Names of Winds Refer to Directions They Come From
The names of winds often refer to the direction from which they blow, hardly ever to those toward which they blow. A wind from the north is a north wind (sometimes a norther), one from the south is a south wind and so on. The stevedore of the Mediterranean, which reaches Italy from the southeast, probably owes its name to an Arabic word meaning east, though the authorities are not agreed on the subject. The levanter of the Straits of Gibraltar and the leste of the Madras and Canary islands are both, as their names imply, easterly breezes. This style of nomenclature, which sometimes gives rise to confusion, is evidently due to our habit of thinking of wind as coming from a certain place rather than as merely moving in a certain direction.

Still other winds owe their names to certain of their attributes or characteristics. The wind that dominates the climate of the Rhone valley is known as the mistral because the Romans fittingly described it as magistralis, meaning masterly. The name of the Egyptian khamsin is an Arabic word meaning 50 days, referring to the period of 50 days after the Coptic Easter Monday, during which this unpleasant wind is most prevalent. The simoon of Asian and African deserts, which often proves deadly on account of its excessive heat and dryness, is popularly credited with poisonous properties, and its name is derived from an Arabic verb meaning to poison.

Land of Middle Ages
In many respects, Inner Mongolia is a "Land of the Middle Ages." Mongol horsemen still have wild ponies with slip nooses on long poles, and a reception for the Dalai Lama attracts rainbow-hued, silk-robed princes across hundreds of miles of rolling plains. The Mongol chiefs still prefer to live in felt tents, or tents, as did their ancestors, and visitors of note are received not in permanent buildings but in yurts which are entered through a wooden vestibule.

State Starts War on the English Starling
The English starling, relentless destroyer of song birds nests, is marked for destruction by the state department of conservation. Game warden and lethal gas will be employed in the war to free Illinois from the feathered assassin.
Declaring that unless its depredations are curbed, the state will find itself eventually stripped of song birds, Director C. F. Thompson has announced plans for a state-wide campaign. Bulletins have been sent to county farm bureau advisors asking them to assist the aid of farmers in the drive. With the bulletins went plans for a simple spray trap which farmers are urged to build and place in their fields and barns. Although it feeds and flies with crows, the starling's favorite night roost is in the barns and sheds of the farmyard where it can be shot easily or destroyed by gas. The latter method has been applied in Washington to rid the capitol grounds of this pest. Mr. Thompson said.

Resembling the blackbird in size and appearance, the starling has propagated so rapidly since its introduction into this country from England two decades ago to combat a tree pest, that it is now a complete extermination in Illinois is the purpose of the present campaign.

"We're on a vacation in our own Home"

... no more shoveling coal or hauling ashes. Gas heat is such a relief!
Mr. and Mrs. Sechausen with their children, Charle, Marlan, and Donald.
An interview with Mr. Charles Sechausen and family, 21 Linden Avenue, Crete, Illinois

LOOK at a free family from the coal shovel-free from dust, dirt and furnace worries! No wonder they're like a vacation since they installed gas heat.
"Gas heat is such a relief," says Mr. Sechausen. "No more hauling ashes and poking fires. And the house warms on from one month to the next, because there's no need of dirt when you heat with gas."
"Gas heat is healthier, too. With our old heating the house was always too hot or too cold, and sharp fluctuations in temperature often gave the children colds. The gas gives uniform, even heat day and night."
Low rates... you invest nothing to try. Think of it—rates for heating with gas are now one-half of what they were during the 1930-31 heating season. And you can try gas heat without investing one cent. We'll install a burner in your present furnace or boiler at our own expense. You pay only the rental on the equipment, which amounts to $3 a month in the average home. This charge is included with the bill for the gas you use. You're in it for a month, two months, a year. And if within the year you find that you are not completely satisfied with gas we'll take it out of our expense and replace your former heating equipment in good workmanlike order. But if you decide to keep gas heat—we think you will—the rental you have paid applies on the purchase price of the equipment.
Act now!
Don't delay! You will never regret accepting this liberal offer on gas heat. Telephone for full details.

STARTLING TRIAL OFFER!
To prove that every home can afford to heat with gas, we'll install it at our expense... and remove it at our expense, if you don't like it.
YOU INVEST NOTHING!
Without ONE CENT of investment by you, we install the most modern burner in your existing boiler. If you are satisfied, it stays. If not—and you are the sole judge—and your former heating equipment is returned to you. AT OUR EXPENSE. We make this offer because of our confidence in the perfection of our gas heat.

THE COOLERATOR HAS THE RIGHT AMOUNT OF MOISTURE

Cold temperatures alone will not preserve food. There should be a rapid circulation of air. A refrigerator which will maintain a temperature of 42 degrees with low moisture content in the air will not preserve food as well as a refrigerator which maintains a temperature around 48 degrees with humidity around 65 degrees.

The Coolerator because of its scientific construction keeps the temperature under 50 and the humidity around 65—regardless of small or large amount of ice in the chamber.

Let us show you the economies and conveniences of a Coolerator

"It Happened One Night" With Clark Gable at Catlow
Supported by Claudette Colbert in Strong Picture Here Sun., Mon., Tues.
Richard Barthelmess' new picture "Manservant" will play at the Catlow theatre Friday and Saturday days with the American Indian of today and his content with modern civilization.
Barthelmess has the role of a Sioux bravo who has been educated at Haskell. Steeped in the ways of the white man and ignorant of the conditions of his own people he begins his career as a circus rider and wins the plaudits of white girls for his dare-devilry. He is lionized by a wealthy society girl seeking new and unusual thrills.
Ann Dvorak and Claire Dodd, the former in the role of an Indian maid and the latter as a white society girl, are the rivals for the love of the young chief, the three forming one of the strangest triangles on record. Besides the cast of record, Hollywood stars there are 300 Indians in bits and extra parts, forming a colorful background for the picture.
"Plane Crazy," a musical tabloid, cartoon and Pathe news reel features added to the program.
"It Happened One Night," with Clark Gable and Claudette Colbert co-starring, is definitely a must-see picture. It is scheduled for Sunday-Monday-Tuesday evenings at the Catlow. It has that sparkling, entertaining, realistic yet romantic quality that no one but between the ages of eight and eighty can resist. The situations are hilarious, the dialogue is scintillating, the direction is brilliant and the acting—well, just what you would expect from Gable and Miss Colbert.
The picture tells of a young newspaper man en route from Miami to New York by bus. On the road he recognizes Ellen Andrews, a run-away heiress; for whose return her father has offered a huge reward. The girl is totally spilt and unable to care for herself so he takes her under his wing, protects her from maudlin and bluffs off other intent on securing the reward.
The supporting cast includes Walter Connolly, Roscoe Karns and Jameson Thomas, with Alan Hale, Blanche Frederick, Wallis Clark, George Breakstone.
The bargain night attraction for next week will fall on Wednesday night. The feature chosen for this date is an unusual "King of the Wild Horses." It was filmed in its entirety on location in the gorgeous scenery of the Navajo Indian reservation in the heart of Arizona. Besides Rex, the hero horse; Lady, the beautiful white mare, and Marston, the villain horse, two thousand wild horses appear in the film. More than a thousand Navajo Indians, in their primitive ways, also appear.
William Janney and Dorothy M. Appley are starred.
After almost half a year of production, "The Cat and the Fiddle" will come to the screen of the Catlow theatre Thursday and Friday of next week as one of the most pretentious offerings of the current season.
Hamon Novarro and Jeanette MacDonald are the co-stars. Each is not only a romantic favorite, but an accomplished singer.
