Dead Ivory.

The idea that immovable ivory is shot to supply the market with ivory is incorrect, as the majority is known as dead ivory—that is, tusks of animals that have died from natural causes in the bush, many of them perhaps centuries ago. Climatic and other influences cause the color of the ivory to vary from pure white to dark brown. The latter, however, is only a surface discoloration that can be removed by scraping. Climate, however, affects the substance to a very great degree, rendering some hard and brittle and in other cases increasing the liability to crack and split. Some of the ivory that arrives from the northern part of central Africa is exposed to the sun throughout its long journey on camels across the desert and has to be bound up in rawhides to protect it and prevent it from splitting. Trifling as a defect in the surface may appear to the uninitiated, it may reveal to the expert the presence of disease within or may enormously reduce the value of the tusk by rendering it unsuitable for some particular class of work.

Miraculous Power.

The sharp eye has been seen a hawk upon a piece of earth almost exactly the same color at twenty times the distance it is perceptible to man or dog. A bird of prey, or even a human eye, still can distinguish and pounce upon lizards and field mice upon the ground, and the distance at which vultures and eagles can see their prey is almost incredible. Recent observations have inclined naturalists to the belief that birds of prey have not the acute sense of smell or hearing that has hitherto been accredited them. Their keen sight seems better to account for their action, and they appear to be guided by slight changes in the color of the ground, but do not dart straight after the objects of their desire. Their counterparts in the ocean distinguish small and sea, but are more guided by smell than sight. In both sharks and rays the eyes are small and have a distinct expression, as if they never quit at anything. A shark's distance and swim up to it with a rapid capacity, smell may be called their real eye.

To Be Eaten When Cooked.

President Fallieres of France recently paid tribute to the superiority of home cooked meals over hotel dinners and banquets. For good wholesome appetizing food he looks to the fastidious disposition of the goddess of the stove and not to the $10.00 chef. It was Louis XV. of France who decorated a woman cook after a competition in preparing dishes to his liking between the woman and his man cook.

Booth and the Fish Line.

Of Edwin Booth Mr. Whitney relates the following anecdote: "In fishing he would exhibit the impetuosity of a Perch, and this cost me several rods, which broke into smithereens over small trout. He got in one day from a neighboring town a new, fancy good bamboo fly rod, which I assisted him in setting, arranging the reel and line and pliable soaked leader, and left him afterward noosing on a scarlet fish. The rod was lying on the dining room table. I was no sooner out of the room than he had a madman. He had left his fly hanging over the side of the table, which the half grown family cat present, seeing struck at with its paw, which the sharp hook caught in, and the frightened cat bolted under the table with rapid speed, breaking the rod tip and dragging the rod after while Booth, crying 'Scat, cat!' had no effect on the now crazed feline, which he was following after in great excitement at high pressure with adjectives of singular note. The sequel of this was the escape of the cat with the rod tip by well hooked to its foot and well smashed up rod. I was too much convulsed, with the others drawn in by the commotion, to render any aid, and Booth soon joined in with laughter, confessing that his fishing experience was a failure and that he would not have any more of it—Forest and Stream.
