to speedily get the better of the disease.

The Indiana preacher who allowed his boy to fight another boy to settle a quarrel was delighted when his boy thrashed the other boy, but when the licked boy's father licked the preacher the good man appealed to a court. Alas for the inconsistency of human nature!

As between czar and kaiser and a target for bullets or a plain, everyday American ruler who is not afraid to go about among the people, the balance seems inclined at present toward the latter.

It may be noted that the political machinists never strike for few hours of labor. Their only demand is for more pay.

ECONOMY

Is in itself a great revenue.

But economy does not necessarily mean to look for the cheapest article on the market. Cheap materials are dear even as a gift. Pure white lead and oil paints have more substitutes and imitations than other material. The chief adulteration of white lead is Barytes, a ground crystalline, without opacity or body, and to buy this stuff is like throwing money away, because if it is desired to use a good paint afterwards, there will be no foundation to which it can adhere. Heath & Milligan's paints have been the standard for 47 years and are guaranteed to be the best; that's the reason we handle that brand.

Best Prepared Paint.

Has a world-wide reputation to sustain. It is the highest product of a half-century's successful experience in the paint business. It is the backbone of our trade. The Best Prepared Paint is a painter's paint and is largely used by practical workmen in preference to the old method of mixing by hand. It is more convenient and profitable for them as well as the consumer.

Put up in gallon, half-gallon and quart cans. 52 handsome colors to select from.

Family Prepared Paint.

Mildred Trevanion

BY THE DUCHESS.

CHAPTER IX.—(Continued.)

As for Mildred, no sooner had the words crossed her lips than she disdained herself for the utterance of them, and wished them back unsaid.

Ever since that fatal night in the library Denzil and she had lived seemingly unscathed and unharmed by each other, as distinctly remote as though spheres had separated them, instead of so many rooms or feet, as the case might be. Now she felt that, by this one rash, uncalculated act, she had done away with all the good so many silent days had helped to accomplish.

Nevertheless, having once given her word Mildred felt that she must abide by it, and appeared at the breakfast table next morning, to all outward seeming as imperturbable as usual.

Eddie had also risen betimes to see his friend depart, and rattle on in his usual style all through the dismal meal, leaving no space for the other two to express their opinions, had they been so inclined. At length, a footman entering to announce the arrival of the dog-cart at the hall door, Eddie rose to see to Denzil's further comfort, and so left him and Mildred at last alone.

He came toward her, and, taking both her hands, held them with a clasp that amounted almost to pain.

"Think of me kindly," he said, in a low tone full of acute meaning.

"I will," she said.

"Is it quite hopeless, Mildred?"

"You will be late for your train," murmured Miss Trevanion, very gently.

So it fell out that King's Abbott was once more bereft of guests; and still the Trevanions were unhappy, because the very train that carried away—smugly encoined among its cushions—the unhappy Denzil, brought to Lady Caroline a letter that filled her gentle bosom with dire alarm.

The letter began, "My dear niece," and ended, "Your attached aunt, Harriet Dimesy." Its contents being to the effect that Lady Eggleton—Lady Caroline's aunt by the father's side—had generously made up her mind to sacrifice her pleasures, inclination, habits, and self generally for the purpose of bestowing her society upon her "dear niece" aforesaid. This was indeed a heavy blow, her ladyship—having attained the troublesome age of eighty-two—being one of those people whom to entertain is a kind of martyrdom.

As misfortunes never come single, it was just about this time also that Lady Caroline heard for the first time of Mildred's refusal of Denzil Younger. The girl had hitherto kept it nervously to herself, thinking of it now and then with mingled feelings of pain and something akin to pleasure, but outwardly suppressing all sign until this day, when Lady Caroline timidly and without preface touched on the subject of his evident admiration of her.

"It seems a pity you could not care for him, Mildred," she said, interrogatively, as though it were by no means a certainty that Mildred did not care for him; "we should all like it so much, and your father says—"

Mildred rose hastily and threw down her work, while two red spots appeared on her cheeks.

"Mamma," she said, "perhaps it will be better, and will put a stop to all further mention of this matter, if I tell you the truth. Mr. Younger did propose to me, and I refused him."

She finished almost defiantly and turned to leave the room.

"Mildred, is it possible?" exclaimed Lady Caroline.

"Oh, Milly!" cried Mabel, who was also present, with lively reproach and disapproval in her tone.

"Is it such a crime then? Has nothing of the kind ever been done before?" demanded Mildred, passionately; and then she went out, and left them to their wonderings and censures on her conduct.

When eventually Sir George was told the unlucky news, it rendered him at first furious, and then despairing. Things were becoming more embarrassed and entangled day by day, the immediate possession of a large sum of money being the only hope his lawyer could hold out to him of ultimately saving the estate; and, as affairs were, it would be a difficult if not impossible task to procure it. Denzil, with his immense wealth, was out of his great love for Mildred, would have thought little of lending twice the amount required. But now all that was changed, and Mildred's had been the hand to dash the hope aside.

Both he and Lady Caroline were strangely distant and unsympathetic to her in these days; her father irritably so, her mother with a sort of mournful gravity that touched her far more. Lord Lyndon, who at this period showed a tact and an adroitness that would have reflected honor on a cleverer man, managed to be perpetually at her side. His attentions were open and unmistakable, while he declared his inability to withdraw from her presence even for a time by the fact of his taking a shooting-box quite close to King's Abbott for the season.

All the little world of Clifton were beginning to look upon it as a settled matter, there being no mistake as to whom his devotion was given, as Roy Blount's wooing, and Mabel's acceptance of it, were very transparent things indeed; besides, just now, "the queen" was too much taken up with her own misgivings and tender reflections to admit of any division of her favors, young Blount having received orders to join his regiment, which was stationed in Ireland, without further delay; so that a week remained to them before "Farewell"—that saddest of all words—would have to be uttered.

This news had been communicated to Mabel in a doleful whisper, and had been received as dolefully. For once all coquetry was laid aside, and she confessed herself as miserable at the idea of his going as he could be to go.

CHAPTER X.

Lady Eggleton and her "train" arrived at King's Abbott, the "train" consisting of one long-suffering maid, one ditto man, one lapdog, and one dilapidated canary.

"The canary always means three months, does it not?" asked Eddie, tragically, as the cortege swept up the stairs.

Mildred burst into an unrestrainable laugh.

"Oh, what shall we do?" she gasped. "What is to become of us? A little of Lady Eggleton goes such a very long way. Mr. Blount—to Roy, who had walked over as usual, and who, having seen the procession, was enjoying the whole thing as much as any of them—"

"I will give you anything I possess, if you will show me some method of getting rid of her before Christmas time."

"And I will give you anything, if you will just take her out and tie her to a tree and deliberately shoot her," said Eddie, gloomily.

"Edward, how can you speak so disrespectfully of your grand-aunt?" put in Lady Caroline, reprovingly, walking away, her face covered with smiles.

For a week everything had gone on smoothly, or rather there had been no actual outbreaks on the part of Lady Eggleton, though smothered hints and comments had been numerous. In a covert manner she inveighed against actions, habits, acquaintances, and all that came beneath her notice, but carefully subdued any open demonstrations of disapproval until the day before Roy's departure, when she chose to be particularly offensive.

Blount had come over rather earlier than usual, it being his last day, and he and Mabel had gone for a farewell walk among the shrubberies and through the winter gardens where they had loved to linger all through their hurried courtship. As he was not to leave until a late train the following day, he parted from her with the assurance that he would be down the next morning.

Slightly flushed and wholly miserable, Mabel entered the small drawing room, where she found her mother, Mildred, and Lady Eggleton assembled. "How heated you look, child! What have you been doing with yourself?" demanded the old lady, the moment she came within her view.

"Walking," returned Mabel, shortly. "With that young man again, I presume?"

"granted her grand-aunt, ominously; whereupon Lady Caroline began to look uneasy.

"I was walking with Mr. Blount," said "the queen," defiantly. She was sore at heart, and longing for sympathy, so that the old woman's words and manner grated cruelly on her overwrought feelings.

"I really think all decency and order have gone from the world," went on Lady Eggleton. "Society nowadays is widely different from what it once was. Even common propriety is a thing of the past. In my time a young woman would scarcely be allowed, under any circumstances, to walk alone with a young man for hours together—certainly not unless they were formally betrothed, having the consent of all parties concerned—and probably not even then. I presume he has made you an offer of marriage?"

Mildred rose, as if to interfere; but Mabel spoke again.

"People in your time must have been very depraved people indeed. Aunt Harriet," she said, with ill-suppressed indignation, "if they could make mischief out of a simple walk with one's friend. At all events, I am very glad I live in the days I do; and, if you are particularly anxious to know, I will tell you that Mr. Blount has not made me an offer of marriage, as you call it."

Her ladyship was triumphant. "Has he not?" she said. "Then, if I were you, my dear, I would have as little more to say to him as possible. Young men who dilly-dally, and put off the evil hour, as he appears to be doing, seldom or never mean anything. I dare say he is only agreeably willing away his time down here, and will think no more of you once his back is turned."

Mabel was choking with rage, but could think of nothing to say. Lady Caroline, who sat a little behind her aunt, put out her hand to her daughter with a gesture of sympathetic affection, but she was nervously afraid of this terrible old woman, and knew not how to interfere effectually.

"Young men now are not what young men were," continued Lady Eggleton, impressively, "and I think Mr. Blount one of the worst specimens I have yet seen. His manners are so cool; and he is so insolently self-possessed; and he has none of the well-bred diffidence, the courtly elegance that distinguished the men of my generation. He is not half good enough for you, my dear, even were he in earnest, which I am pleased to consider extremely doubtful. I will receive you for a month or two, Mabel," declared her ladyship, magnificently, "and introduce you to those with whom you ought to associate. You shall return with me to my home, and gain those advantages that this secluded country place can never afford."

"Your ladyship is wonderfully kind," returned Mabel, "but I find 'this secluded country place' quite good enough for my tastes. Besides, I could not dream of accepting your invitation."

"May I ask why not?" demanded her grand-aunt, majestically.

"Because there is nothing in the world to which I should more strenuously object than to spend two months in your ladyship's society," answered Mabel.

"You wicked girl!" almost screamed Lady Eggleton, rising and supporting herself on her gold-headed stick while she quivered with anger. "How dare you presume so to speak to me! Caroline, why do you not order her to leave the room? Am I, at my age, and after all the sacrifices I have made for my family, to submit to the impertinence of a chit of a girl like that?"

"Poor Lady Caroline was terrified. "Dear Aunt Harriet, she did not mean it," she said—"she did not, indeed—did you, Mabel? Speak, darling, and tell her it was all a mistake."

"She shall apologize to me, or I will leave this house, never to enter it again," protested Aunt Harriet, still raging.

"So she will, I am sure. Mabel, my dearest, tell your grand-aunt how sorry you are for having used the language you did," said Lady Caroline, imploringly—"apologize to her."

"Apologize for what?" demanded Mabel. "She asked me to pay her a visit, and I declined. She then inquired my reasons, and I gave them. I do not see that any apology is necessary. However," she went on, turning toward the old lady, and executing an impertinent little courtesy, "if it will in any way gratify you, I will beg your pardon, and admit that I am extremely sorry to think I was the cause of putting you in such a dreadful temper."

Lady Caroline, after considerable difficulty, having managed to smooth down the old lady's ruffled plumage, she consented to forgive and forget, and once more peace was restored.

But Mabel, when the terrible "last hour" came the following day, though she never for a moment doubted Royston, yet felt somehow shy and constrained, remembering vividly that one little biting question of Lady Eggleton's, as to whether he had ever made her the requisite offer of marriage.

Meantime Roy's sorrow had swallowed up all nervousness and every other sentiment, leaving him only able to hold her hands and entreat that she would never forget him.

"I shall be back soon," he said—"so soon that you will scarcely have time to miss me; and meanwhile I shall write by every post, and you will do likewise, will you not?"

To which she had returned a sad, half-reluctant "Yes."

Had he been less wrapped up in sad thoughts about the coming parting, he might perhaps have fancied his love somewhat cold and cruel; but, as it was, he saw nothing. Presently he spoke the words that, had they been uttered yesterday, would have caused his "queen" to stand in such a different light before her tormentor.

"Shall I write to your father?" he asked. "You know, Mabel, it is time there was some decided understanding between us. Shall I ask your father's consent to a regular engagement, darling?"

"Yes," Mabel answered, partly comforted—"I suppose it will be best; then, sadly breaking down, "Oh, Roy, what shall I do without you?"

After this there ensued fond words and lingering caresses, and warm assurances of never-dying love; and then they kissed their last fond kiss and parted.

CITY PEOPLE CURIOUS.

Colored Man's Song Nearly Blocks Traffic in New York.

It was only a song, and an old one at that, but it came near causing a block on the Broadway cable line the other day. The singer was as black as the coal in the cart he was driving, but that fact cast no shadow on his exuberant spirits. As he swung his chariot from Broadway into Cortlandt street he raised his voice, says the New York Mail and Express. Then the trouble began. When the notes of "Old Black Joe" rang out high and clear above the dip of traffic expressions of blank amazement overspread the faces of the hurrying pedestrians who thronged the sidewalks. Necks were craned in a vain search for the location of some newly patented phonograph. Crowds collected and gazed vacantly into the air, as if they expected to locate the sound in some office window. Teams were drawn up until a long line of trucks extended into Cortlandt street to Broadway, barring access to the street, that their drivers might ascertain the cause of the crowd's curiosity. Suddenly a newboy cried: "Ah, rubber! Don'tcher see it's only de nigger a-singin'?" The crowd laughed. The darky, now lustily holding forth on "The Swannee River," turned sharply into Church street, totally oblivious to the excitement he had caused. The crowd then dispersed, and the long line of wagons began to move once more. "Well!" exclaimed a Jerseyman on his way to the ferry, "New Yorkers call country people curious, but—" He shrugged his shoulders and passed on.

A Bust of John A. Dahlgren.

Mr. George E. Bissell of New York has just finished a bronze bust of the late Rear Admiral John A. Dahlgren, which is pronounced to be an excellent portrait and an admirable piece of work from an art standpoint. The bust will form a part of the Smith memorial monument, which is to cost about $225,000, and take rank among the finest public monuments in the country. The monument proper has already been erected in Fairmount Park, but all of the figures and busts which are to adorn it have not yet been put in place. The monument may be unveiled July 4.—Philadelphia Press.

St. Thomas' Protestant Episcopal Church.

St. Thomas' Protestant Episcopal church is to be congratulated on the acceptance by the Rev. Ernest M. Stires of Chicago of the call to be its rector, says the New York Press. That Dean Robbins of Albany refused the rectoryship has been the cause of deep regret, and in view of the prolonged vacancy and the difficulty of finding one fitted for the important and exacting position the outlook has been rather discouraging. Mr. Stires has a brilliant record of work done in Chicago, and since his election by the vestry of St. Thomas' much anxiety has been felt regarding his acceptance. Within a few days the question has been decided, however, and although many regrets are felt by his church in Chicago, the host of friends he has made among the clergy and laity of the city and diocese, Grace church reluctantly but with prayers for his success has accepted his resignation, leaving him free to accept the call of St. Thomas'. Mr. Stires will continue his official relations with his Chicago parish until September, when he will enter upon his duties at St. Thomas'.

Third Rail Will Solve Problem.

If claims of E. W. Farnham of the "Burlington" road for his third rail device for surface electric cars are fully established by practical tests there is little doubt that his invention will completely revolutionize electric street railway traction in this country.

The third rail in a system of electric traction corresponds to the overhead wire in the trolley system. It is more dangerous, however, than the overhead trolley by reason of its location. The voltage in the overhead trolley and in the third rail is high enough to be fatal to human beings and other animals, but the former is supposed to be beyond the reach of anyone and hence the danger is comparatively slight. Owing to the mechanical necessities of the device it was never deemed possible to insulate the trolley wire or the third rail.

In Mr. Farnham's invention we have what appears to be a "dead" third rail; at least that portion directly under the car is the only portion of the third rail that is alive. By an ingenious mechanism consisting of two "shoes" which fit the third rail the circuit is alternately opened and closed. As soon as the shoe leaves one rail to pass to the next one the rail which it leaves becomes "dead" again, a switch forcing it back into place. Until a shoe of the motor car touches this "dead trolley feeder" the electric current, which propels the cars, does not become manifest. The third rail, as it lies on the ground, is therefore without electric current and may be touched or stepped upon with safety. It is easy to see the traction possibilities of such a device. By its use the power current can be applied safely above the surface, on the surface, in a conduit between tracks or beneath them. It is also apparent that it will result in great economy of electrical energy through the non-charging of the rails except when a car is directly over them.

South's Political Effacement.

A prominent Tennessee man, Laps D. McCord, has been sending out circular letters to newspapers in the Southern states and over a large part of the rest of the country asking how much longer Southern men are going to be excluded from favors in Democratic national conventions. The query is timely. Its author declares or intimates that he will "make a simultaneous demand all over the South for the nomination of a Southern man for President." He finds, on looking over the list, that no Southern man has been elected President by the Democrats for over half a century, and he takes the sensible view that this exclusion of men from his section from the prizes of Democratic national conventions has been carried on long enough, and that a change ought to be made at once. It is his aim to influence public sentiment in the South so that that section will insist on the nomination of a President from below Mason and Dixon's line in the Democratic convention of 1904.

The Golf Season Opened.

Imp—What amuses you, sire? Beelzebub—I see they've had to put on an extra force of recording angels up above since the golf season opened.

In the chief room of every Japanese house there is a slightly raised dais, which is arranged so that it can be shut off from the rest of the room. This is a place for the emperor to sit should he ever visit that home.

Photographing Closed Pages.

Library rules ordinarily forbid the removal of valuable books and engravings from the premises, so that there is trouble in obtaining photographic copies of pictures or plates, the introduction of artificial light, or even of a camera being commonly prohibited. A method of getting over this difficulty, which has been tried recently with success, is to coat a piece of cardboard with a phosphorescent substance, and, after sufficient exposure to the sun, place it at the back of the picture to be reproduced. Then (supposing that the picture is in a book) a dry plate is put against the face of it, and the volume is closed. This can be managed very easily by manipulating the dry plate under a cloth that covers the book.

The dry plate is allowed to remain from eighteen to sixty minutes, according to the nature and thickness of the paper. Then it is withdrawn, under the cloth as before, and put into a dark box for subsequent development. It is stated by the inventor of this process that, if films are used instead of dry plates, a large number of copies of different engravings in the same book may be made at the same time.—Saturday Evening Post.

Couldn't Wear Shoes.

Sumpter, Ill., June 10th.—Mrs. J. B. Flanigan, of this place, had suffered with dropsy for fifteen years. She was so very bad that for the last three years she has not been able to wear her shoes. She had doctored all the time, but was gradually getting worse.

Last winter Mr. Flanigan, who was very much discouraged, called for some medicine at Mr. J. J. Dale's drug store in Carmi. Mr. Dale persuaded him to have his wife try Dodd's Kidney Pills, and he bought six boxes. His wife used five out of the six, before she was entirely cured. She is now as sound and as well as ever she was, completely restored to health, and free from any symptom whatever of dropsy.

To say that Mrs. Flanigan is pleased at her wonderful deliverance does not half express her feelings, and she and Mr. Flanigan are loud in their praises of Dodd's Kidney Pills, and of Mr. Dale for recommending this wonderful remedy to them.

The fact that Dodd's Kidney Pills cured Mrs. Flanigan of such a severe case of dropsy, after the doctors had given her up, has made them the most talked of remedy ever known in White county.

Officers who lose legs or arms in the service of the British army will hereafter be supplied with artificial limbs at the expense of the government.

Old Indian Mary

Character who lives near St. Joseph, Mich.

There is no woman in the northwest whose history stands out more prominently than does that of Mary Cochran, familiarly known as "Indian Mary," yet she is at present residing in a hotel at the edge of the village of Stevensville, a hamlet in the outskirts of St. Joseph, Mich. She is in straitened circumstances that approach dire poverty and as she is very old and probably will not live through the present year the authorities will take notice of her case and attempt to make easy the remainder of her life. She is the most unique character in Michigan. There is not a person in Chicago who lived there in the early days of the city who does not remember "Indian Mary." Time was in the early days when she was a familiar figure on the streets of Chicago, and there was one particular period when she was lauded as a heroine and the whole city talked of her. This was during the civil war, when she saved the life of Colonel Mulligan, the famous commander of the Mulligan Brigade, or "the Irish brigade," as it was familiarly known. Colonel Mulligan was severely wounded. The battle raged all day, 2,000 federal soldiers holding back 6,000 confederates until Mulligan fell. Mulligan was removed to Island No. 10, near Lexington, where he languished for want of medical help. There was no nurse to be found except "Indian Mary," who was with the army. She exerted her medical knowledge over the dying colonel and her Indian medicines saved him after several weeks' nursing and careful attention. "Indian Mary" served throughout the war in the capacity of nurse and had the awful experience of seeing her husband, William H. Cochran, a private in Co. L, Thirty-third Michigan infantry, shot for desertion. Captain Thomas H. Botham, now almost 100 years old, was captain of Cochran's company.

Mary Cochran is 75 years of age. Her mother was Julia La Salle of Detroit, a full-blooded squaw, and her grandfather, Jacob La Salle, was an Indian chief. She spent her early years in Chicago and in 1861 joined the federal army in the capacity of nurse. She entered the service under Colonel James McMillan and won credit for the bravery she displayed on several occasions. During the past thirty years she has lived in this section of the country, where she has in some way acquired the reputation of being a witch.

She has not been troubled by the society of her village, and her only companion in her little shack is a small dog. As a last resort the old lady has applied, through Justice St. Clair of this city, for a pension for her service during the civil war.

INDIAN MARY AND HER DOG, RUM.

SOME VIRGINIA BLUE LAWS.

Puritans New England Not the Only Stern Commonwealth.

The official public flogging of women in Virginia has aroused much unfavorable comment and many bitter remarks about "chivalry in the Old Dominion." As a matter of fact, says the New York Tribune, the incident is nothing more than a mild revival of the "blue laws" of Colonial times—laws surpassing in severity any attributed to Connecticut or any other Puritan colony. It has long been a by-word that in Connecticut a man was forbidden to kiss his wife on Sunday. But in Virginia any young woman who was guilty of flirtation or who encouraged more than one man to pay her sentimental attention was liable to be flogged! It was forbidden to speak evil of dignitaries in New England; but in Virginia if one ventured to criticize the governor he was put into the pillory. The straitlaced religiousness of the Puritans has been made fun of; but in Cavalier Virginia it was forbidden to "disparage a minister;" to take a voyage on Sunday save to church, or to fire a gun on Sunday, excepting to shoot an Indian. That the shooting of Indians, of course in defense of the colonists, was considered a proper function on the Sabbath is shown by the fact that every head of a family was required, under penalty to bring with him to church every Sunday a gun and plenty of ammunition. It is interesting to recall too, that speculating in the markets by "buying futures" was sternerly prohibited, under penalty of fine, imprisonment and the pillory. Since in old time in the "Kingdom of Virginia" maidens were flogged for flirting, there is no especial incongruity in applying the same punishment to women convicted of gross immoralities. Nevertheless, the best judgment of mankind must be that it was a performance which reflected no credit for those responsible for it. There are those who approve of the whipping post for the punishment of wife beaters and for certain other male offenses. But the official flogging of women, no matter how much they may have forfeited their title to womanhood, is altogether revolting. It is painful to recall that it was sanctioned and ordered by the grim pioneers of Wyatt's and Yearley's time. That it should be done for any cause in the first year of the 20th century is a shame for which Virginia may well blush.

An Easy Business to Enter.

While trusts are multiplying and the centralization of capital in all business is accepted as one of the inevitable conditions of the day, there is at least one business, cigarmaking, in which small capitalists can engage, says a New York cigar manufacturer. With a capital of $25 any cigarmaker can start in business as a manufacturer and while he may not become rich, can make a living. There are at least 2,500 cigar manufacturers in New York who work as journeymen when there is no demand for their services, and by the expenditure of a few dollars become manufacturers when work is slack. All that one of these small manufacturers needs in order to start in business is a few pounds of "wrapper" leaf, the same of "filler," and pound or so of "binders" and skill. He will have to get bondsmen, as each cigar manufacturer must have two securities in $1,000 each before he can get a license, but there is usually no difficulty in securing the bondsmen.

When the Marriage Knot Was Real.

Few of those who talk of the "marriage knot" realize that the knot was ever anything more than a mere figure of speech. Among the Babylonians trying the knot was part of the marriage ceremony. There the priest took a thread of the garment of the bride and another from that of the bridegroom and tied them into a knot, which he gave to the bride, thus symbolizing the binding nature of the union which now existed between herself and her husband.

From Lewly Station to High.

The Austrain Parliament has a member who was a waiter. Carl Mittermayer was elected to the Reichsrath four years ago, at a time when he was serving as a waiter in a small suburban restaurant. And there is a butcher in the British House of Commons. At least two members of parliament are grocers, and there are a dozen who were once laborers. The parliament of Vancouver has as its speaker a man who was once a coal miner in Northumberland.

Power of the Rothschilds.

Since 1850 the Rothschild family has raised for Great Britain alone more than $1,000,000,000; for Australia, $250,000,000; for Prussia, $200,000,000; for France, $400,000,000; for Italy, $300,000,000; for Russia, $125,000,000; for Brazil, $70,000,000. In 1895 they took $15,000,000 of the February loan of the United States through the Belmont-Morgan syndicate.

California state is 850 miles long, and contains 158,360 square miles.

A GLORIOUS SIGHT.

Fields of Wheat in Which the Shocks Were So Thick It Was Almost Impossible to Drive Between Them.

To the Editor: A gentleman from Buluth made a trip through a portion of Western Canada last summer and writing of what he saw, says:

"Wheat, for instance, will average twenty-five or thirty bushels to acre. I saw shocks so thick in the field that it would be almost impossible to drive between them. Winters, it is said are longer than near Duluth, but the Japan current, warm chinook winds and dry atmosphere make the winters comparatively mild."

Thousands of such testimonials are to be had from settlers who have taken advantage of the low-priced lands of Western Canada. During the present year new districts will be opened up in the Saskatchewan valley and advantage should be taken of this at once. Information can be had from any agent of the government, whose advertisement appears elsewhere in your columns. Yours truly,

Actually Manufacturing Marble.

Manufacturers are actually making marble by the same process by which nature makes it, only in a few weeks instead of a few thousand years. They take a rather soft limestone and chemically permeate it with various coloring matters, which sink into the stone, and are not a mere surface coloring, as in scagliola. The completed material takes a fine polish, and many of the specimens are of beautiful color and marking. Used as a veneer, it is about one-third the price of nature's marble.

GUARDING AGAINST MOTHS.

Mahogany Sawdust or Hot Sand Are Rubbed Into Furs.

To clean furs there are two practical and effective methods. One is by rubbing into the fur mahogany sawdust that has been first wet in benzine or gasoline; the other is by rubbing with hot sand. By means of either fur may be perfectly cleaned, explains the Woman's Home Companion. The sawdust used by furriers is what is called "veneering sawdust"; that is, it is from cutting across the grain, and is short and sand-like. This sawdust will not stick to fur like the long particles from cutting wood with the grain. It can be procured at hard-lumber saw-mills or from furriers. The sand used is that clean yellow kind, free from dust, as sea or lake shore sand, or such as is sometimes taken from sand hills. It should be made hot in a stove-oven to the degree that it can be borne by the hand—greater heat than that endangering the fur. After cleaning, furs should, of course, be beaten (with rattan beater) and aired—not sunned, for fear of fading. As for wool garments they should be carefully looked over first, and all that need cleaning be cleaned by a professional cleaner or by home measures. It is a mistake to put things away "to be cleaned in the fall"; it is simply an invitation to moths. Before cleaning wool garments should be well beaten, aired and sunned.

FOR SYSTEMIC CATARRH

Peculiar to Summer Pe-ru-na Gives Prompt and Permanent Relief.

Clem G. Moore, Editor of the Advocate-Democrat of Crawfordsville, Ga., writes the Peruna Medicine Company as follows:

Gentlemen—"After four years of intense suffering, caused by systemic catarrh, which I contracted while editing, and traveling for my paper, I have been greatly relieved by the use of Peruna. I gave up work during those years of torture, tried various remedies and many doctors, but all the permanent relief came from the use of Peruna. My trouble was called indigestion, but it was catarrh all through my system, and a few bottles of Peruna made me feel like another person, noting the improvement after I had used the first bottle. Peruna is undoubtedly the best catarrh remedy ever compounded."—Clem G. Moore.

Captain Percy W. Moss, Paragould, Ark., says: "I think Peruna is undoubtedly the finest and surest catarrh cure ever prepared, and it has taken but two bottles to convince me of this fact."

Judge Wm. T. Zenor, of Washington, D. C., writes from 213 N. Capital Street, Washington, D. C.: "I take pleasure in saying that I can cheerfully recommend the use of Peruna as a remedy for catarrhal trouble and a most excellent tonic for general conditions."—Wm. T. Zenor.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

BARRINGTON LOCALS.

Prepare for the grand celebration of July 4, in this village.

Oswald Kaesten of Chicago is visiting with his sister, Mrs. A. Weichelt.

FOR SALE—A nice lot of helpers. H. HILLMAN, Lake Zurich.

If you want a good buggy or surrey go to H. Hillman, Lake Zurich.

The village board will meet in adjourned session Monday evening.

Miss Iva Robertson is visiting her sister, Mrs. Dr. Black, at Palatine.

Royal Neighbors meet Monday evening. Modern Woodmen Tuesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Wiemuth are the happy parents of a pretty boy who arrived Sunday.

It is to be hoped that those who were praying for a few days of warm weather are satisfied.

FOR SALE—A few small farm mortgages. Excellent security. I invite investigation. M. C. MCINTOSH.

Mrs. D. Horner of Spring Valley, Ill., was the guest of her sister, Mrs. Fred Hoffman, Saturday and Sunday.

No matter what may come Dowie will flourish so long as his followers come forward with the tenth of their incomes.

After a woman marries the second time she does not deplore the loss of her first husband, but the second husband does.

Misses Leona Lathrop and Edith Rockensock of Carpentersville visited Saturday and Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Clinge.

A car was derailed north of the E. J. & E. crossing Wednesday morning. The wrecker came out from Chicago and cleared the tracks.

There will be a dance at Oak Park, Lake Zurich, Monday evening, June 17. Barrington music has been secured and a good, social time is assured.

FOR SALE—The Rethmeier farm of 80 acres in Barrington and 5 acres of timber in town of Hanover. Half cash balance on time. M. C. MCINTOSH.

This is said to be true. A woman in this town caught a mouse in a trap recently, and felt so sorry for it that she gave it a piece of cheese and let it go.

The job department of this office has turned out some pretty two color full-sheet posters for the Knights of the Globe, announcing the celebration to be held July 4.

Last Sunday Fox River Grove was crowded with excursionists from Chicago. Today the Cook County Democracy will fill the grounds with at least 10,000 people.

Americus Garrison No. 90, Eminent Ladies, are requested to be present at the next regular meeting, Wednesday evening, June 19, as important business will be transacted.

D. Leviton, the watchmaker and jeweler, has removed to Elgin where he has purchased a store at 170 West Chicago street, where he will be pleased to meet his Barrington friends when they visit that city.

The summer resorts tributary to this vicinity have taken on an air of activity. Along Fox river a number of camping parties have settled and soon the woods will be filled with seekers after health and recreation.

A championship game of golf was played on the links at Waukegan last Tuesday afternoon between A. L. Hendee and Miles T. Lamey and M. C. McIntosh and Geo. Wagner. The game was won by Hendee and Lamey.

The unmuzzled dog should now keep his eye out for the much-afraid public. The number of deaths reported from the effects of hydrophobia are sufficient to make an individual steer clear of a canine, muzzled or unmuzzled.

The sweet girl graduate is the subject of a good many gibes just now. It has always been the custom and always will be, but in justice to the young ladies we must say that a great many persons who are flinging those gibes would know a whole lot more if they knew as much as they do.

There was a "mum" social at the M. E. parsonage Tuesday evening, and we are led to believe the affair was in every respect what the name signifies. Of course there was a good attendance and everybody enjoyed it, but "mum" they have been about it. If the secretaries of societies giving such affairs will kindly send us an item relative to these matters we will gladly publish.

The Wallace shows exhibit at Elgin next Wednesday

Canned fruits are sealed proposals for interior department supplies.

FOR SALE—The best paying village property in Barrington. M. C. MCINTOSH.

Judge Gilmore of Woodstock will deliver the oration at the celebration to be held here July 4.

Commencement exercises will be held at the Salem church next Thursday evening. Sears' orchestra.

Street Commissioner Donlea has been paying attention to East Main street this week. A good improvement.

FOR SALE—Farm of 118 acres two miles from Barrington. Good buildings. Cheap for cash or on time. M. C. MCINTOSH.

Ira Slocum, one of the oldest and best known residents of Woodstock, passed suddenly away at his home in that city Saturday.

Americus Garrison No. 90, Eminent Ladies, will serve lunch in the grove July 4th, and ice cream and cake in the evening at some central location in the village.

Last Monday evening Miss Louisa Rieke was pleasantly surprised by 25 of her friends, the occasion being her fifteenth birthday. The evening was replete with enjoyment.

William Haller, who has been in the employ of William Grunau for some time past, has given up his position and will take up work in Chicago. The patrons of Mr. Grunau's shop will miss Billy.

Julia Wesolowski, the three year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Wesolowski, fell in a well at the Arnold Schauble premises, on Liberty street, Tuesday evening. M. E. Covey, who was working near, rescued her.

The big drainage ditch on Washington street west of Williams street is to be of no further trouble to the street committee or public. The 24 inch, is being placed in there and covered with earth taken from the grading of Main street.

Judge Ball has decided that Cook county is indebted to Wm. F. Struckman in the sum of $2,400 for his salary as assistant county attorney from November 1898, to March 1900. This sum covers period in which Struckman was kept out of his office by the ruling of the civil service commission.

The Junior Athletic club engaged in a game of ball with the Palatine Grammar school nine last Saturday. The Palatine boys showed but little knowledge of the game from the start. At the end of the 4th inning the score was 21 to 4 in favor of Barrington and the Palatine boys hoisted the white flag.

The Salem Sunday School will observe Children's Day tomorrow, June 16. In the morning the program will be carried out by the oldest ex-superintendents, Father Kampert, B. H. Solt, and F. H. Frye. In the evening the program will be carried out by the young people and children. All are invited.

The Hebron Tribune in its last issue published 13 articles laudatory of Gov. Yates. Guy don't seem to know that there is no state campaign this year, but takes what is sent him by the press bureau. It's not far from Hebron to Woodstock and there is the literary center for such matter. Four years from now that stuff will come handy.

The following young people composed a pleasant party and represented Barrington at the Class Day exercises of the Palatine High School held Wednesday evening: Misses Ethel Austin, Beulah Otis, Alta Powers, Ida Hutchison, Iva Robertson, Myrtle Comstock, Gertrude Kitson. Messrs. Robert Bennett, Chas. Thorp, Edward Marlin.

Wallace Wood, who formerly conducted a barber shop in this village and Waukegan, took an overdose of a heavy opiate last Saturday morning and passed to the great unknown. His funeral was held at Elgin, Monday afternoon. The career of Wallace Wood was one of failure from start to finish. He had the benefit of a kind, indulgent mother's care, and his many misgivings were often overlooked, but the world and him could not get along together, and he left it.

Again we wish to state that items sent to this office for publication must bear the name of the informant. Because a party connected with this entertaining journal has the authority to perform marriage ceremonies is no guarantee that he is going to unite any two bleeding hearts on the simple evidence that comes in an unsigned notice to the effect that "Mr. — and Miss — were married last Tuesday." Perhaps they were but the powers invested in the reporter by the Governor, does not allow him to give them a certificate by publication unless he has reliable information. It's bad enough when a reality, but to announce such a state of affairs and find it untrue leaves the editor in a bad predicament. Sign all communications as a matter of good faith.

If anyone can tell to a certainty the exact distance from Justice Ray Kimberley's residence to Bangs lake and to Justice Kohl's office in Lake Zurich, that party will be looked upon as a friend in need by an attorney in this village.

It is said that prominent citizens in every city, town and village of this state, will be appointed to solicit subscriptions for a $100,000 monument in honor of the late John R. Tanner. Why the deceased executive should be chosen for this great honor is beyond the comprehension of a great number of people. What did John R. Tanner do for the people of Illinois that made him a public benefactor? Old Dick Yates, John M. Palmer and others who have governed the state are entitled to a public testimonial in shape of marble monument, but we have not heard of any "prominent" citizens having been appointed to solicit subscriptions for such a testimonial. We have heard much about the Tanner monument but not a word why it should be erected by public subscription. The press throughout the state, with few exceptions, are asking "why?"

TWENTY-EIGHTH ANNUAL

Camp Meeting of the Barrington Association Evangelical Church.

The camp meeting association connected with the United Evangelical church will open their grounds in this village Friday, June 21, for the 28th annual meeting of the association which will continue until Monday afternoon, July 1. Lutz, Bay City, Mich.; Wm. Schuster, Cleveland, O.; A. W. Strickfaden, Barrington.

Fourth of July at Barrington.

The 125th anniversary of our national independence will be celebrated by Barrington this year in a manner befitting the event. The celebration will be given under the auspices of the Barrington Garrison 127, Knights of the Globe. The program provides for a genuine, good old-fashioned time. There will be races, games and contests for handsome prizes. The orator of the day will be Hon. Judge Gilmore of Woodstock, and addresses will be delivered by local speakers.

Music will be furnished by the Barrington M. W. A. band and a glee club. Enjoyment in large installments is assured. Come to Barrington and enjoy the national holiday. See large posters.

Sunday School Picnic.

Preparations are being perfected for a great picnic by the ten Sunday schools of the United Evangelical church of this district, including the Sunday schools of that denomination in Chicago. A. H. Boehmer and F. H. Plagge, representing the Salem Sunday school of Barrington, attended a committee meeting at the Palmer House, Chicago, Tuesday evening to assist in arranging a program. Fox River Grove was selected as the place and July 16 the date. There will be many amusements and prizes awarded to winners.

The fare from Barrington will be 25 cents for the round trip. Coaches will be furnished for Barrington people and attached to train from Chicago. Tickets now on sale at J. C. Plagge's store. Purchase early that the committee may know how many coaches to order for this point.

The public invited to participate.

Changes in Revenue Act.

Arrangements for the changes in the war revenue act which go into effect July 1, are now going on in Collector Henry Hertz's office, Chicago, and in all other revenue districts throughout the country. Taxpayers have been on the watch for the modifications in the law, and they are now sending in their applications for redemption of unused stamps and imprinted checks, drafts, and other instruments on which the war tax has been repealed. Bank checks and telegrams are among the principal papers from which the stamp tax is to be lifted. Conditions on which the owners of these instruments and others may obtain a refund may be had upon application to the internal revenue office.

Powers), Song—"McKinley Quartet Class Prophecy" (Genevieve G. Fletcher), Music (Orchestra), Presentation Eighth Grade Diplomas, Presentation of Tenth Grade Diplomas (Mr. Frank Robertson), Music (Orchestra).

Matrimonial.

At the home of the bride's parents in Highland Park, Wednesday evening, June 12, Miss Elva C. Smith was united in marriage to John W. Erb of St. Louis, formerly of Waukegan. In this union one of the best boys who ever handled a stick and rule becomes a Benedict, and his wife draws a valuable prize. John, you and your fair partner has our sincere congratulations and wishes for unbounded joy, and may your column when printed in the Big Book be a long one of "solid nonpareil" inclosed with a border of "small caps" and $.

Gov. Yates Avoids the Rush.

Office-seekers who have camped unceasingly on the trail of Gov. Yates have finally succeeded in driving him out of the state. He has departed for New York and eastern points and will stay there until he gets his mind made up about the rest of the appointments at his disposal, and probably until some time after July 4. Since the adjournment of the legislature the governor has been crowded day and night. Men from every section of the state have gone to Springfield, and there has been no let up in the stream of applicants. It is a wonder the governor has stood the pressure as well as he has.

SOMETHING MORE NEEDED

In the Interest of Justice and Its Decent Administration.

Editor of THE REVIEW:

The press of Cook county is bringing to light the "unscrupulous practices", as they are termed, of the constables and justices in the outlying districts of the county, and not without just cause. An attempt was made at the spring election to place in office in the various townships in the county men—not beings who loved the glitter of Chicago collection agencies silver more than justice between man and man. An effort was made to put candidates for office on record and in a majority of instances it worked—until the candidate had qualified, and then, as the Chronicle says, "they forgot their duty to humanity in their greed for fees." Every town in the county has the same story to recite.

In a recent case a country justice attempted to drag a citizen of Chicago out to his court in the town of Lyons, twenty miles away, at an unseasonable hour of the day. The victim fortunately had time to interpose an appeal in Judge Hanecy's court. Last Friday a gentleman living in Hyde Park was served with a process to appear before a justice in the town of Northfield. The lawyer for the plaintiff and constable who served the papers were rebuked in the most vigorous language by Judge Hanecy, who told them that they had no moral right to hale a man far out of town to face a justice when he could be brought before a justice in the neighborhood and where the suit could be fairly tried. We have a case at home of the same character.

"I have been nominated for the office of constable for Barrington township and if elected will give my time to the duties in the township and not in Chicago, reports now in circulation as to my intention to do the business from Chicago are without foundation."

In conversation with the officer who made a canvas on this platform, he was pronounced in his opposition to the work of certain Cook county justices and constables and left the impression he would not be a party to any such practices. Last Tuesday he served a summons on a resident to appear before some justice (name not legible) in the town of Cicero, 40 miles distant, at 8 o'clock on a certain day. The place where the justice holds his court is not specified in the summons, and the officer did not know whether it was in Clyde, Hawthorne or some other old place; he did not know the name of the justice, or where the summons originated.

A number of judges of the Cook county courts have intervened recently on proper motions to defeat the execrable conspiracies of the country justice shops to rob and oppress the poor people. But the trouble in nine out of ten of these cases is that the poor man summoned before a country justice has no time nor opportunity to ask interference by a court of record nor means to pay for the service if it could be obtained. Something more is needed in the interest of justice and its decent administration.
