of the old sinners who use tobacco and haven't looked in a Bible for ten years, will read that verse within five minutes after reading this paper."
Dinner was a little late. A guest asked the host to play something. Seating herself at the piano, the good woman executed a Chopin nocturne with precision. She finished and there was still an interval of waiting to be bridged. In the grim silence she turned to an old gentleman on her right and said: "Would you like a sonata before dinner?" He gave a start of surprise and pleasure. "Why, yes, thanks," he said. "I had a couple on my way here, but I think I could stand another."

English Towns.

That there are many instances in England of two or more towns enjoying the same name is a fact that nobody can help who knows, but probably few people are aware of the very wide extent to which this duplication of names prevails. Newton seems to hold the same rank among places as South among individuals, no fewer than seventy-two towns and villages in England alone bearing this name. By including the Newtowns, obviously the same name with a slight difference in spelling, the total is raised to little short of ninety. As every town must have been a "new town" at some time or other it shows a great lack of inventive genius among our ancestors who had the naming of the towns. There are sixty-eight places named Sutton. Our ancestors seem to have found the four points of the compass of great service in the nomenclature of their towns, for besides the Suttons there are fifty-one Westons, forty-nine Nortons and seven Eastons. To those last should be added thirty-eight Atons, another form of the name, very common in the west of England.—London Chronicle.

A Domestic Treasure.

Sir Squire Bancroft in proposing the health of the bishop of London told a story in his inimitable way. A charming young dame came to London to visit an aunt, who probably came originally from Scotland, for when the young lady was leaving in a cab for an evening party she said to her maid: "don't you pay him more than I will. It's his best fare." Arrived at her destination, the young lady sprang out, hurriedly calling a shilling and hopped up the steps of the house.
"Here I say, John," called the cabby.
"Kin I ask you a question?"
"Yes, you may."
"Well, you married?"
"No," she cried, indignantly. "I'm not!"
"Well, well, somebody's a goin' to git a treasure, for I ever seen a gal as could make a bob go further or do more and work nor you, miss!"—London Mail.

The Right Doctor.

In Havert, Mass., according to the Boston Herald, there used to live two doctors of the same surname. Dr. Benjamin E. Sawyer was a physician with a large practice. Dr. Nathan Sawyer was a veterinarian. A man named Jones, after a week or more of indulging, was very sick, and his wife, becoming alarmed, sent the hired man for Dr. Sawyer. The hired man brought the wrong Sawyer, the veterinarian. Dr. Nathan explained to the wife that he was skilled only in the diseases of horses, cattle and other animals. "I guess you can prescribe all right in this case," replied Mrs. Jones. "Jones is a jackass."
