REMEMBER THE SALES TAX

Those of who have been grumbling about the sales tax will have our iming at the primaries April 10. There will be up for re-election representatives who were whipped into voting for the infamous tax and also representatives who had the nerve to justly represent the large majority of citizens of the state by voting against it. If we miss our chance now to show what we think of paying three per cent on nearly everything we buy to support the Chicago machine, we can just keep on paying it for a long time to come and blame nobody but ourselves for doing it.

this is a fundamental, universal, law of trade. No panic or depression can long endure when international commerce

There is another law of trade-high tariffs beget nation alism. Nationalism is the handmaid of communism and dic-tatorship, and the implacable foe of individual liberty.

Our present dreadful plight compels the government to d its resources, and its future, to keep down riots and forestall revolution.

But what has brought on our present dreadful plight? There is, there can be, but one answer—the selfish laws of man that are strangling and preventing free trade, which means unhampered commerce, and nothing more.—Farm News, Colorado Springs, Colo.

SAFEGUARDING PUBLIC FUNDS

Judging by the number of investigations that are being made of the expenditures of our state and national officials there is a need for the development of an informal and in-telligent citizenship.

The state law requires or permits county clerks, city clerks and other official tax-spending bodies to publish a statement of all claims authorized and ordered paid. The purpose of the law is to acquaint the interested citzens with the expenditures of the various units, to advise them as to how and for what the tax money is being spent. It was one of the wisest laws ever enacted from the standpoint of safeguarding public funds and insuring them against waste, extravagance and misuse. When the controlling body knows that it must account publicly for every cent it spends and that every clitzen is to be given the opportunity of scrutinizing every tiem of expenditure, there is a natural tendency to be careful and cautious in the ap-propriation of funds.

Without any reflection upon anyone, we undertake to say that many unwise expenditures would not have been made had the governing bodies known that the full glare of publicity would be turned upon their monthly claims. A newspaper is handicapped in advocating of this policy to all tax spending bodies for the reason that it might be a beneficiary of the policy. The published exhibit of claims is paid matter and at least one newspaper should receive is paid inacted and at least one inexpaper since the this business. Yet the amount of the cost, we think, but a small insurance premium for the protection given.—News, Fairbury, Nebraska.

QUESTIONABLE PROSPERITY

Now the national Santa Claus, with rich gifts coming from huge loans at the expense of the taxpayers, is planning presents for industry in the form of long term loans.

Well, everybody is willing to receive gifts from the nation, such as the soldiers of no war ever received. Spending is in the air, and "git aplenty while you're gittin'" is the prevalent idea, as it was in the story of "The Hoosier Schoolmaster" many years ago. There's only a year or two to get extraordinary present:

from the president. Signs grow more and more ominous that the public is going to "Turn over in bed" and return to sanity in economic principles. The end is surely coming.

Europe may refuse to pay its debts, but the business men of the United States will not approve such a heresy from honest and sound business, even when in chains. There must come an end before ruin comes to everybody.—W. G. Sibley, in the Chicago Journal of Commerce.
