THE OFFICE, BARRINGTON NO. 1

WHY THE BIG LAY-OFF?

Between 40 and 50 CWA employees in Barrington township were laid off last week in compliance with orders from county headquarters in Chicago. Village Attorney D. B. Maloney attempted to learn the reason for this wholesale dismissal in one township while not in other parts of the county and was informed that CWA headquarters that officials had witnessed wholesale loafing among the work groups here (not including the group on the village hall).

Apparently this was an evasive answer intended to cover up temporarily the real reason for the drastic reduction in number of workers in Barrington township.

The order originated with one or more of three reasons: (1) County CWA officials concluded that this township was over-allotted with workers as compared with other townships or divisions of Cook county; (2) some unsatisfactory development (other than loafing) has come to the surface in the township CWA; or (3) the type of politics which the President recently condemned in the CWA has been played in Chicago with unfavorable results for Barrington.

The loafing excuse is unacceptable not because no loafing has been indulged in by local CWA workers but because loafing has been general in CWA work groups all over the country. The real reason will be divulged sooner or later, and the residents of this community will be greatly interested when it is.

LITTLE BUSINESS AND THE NRA

Latest developments at Washington indicate that the action of the administration in providing for the right of small businesses to appeal to the federal trade commission against any alleged injustices of application of the NRA codes has not entirely ended the criticism. Senator Gerald P. Nye, one of the severest critics of the NRA's effect on small businesses, has introduced a resolution in the senate asking the names of all persons employed in responsible positions under the NRA with present and past business connections, together with a list of the industrial codes they have been instrumental in preparing. It asks also for a complete list of the names of all code authority members to see just how many representatives of "big business are contained therein, and seek to find out the NRA code officials who have retired to private life, what they are doing and whether they are engaged in the business of administering any codes.

On the same day Senator Steiwer introduced a resolution seeking information on the personnel and activities of the surplus relief and commodity credit corporations under the AAA; the federal housing corporation; the Tennessee Valley authority; electric home and farm organization, and the RFC.

Another senator attacking the NRA on the theory that it aids big business at the expense of the little fellow is Senator Capper. In a recent radio address he declared that the small industrialist and the small business man, were "the forgotten people of the New Deal." He asserted further that some of the NRA codes appeared to be written "in the interest of big business and against the interest of the little business." Continuing, Senator Capper said:

"If the abolition of the anti-trust laws for those who have signed the codes means that big business is going to grow still bigger, that ownership and control, instead of being more scattered over the country, is going to be centralized still more, then either congress made a terrible mistake in repealing the anti-trust laws for that purpose or someone is making a mistake that amounts to an economic crime in administering the codes."

HUMAN LIFE IS CHEAP

Since the beginning of history, human life has been held more cheaply than anything else in the world. It is so held today.

A large percentage of the human race has always met death through the criminality, ignorance or carelessness of fellow men.

Could the minds of all men be directed to the preservation of human life, what a difference it would make! No more wars, no more murders, no more preventable deaths through automobile accidents, no more lives lost in fires started through carelessness, how changed would be the front pages of our daily newspapers!

To mention just three causes of violent death, the best authorities estimate that in the United States each year 10,000 are murdered, 25,000 are killed in automobile accidents and 15,000 are burned to death.

The total number of persons killed in accidents now reaches more than 75,000 a year.

While giving our attention to a multitude of other reforms and aims, could it not be well to devote more serious thought and action toward reducing this appalling and unnecessary waste of human life.—Citizen, Culver, Ind.

A POOR BARGAIN

Governor Hagner certainly traded the people of Illinois a potato for a barrel of apples when he substituted the sales tax for the state property tax. State Treasurer Martin reports that the property tax collections in 1933 were $25,827,832.31 and that sales taxes for January were $4,436,352.23, or at the rate of $1,236,226.76 a year.

WHAT'S GOING ON IN WASHINGTON

Out to spend $3 billion dollars in the next federal government actually is falling down badly on that spending job. The president is not ready to admit that the government cannot spend fast enough, six weeks' experience show the program as $200,000,000 behind schedule and still slipping. During these first weeks the reconstruction finance corporation and the civil works administration have been the most promising spenders. They managed in the first week to make $100 million in the first week of the $200 million that would have to be spent if the budget plans are to be met before July 1.

Under fire, the national recovery administration is admitting that it may have made mistakes in policy during the first hectic months of its existence, but those mistakes, it claims, are being corrected. This is a sharp change in attitude. Only recently NRA was slow to admit that it could do wrong. Now it says that two problems may have been handled in the rush. One was that affecting the hard-pressed business man. Both now are getting serious attention. Of admitting the agency is the position of the business man whose costs have been increased by the operation of whose bankers are unwilling to finance those increased costs. Over 20,000 complaints have been filed and have passed to Washington. They now are on the point of being settled in some degree. As yet, the white house is not ready with detailed plans for readjustment. But do not widely recognize and emphasize for the present the hard principle and may soon be expected to give serious attention to those along the line—no debts for foreign government to our government, on foreign government or our citizens, on debts and obligations to each other. Since currency inflation usually works hardship on the creditor class, the change is now

The modern gold rush growing out of the recent increase in value of the metal lacks the dramatic qualities which characterized the gold boom of Alaska. To a large extent, machinery has taken the place of the picturesque placer miner and the prospecting party. The operation of C. W. Henderson, of the bureau of mines, who makes those observations, will point out the necessity for new machinery, peak production in many mining centers will be required for several months. There has already been a noticeable increase in activity, he says, in some areas amounting to an increase of about 20 per cent in the number of men employed. The new price has given life to many projects heretofore considered unprofitable.

Prohibition repeal doesn't apply to the other—the other that radio waves pass through as far as the federal radio commission is concerned. Because millions of listeners do not use spitters and because children are faithful loud speaker fans, the commission wants broadcasters and advertisers to keep them in mind when they think of liquor advertising. The club held over the heads of radio stations and sponsors is this threat: "All stations are required for hearing the renewal applications of all stations unmodified of the foregoing and they are prohibited from making any showing that their continued operation will serve public interest, convenience, and necessity."

Our Children

By Angelo Patri
Bill Hyndman—WNU Service

Teachers who write and preach as much as I do ought to be the last, perhaps, to warn readers and listeners of the "bad book, but any experienced parent will caution conscientious people against accepting any word in a child training as the last word. Every child is an individual and peculiar combination of forces. When a doctor or a teacher, a child specialist of any sort, expresses an opinion or gives a direction, he comes as near the matter as his knowledge and experience will allow. But there is always an uncertain element in the situation. That is the child himself. When we have offered him our best, we may not be what he needs. We may always allow for a margin of adjustment between the child and us. Take the matter of diet. Milk and eggs are the foods for children. How much milk? How many eggs? In what form? That depends upon the child himself. A mother called her child's physician because, in spite of everything she could do, the little one refused to touch an egg or anything that contained an egg. "Well, don't offer him an egg again. We'll give him something else and try his luck that works," said the doctor. "But you said he ought to have an egg for his lunch dinner." "True enough, but if he can't eat eggs we can offer him something he can eat. He can live and thrive if he never eats an egg." That seemed to astonish the young mother. I am certain that after she has weaned a family she will know that what is one child's meat is another's poison. The same idea holds throughout. One child takes his afternoon nap and another refuses to lie down, much less sleep. One child obeys without protest and another fights every direction. We can give one child permission to play in the yard and another child will stay there, while we dare not allow his brother out of sight lest he be on the highway among the traffic, the instant we leave him alone.

The books are full of wisdom. They offer helpful advice. They suggest and they stimulate ideas in child training, but they have a limit. Where they cease of the mother's intelligence and first-hand knowledge of her child must begin. That is why training a child requires the greatest skill and intelligence of the mother. That is why a mother's job demands our respect and admiration for the other jobs she does. "Her child runs up and call her blessed," because she opened the book of life for them and taught them how to read it, each in his own language.

Use the good books, listen to the experts, consult your physician, but always carry your own responsibility toward your own child.

Half Million Annually for Vets in Institutions
An appropriation of half a million dollars a year for the hospitalization in state institutions of mental cases among veterans probably will be voted by congress according to Guy E. Housley, superintendent of division of veterans' service who returned from Washington recently. Veterans in Illinois who are cared for at the Elgin and Jacksonville hospitals will benefit to the extent of about $175,000 from this appropriation. Approximately 1200 veterans are now being cared for at the two hospitals but the greater part of the burden is borne by the state. Funds from the government in the present biennium provided for the maintenance of only 225 of these former soldiers while the state paid for the rest.

State Killing Crows
By Use of Dynamite
Crow killing in Illinois has been put on a production basis by James C. F. Thompson of the conservation department. The crows and other species of the song and game birds were being dynamited out of existence. Four hundred and eighty sticks of dynamite, each fastened to a bomb containing about a pound of Mowin City with just one shot. Father and Son of President
The son and father of a President were John Scott Harrison, son of William Henry Harrison, 23rd President of the United States, who died in 1841. Harrison was born at Vincennes, Ind., in 1804. As a young man he studied medicine, but abandoned this profession and became a farmer. From 1833 to 1857 he was a while member of congress from Ohio. He died in 1878 on his farm, near North Bend, Ohio, where Benjamin Harrison was born.

Elimination Games Part of State Championship Tournament
The Barrington high school basketball team, the Bronchos, is one of the 14 teams assigned to the District tournament to be held at Crystal Lake, Ill., on Feb. 7 to 10 as part of the annual Illinois State basketball tournament. The following schools have been assigned to that center: Arlington Heights, Barrington, Crystal Lake, Danville, Elgin, Hampshire, Harvard, Hoopeston, Huntley, McHenry, Palatine, Palmyra, Crest, Richmond and Woodstock. Each high school principal of the District has rated these schools in the order of their strength. The central office of the Illinois High School Athletic association is now making the pairings for the tournament on the basis of these ratings. The schedule of games will be announced as soon as the clerical work has been finished. The Bronchos played at the Libertyville practice last night.

Throughout the state the number of high school entries in District tournaments this year is 853, a new high total. The greatest number previous to this year was 518. There has been an increase in the number of District tournaments. They now number 61, two in Chicago and 12 throughout the state. The number of schools per tournament vary from 8 to 16. The winner and the runner-up at each tournament go to the sectional tournament and then if successful to the State tournament at Urbana. Nearby Illinois tournament centers are Libertyville, Aurora, DeKalb, and Rockford.
