Urgent Communities to Preserve Wild Flowers This Year

Heads of Illinois Chapter W.F.P.S. Present Plea to Save Flowers

The Illinois chapter of the Wild Flower Preservation Society, which Mrs. Robert Work is president, is secretary, has prepared a series of articles on wild flowers to assist local organizations in their efforts to preserve natural beauty and to increase appreciation and enjoyment of them.

The first article, prepared by Mrs. Charles Barney, Sr., president of the state chapter of the society, is as follows:

"Now that our thoughts turn to the joys of spring, our gardens, clubs and fields are interested in preserving their beauties are planned campaigns whereby people will be interested in the great and widespread movement of conservation. This movement is in the interest of all people—to save for the future the beauty of woods, streams, roadsides, and fields. To increase this beauty that it become a permanent part of our community and its life.

"The Wild Flower Preservation Society, Illinois chapter, is one of the active organizations in this nationwide movement. This society was organized in 1913 by the Dr. Charles Millerbaugh, at that time curator of the botanical department at Field Museum. It was one who realized the need for the conservation of our wild flowers. Today with motor traffic increasing, there is an even more urgent need to curb the ruthless picking of wild flowers.

"It is through sheer ignorance that this wanton destruction of our wild flowers is being done. If we are to enjoy the beauty of the woods and fields, give the plants a chance to win their seeds that they may create and give added beauty to everyone. Wild flowers when picked are soon wilted, and their beauty is lost.
