

VOTE FOR LEN. SMALL

THE KANKAKEE FARMER CANDIDATE FOR THE REPUBLICAN NOMINATION FOR GOVERNOR

Primary Election Tuesday, April 9, 1912.

Len. Small of Kankakee, the downstate candidate for the Republican nomination for governor, is a practical farmer and business man. He is a candidate against seven lawyers and is better qualified to represent the agricultural and business interests of the state than any other candidate for the nomination for governor. Other states have elected farmers and business men for governor whose administrations have proven unequalled successes.

Illinois needs less oratory and more business in the governor's office. Our state expenses have practically doubled in the past eight years under a states attorney governor. Why not try a business administration for the next four years and save the people from the great burden of increased taxation.

Len. Small is a self-made man accustomed to hard work. He has lived all his life on the farm and knows the needs of the man who tills. He is a man of the common people and stands for the workingman's interests and welfare. He is broad minded, liberal and fair and a man whom all the people can trust.

Every farmer knows that the primary election was set by the states attorney governor to come at the busiest season of the year and the rush of farm work keeps many from the polls. Will not every farmer make a sacrifice of a part of the day April 9 to go to the polls and vote for the farmer candidate from Kankakee county?

Len. Small has always gone to the Republican party for advancement and has never been defeated by the people at the polls.

A vote for Len. Small is a vote for a winner, because he will carry Cook county by the largest vote given any candidate on the Republican ticket and will poll more votes down state than any other man.

Magill For U. S. Senator.

The voters of Illinois have the greatest opportunity since the civil war to elect the right man to represent the United States senate in Senator Hugh S. Magill," says the Joliet Daily News. Magill is also best known to the people very largely over the state and has special interest from the fact that he is the first Illinois in a line of trial of strength to be made between the two parties and the standpoints for within the republican party, which has resulted in sixteen progressive republican senators being elected to the United States senate.

Senator Hugh S. Magill, the progressive candidate for United States senator, is engaged in a state-wide campaign. His campaign appeals to those who wish to see a change in present methods and a return to real representative government, and the enactment of constructive legislation that will not only be just to the business interests but to the people as well. He has not only the solid endorsement of the Roosevelt and LaFollette republicans of the state, but his candidacy has been warmly commended by Governor Johnson, Gifford Pinchot and others of national reputation.

In his campaign, Senator Magill has been getting close to the people, to that class known as the "silent voters" those who are not politicians but who quietly work and vote for clean politics and honest government. His principal aim has been to get the message of the progressive movement to the people.

To those who are opposed to Senator Cullom because of his vote for Lorimer in the United States senate and who are opposed to L. Y. Sherman because of his vote for the pernicious Allen bill and his reactionary attitude, Senator Magill appears as the man of the hour because his record is clean and his principles are sound.—Dixon Daily Telegraph. College Girl Suggestion.

Popularity is like some of the other good things of life, the one who seeks it seldom finds it. However, a hint is that it follows respect. College study is more deceptive than school work. The first few months often seem easy. That is why many girls join the social whirl. When the midyears come they pay the penalty, unless temporary, artificial, glittering "trappings" come to their aid. Therefore, at the very beginning do the necessary work each day.

Abraham Lincoln Man Has Some Difficulty at the Book Store and the Grocery.

As the little man walked absent-mindedly stopped in front of a bookstore. It recalled to him the meaning of that piece of string on his finger, and with a brightened face he entered.

"Just a minute," he said to the clerk. "My wife wanted me to get a book for her—a certain novel she's heard a good deal about. I must get the memorandum she gave me. She wrote the name on a slip of paper, and I put it in my pocket."

After considerable fumbling he produced a small bit of paper, and laid it on the counter, took out his spectacles and adjusted them on his nose.

"Here's the name—Cobb's Cornucopia. Yes, that's it."

"I'm afraid I don't know the book, sir," said the clerk apologetically. "But I'll look through the list of new ones." And he ran his eye over the list on the wall. "No, I'm sorry to say I can't find it here. You are sure of the name?"

"Yes, it's right here on this piece of paper."

"Well, I'm afraid I haven't got it."

"But I don't dare to go home to my wife without it. I promised to get it for her."

The clerk called to another in the back of the store, who came forward. To the other he said: "Say, Bill, do you know of a book called Cornucopia, by a fellow named Cobb?"

"What's that?" he asked in surprise.

The old gentleman broke in: "Cobb's Cornucopia. Here, see for yourself."

"I'm afraid you've made a mistake," said the new arrival with a twinkling eye. "Cobb's Cornucopia is a new breakfast food."

"Ah, now I see why the grocer didn't understand me when I asked him for a package of Quaker," remarked the customer in manifest relief.

Seems to Justify Superstition.

The opal associated with misfortune by Russians of both sexes, who should they chance to see an opal among the goods displayed for purchase will buy nothing more that day, and it is a curious fact that the Japanese, being under the sign that this stone belongs to, should be the nation to bring such ill luck to the Russians during the disastrous war between these two countries.

Missing.

Little Anna's mother was expecting a distinguished guest who was extremely bald and sensitive on the subject of hair. The named Anna not to mention Mr. M.'s hair. As the visitor was ushered in the child's gaze wandered inquiringly to the shining head. "Mamma," she piped shrilly, "where be's his hair?"

Call Bounded Fire Alarm.

A call wandered into the fire station at Port Fairy, Victoria, Australia, lately, and becoming entangled in the bell rope, set the bell ringing wildly. Of course, all the firemen made a dash to the station, and they were much amused on finding the visitor who had given the false alarm.

Thought It a Paradox.

Some good luck had come to him he wanted to share it with others. So when he reached her house and dismounted the station back with its two sorry horses he joyously handed them the driver two dollars. The driver looked at the money, then at the man, and then at his horse, and finally said: "All right, sir, which horse do you want?"

Chorus of Friends.

Such cordiality of the happiness and purity of our lives depends on our making a wise choice of our companions and friends. It is well and right, indeed, to be courteous and considerate to every one with whom one is thrown in contact, but to choose them as real friends is another matter. If our friends are badly chosen they may drag us down; if well they will raise us up.—Sir John Lubbock.

ANDREW RUSSEL
REPUBLICAN CANDIDATE FOR TREASURER OF THE STATE OF ILLINOIS
PRIMARIES APRIL 9TH, 1912

At a time when there is so much excitement regarding the various candidates that are before the public seeking election, we feel there is one office to be voted upon that is of utmost importance to every one. That office is the Treasurer of the State of Illinois. The people of the state recognize that this office should be filled by a man possessing two very important qualifications—one equally as important as the other. The two essentials for the successful filling of this office are honesty and ability. We have gone over the list of men who present themselves for this honor and we are very strongly in favor of Mr. Andrew Russel, former State Treasurer, of Jacksonville, being elected. Mr. Russel's qualifications are too well known to be gone into at length, but we cannot pass over this without reminding the public of his work on their behalf while he was treasurer. Mr. Russel conducted the office with all the thoroughness and business detail that his profession of banker has equipped him with; he has been a prominent banker of the state for years, and his associates esteemed his services so highly, and felt him so qualified, that they elected him to the presidency of the Illinois Bankers' Association. While on this point it must be apparent to every voter that the opportunity affords itself, whenever with a banker. That this point may be given full consideration we recall the fact that Mr. Russel, during his term of office, showed nearly $2,000,000 net profit. Through the advice of Mr. Russel, which his successor solicited of him, the present treasurer will be able to show a larger net profit at the expiration of his term, at a smaller expense by following out the methods Mr. Russel introduced during his term. Together with the personal assistance he was able to give the present holder of the office. That Mr. Russel is a firm believer in Merit Civil Service is shown by the fact that he kept all those connected with the office when he took over the work, and as conditions demanded an increase in the working department he got only the most expert assistants. The question that the public should all our minds is that of where our money goes, and who is handling it. We therefore feel that the people should without any hesitancy elect Mr. Russel for the reasons given above, also because we feel he is the clean type of citizen that will give every one a fair deal. Politicians these days are too prone to use sharp practices and schemes of various sorts to win an election, and will often go in to mud-slinging; it is a pity that such methods are practiced, for if there is anything about a man that the public should know they are generally informed by others than his opponent. Mr. Russel is the type of citizen that is too highly bred, to ever depart from the high class way he has always conducted his business, and that he should use the same high class methods of conducting his campaign should convince every voter that he is the man that will fill the office of Treasurer of the State of Illinois, and that his election will bring a credit on the Republican party of Illinois, that at present is in such a demoralized way, and needs such men as Andrew Russel to return it to the good old days when G. O. P. really meant the Grand Old Party.
