WHAT CHANCE OF SURVIVAL

The Illinois Audubon society is embarking on a campaign to arouse public opinion and a humane sentiment against the heartless wholesale, commercialized slaughter of wild fowl that goes on year after year along our river, the Illinois. The name of our state is becoming a by-word with real sportsmen, nature lovers, and other right-thinking people. The Audubon society is not opposed to wholesome sport, including duck hunting, but this commercialized wild-fowl butchery now going on is so disgusting that real sportsmen turn away from it with loathing and contempt.

All those that know conditions among wild fowl admit that something must be done and that in a hurry. "American Game" quotes approvingly a statement by W. C. Henderson, acting chief of the U. S. biological survey, saying:

Our sportsmen must cooperate in greatly reducing the annual kill of ducks if they expect to continue the sport of wildfowling. The same authority states that 8,000,000 ducks are annually wasted by being crippled and not retrieved. Other sport journals and all meetings of sportsmen's and out-door organizations concur in this. Even the most rabid opponents of restrictions hitherto, as e. g. ex-senator H. B. Hawes, now admit that conditions are perilous. Just think 8,000,000 ducks just wasted. How long do you think our wildfowl can stand this sort of treatment, when there are 7,000,000 hunting license owners? Do you think it is a safe and decent policy to allow any Tom, Dick, and Harry to get a hunting license, minors and non-citizens? Do you think it increases respect for a state and its laws and authorities if such a privilege can be bought in department and sporting goods stores? Do you not think that it is time for clear-thinking and patriotic citizens of Illinois do something about this despicable state of affairs? In one of our states the hunting license, bought for a measly $1.00, entitles the holder to kill the following: 450 ducks, 120 geese, 200 coot, 240 snipe, 300 doves, 22 woodcocks, 300 rails, 120 bobwhite, 120 squirrels, and unlimited rabbits. It is similar in Illinois. Is it not time to seriously curtail the killing mania, inherited by the present generation from pioneer times?

ABUSES OF THE LAW

At a recent annual meeting of the American Bar Association it was openly admitted by prominent members that public confidence in the courts and their administration of the law is being steadily weakened.

As a matter of fact, lawyers in convention very frequently criticize the prevailing method of procedure, but so far they have done very little to correct it. Legislators are also to blame for the present state of affairs, but as most legislators are lawyers the responsibility still rests almost wholly upon the legal profession. By the passage of innumerable laws regulating everything under the sun, and imposing upon peace officers the task of enforcing trivial and often foolish statutes, the perpetrators of major crimes such as murder and robbery have all the better chance to escape punishment. If more attention were given to the prevention and punishment of these serious offenses, it might be possible to reduce their number. —Leader, Wellington, Texas.

Review Lessons

Every so often it is necessary for a pupil to go over the points he has learned. He repeats his rules, brushes up his tables, does the problems once more. This is an essential step in his learning. It makes, for thoroughness, for one thing, our minds often trick us. We think we know a fact very well. It has a pleasant familiar feeling as we remember it in passing. "Oh, I know that," says the child, and goes on. The wise teacher doesn't stop with that. She says, "Good. Tell me all about it." Oftener than not the pupil is dismayed to find that this thing he knew so well slips from his grasp when he tries to lay hold of it. He hesitates, stammers and fidgets and, finally says, "I knew that just as well as my own name and I couldn't say it."

thought. To make an idea part of one's thinking one must work it. One must think it into his mind by repetition and use.

Repetition alone will not help a child to knowledge. It is not enough to repeat words, accurate though they may be. That is only one form of an idea, its thinnest, most elusive and deceptive form. To grasp its values and make them useful to our thinking we have to put the idea in many forms—in action, in association with other things.

A child learns that a river is a stream of water running down hill toward the sea. Suppose he never saw the boats carrying their loads up and down its course, never saw the farms turn green and bear their harvests because of its benefit. A few waterings, never noted the difference its drainage meant to the nearby uplands—how much does he know about a river? We begin with the word but the word must be clothed and made manifest before a child knows much about it.

When you are trying to help a child review a subject, instead of hammering on the set word, try to get a new view of it by helping the child to find new associations for it.

A review ought to be the old idea with some additional aids. If the pupil is not interested in the idea the review will not help him at all and the way to interest him is to call up other facts in support of the original idea. The apostles and prophets, Jesus Christ Himself being

WHAT'S GOING ON IN WASHINGTON

The change from CWA to EWA on April 1 is found by officials, after a week of experience with the new program, to have done several things that had not done 1,000,000 workers from above 4,000,000 to under 2,000,000. It has reduced the expenditures from a peak of $70,000,000 a week under the civil works administration to about $45,000,000 to $70,000,000 for a full month under emergency works administration. It has shown that the federal government is able to give and take away 2,000,000 jobs without creating widespread disturbance. Still the trouble that did occur showed a restlessness on the part of the unemployed that did not escape official attention. It has brought complaints and a huge problem of adjustment that now is being tackled by Harry Hopkins administrator of emergency relief. But at the same time the change from a program of giving jobs to those who could prove unemployment, to giving jobs only to those who are able to show an actual need, did not result in the reduction in the number of those on relief in the United States.

The NRA is wallowing like a ship that has lost its rudder. Complaints of non-compliance are increasing. The danger is that industry may lose faith in the mechanism. This may make of the national industrial recovery act another Volstead law. Already, there are signs that competitors, observing that other companies are refusing to comply or are "chiseling," and it difficult to resist the temptation to meet competition. The real trouble, of course, is that businesses in general cannot go along with code requirements. The upshot of it all is that the imposition on business men of the states and municipalities and industry of moral and social responsibility for enforcement. It is the only way out. The trade associations and local organizations would then become analogous to the states and cities which have been given the task of dealing with the liquor traffic.

The house on Tuesday adopted a resolution calling for investigation by a special committee of five members of the house into charges of Dr. Wirt, the Indiana senator, that the so-called "brain trust" in the administration were aiming at a revolution. Representative Bulwinkle of North Carolina, author of the resolution, was named to head the committee of three democrats and two republicans to conduct the inquiry and Dr. Wirt has been summoned to appear before the committee next Tuesday to give the basis for his charges. Congress plodded ahead with its legislative program, but completed action on only one piece of major legislation—the Johnson bill barring sales or transactions in future issues of obligations of governments in default of their debts to the United States. This measure sponsored by Senator Johnson, of California, but endorsed by the administration, was passed by the house on Wednesday in the exact form in which it received the senate's approval and awaits only the president's signature for it to become law.

Both the country's stock exchanges and those businesses interested in floating new stocks and bonds are trying to throw off plans for actual or proposed federal control of a rigid type. Eight successive weeks of negotiations and two letters from President Roosevelt had failed by the end of last week to produce agreement in the senate banking and currency committee or in the house interstate commerce committee on a bill to regulate the practices of stock exchanges. The first important action of the banking and currency committee was an amendment to the stock market control bill to permit the federal government to exclude small exchanges from regulation. This amendment was adopted unanimously April 6.

Long years of congressional debating were consumed before an amendment was submitted to the states for abolition of the "lame duck" sessions of congress, by which members often served some months after they had been defeated for reelection. Just as many years have passed since agitation first was raised to change the method of electing presidents indirectly through an electoral college. As usual, the present session of congress has before it a plan to let the states vote on a change in the constitution so that the candidate's electoral votes will be based on the popular vote in each state. Giving it impetus is the approval of President Roosevelt as revealed March 27 to the house rules committee.

Shetland Sheepdog Comes From the Collie Family
For a breed that was not shown at Cret's in England before 1910, nor in America before 1924, the Shetland sheepdog has made amazing strides toward the charmed circle of what are known as popular dogs, says a writer in the Philadelphia Ledger.

These dogs are also known as miniature collies, and as a breed they team with traits and characteristics that are at once appealing and lovable.
With a history that is unique, this breed, of its own momentum, has crashed into a very distinct place in the limelight in dogdom, although one of the latest of the recognized breeds.

Ostensibly coming, as the name implies, from that group of nearly 100 little islands lying to the north of Scotland, one still has to account for the presence or appearance of these dogs in a land where there is little doubt that they were indigenous. The term Shetland seems to be almost synonymous with smallness in the whole realm of live stock.

Originally the Shetland sheepdogs were little more than a mongrel mixture of several breeds. The working collie, introduced into the islands by shepherds from the mainland, marked the starting point of the Shetlie's independent existence. These working collies were only about half the size of the show collie of today, and it is easy to see how they could have been made the basis of a reduced collie replica by admixture with diminutive dogs.

Barrington Hills

Mr. and Mrs. H. Stillion Hart arrived home in time for the opening of the Flower show in Chicago. Mrs. Hart is the new president of the Barrington Garden club, filling the vacancy left by the death of Mrs. Selden White. The "Tool House" designed by Mrs. Sumner Mead and executed by Mrs. Gordon Cameron and Mrs. Randolph Payson took first prize in its class. Mrs. Frank Hecht, who also arrived home about a week ago, had a very lovely dinner table as her entry.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert O. Clark left for Florida last week to visit Mrs. Clark's grandmother, Mrs. Johnston. Mr. Selden White had several weeks in Georgia.

Many Barringtonians will be glad to hear that the Franks for several years' absence. They are back in Barrington and have remodeled their house on Sutton road and from all reports, it is very attractive. They expect to be out every week-end and Little Billy and Priscilla are out of school and then stay the rest of the summer.

Tuesday night Mr. and Mrs. Larry Hecht gave a surprise birthday party for Mrs. H. McGee. Good news continues to come from the Presbyterian hospital where Grae Hallberg is recovering from a serious operation.

Donald Titterton Wins Other Honor for Methodist

Tournament Proves Popular Men's Singles Event Tops Action

The Baptist paddle-wheel dominated the inter-church ping pong tournament held at the church last Monday. Methodist won four out of the five matches decided at that time. T. Titterton, winner of the LaFera Biechele in the women's single matches and LaFera Biechele in the men's doubles, B. Thorp and L. Biechele the men's doubles, and L. Biechele and Thorp the mixed doubles. The remaining champion of the men's singles, was won by Donald Titterton of the Methodist.

This meet, the first of its kind in the city, was immensely popular. Most of the matches were close and hard-fought, reaching climax in the men's singles final, and a tie-breaker decided in the fifth of a three out of five sets. The tournament was sponsored by the Young People's Christi commission of Barrington at four local churches: Salem, Baptist, Methodist and St. Paul, participated in the meet.

Results of the championship matches were:
Men's singles: D. Titterton beat Harold Plagge, Salem 2-1; 2-1; 2-0, 2-0, 2-1.
Women's singles: LaFera Biechele of Baptist defeated Norrine St. Paul 2-1; 2-1; 2-1; 2-1; 2-1.
