WEATHER BULLETIN.

For the Week Ending June 16th.—General Summary.

There was a marked deficiency in the mean temperature for the week ending Monday, June 18, the deficiency averaging about 8 degrees in the central and northern districts, and 4 degrees in the southern district. The abnormally cool weather was due to the prevailing northerly winds, an area of high barometric pressure persisting over Ontario for several days, together with low pressure in the southeast, contributing to this condition. At Springfield a low maximum of 60 degrees was recorded on June 18th, this low registration for the season being exceeded only twice in twenty-seven years, namely, 58 degrees in 1889 and 56 degrees in 1901.

Showers occurred on the 13th, 14th and 15th. The rainfall was quite general, all sections receiving beneficial showers. The heaviest fall occurred in the central and the southern districts.

Chas. M. Schwab says the most successful man lets nothing discourage him. In the most untoward conditions he thinks until he hits on an expedient which turns the very untowardness of a thing into a help.

A mother, fearing that her pretty daughter had become a horsehead, hired her little son to seven to stay in the parlor thru the visit. The boy carried out his mother's contract and at 10 o'clock, tired and sleepy, came to her for his pay. "Do you stay in the parlor?" "Yes; all the time." "Well, what happened?" "I played blind man's buff and I was lots of fun, only they made me do it the whole time."

SOME FACTS ABOUT DURUM WHEAT.

The foothold which the durum, or macaroni, wheat has been getting since its introduction into this country some six years ago by Secretary Wilson of the department of agriculture was given an emphatic recognition early in March of this year when the Illinois railroad and warehouse commission included durum wheat as a distinct grade in their new inspection rules. From data sent out by the department at Washington it appears that one-half of the wheat, not including wheat flour, exported from customs districts east of the Pacific coast and more than 30 per cent of the entire wheat exports of the United States since July 1, 1905, were durum wheat. The shipments from New York were sent for the most part to ports on the Mediterranean sea, while of the exports from Boston 145,000 bushels were consigned to the above ports, 88,527 bushels to Hamburg and 21,000 bushels to London. Two facts may be mentioned as responsible for the remarkable showing which has been made with this new type of wheat. In the first place, the growing of the wheat in the United States has received a great impetus because it is in a large measure drought proof and gives a large yield in sections of the north and west which are practically closed to the raising of ordinary wheat because of a scanty rainfall. This is a clear economic gain and means much in a financial way to the territory in question. A second fact which has served to encourage its culture and exportation is the demand already existing for it in European countries, particularly bordering on the Mediterranean, where it has been grown for centuries and where it is not now produced in sufficient quantities to supply the home demand.

Alderman R. R. Kimberly is deservingly of great credit for keeping the street sprinkler in daily operation during the dry weather, as it was mainly through his efforts that the dust has been kept down in our streets to so great an extent. He has thus proven to the people that they made no mistake by putting him in office.

In view of the practical failure of an appeal to sentiment alone as an incentive in securing co-operation in the matter of practical forestry, or more exactly tree culture, a bill has been introduced in the Iowa legislature looking to a remission of the taxes for a period of eight years on all areas set out to forest trees and orchards containing more than seventy trees. Should a plan of this kind be generally adopted in the different states or a federal law be adopted granting the same exemptions, the gospel of tree planting would receive an impetus the like of which has never been known. It is a matter of regret perhaps that a sufficient interest cannot be aroused in the matter purely from the artistic and aesthetic standpoint and that an appeal has to be made to the pocketbook to secure necessary co-operation; but, since the situation as it is, some plan toward making the work more profitable. The main thing is to get the trees planted, the means by which the result is accomplished being of secondary importance.

LOOKING ON THE BRIGHT SIDE.

The poet Longfellow expresses in his lines, "Into each life some rain must fall; some days must be dark and dreary;" a generally recognized truth that finds confirmation in the life of every one. It is because the "dark" and "blue" days, longsome hours and the presence of physical ailment and financial distress that the necessity arises of looking on the bright side of dwelling in the sunshine rather than in the shadow and in being a bearer of good cheer rather than a dispenser of discouragement and depression. It is their capacity to produce brightness and cheer that the chief human mission and worth of the flowers, the birds, sunshine and fresh air are to be found. Childhood's years, too, are full of this same unconscious radiance of buoyancy and happiness, and blessed beyond measure are those who keep their youthful enthusiasm for the spring and autumn of age creeps on green and grow mellow in its golden rays. There is probably no trait of character or habit of mind that contributes so much toward making the work of living—that is, youth, steadily mature life and old age—as looking on the bright side.
