Scout Committee to Discuss Cabin Work; Plan Fall Activity

The ways and means of completing the scout cabin at the Russell street playgrounds will be worked out if possible at a district meeting of Barrington scout officials to be held at the home of Roy Willminger next Tuesday evening.

The cabin, which is one of the finest in the entire district if not the state of Illinois, is nearly finished. A little interior construction work and all of the interior decorating have yet to be finished.

This will be the last regular meeting of the committee before fall. The 1934-35 fall and winter scouting program will be laid out. The date for dedication of the new scout and other youths' organizations probably will be scheduled for late in August or early in September, but the exact day will not be determined until after the building is completed.

The committee has already decided that no more courts of law will be held or merit tests given until after the fall season has opened.

Members of the scout committee of Barrington include: Edwin Wiemuth, J. C. Cadwallader, Hawley Paul Pohlman, Henry Lipofsky, John Bell, Hugh Calkins, John Blanke, and Roy Willminger.

Trustees Consider Vet. for Dairy Inspector work out a plan for hiring a veterinarian direct for inspecting all dairies selling milk in Barrington and charging the dairies fees for each inspection. The proposal was turned over to the health committee for further consideration.

The trustees ordered an anti-pink time relay panel for the control board of the new well. The board will be $50. This is to eliminate possibility of the shaft breaking.

A report was made at the meeting Monday that police officers were not able to put in fire alarms except by calling the chief of the fire department. The alarm box in the village hall has been kept under lock. Some of the night police learn of fires before they are reported to the department.

As a measure for speed in making alarm calls, the trustees ordered the call to be left unlocked and available to the police.

A complaint was received that several property owners have been piling cut grass on pavement in front of their homes. This is washed into the sewers where it tends to cause clogging. Several persons have burned grass on the pavement causing damage to the concrete surface. Such are forbidden by ordinance.

Diseases From Animals

There are only a few of our native wild animals and birds that are subject to diseases that are communicable to man, according to an authority in the Detroit News. Among these we find rabid and grouse, that can give us tularemia; wolves and coyotes (like dogs) whose bite may bring on rabies; ground squirrels, tularemia or bubonic plague; fish can communicate tapeworms and parrotittacosis. Science tells us that five of our domestic animals including the cow, horse, swine, sheep and goats, may transmit over 20 serious diseases to mankind.

Graduates Hear Francis L. Bacon Talk on Education

Speaker Stresses Need of Educational Preparation for Living

Addressing the need of an education, Francis L. Bacon, speaker at the commencement exercises of the 1934 graduating class of Barrington high school Thursday evening, outlined the newer outlook regarding an education. Mr. Bacon is principal of Evanston township high school.

"During the World War, many of our boys were trained in regard to education," said Mr. Bacon. "The uneducated man and the uneducated man were helpless. It was found that the boys out of high school learned with an ease and rapidity that were amazing. Europeans were astounded at the speed and versatility of the American soldier."

Thirty years from now the average man in this country will be a high school graduate and college man will lead the way. Education has always been the great lever of power that lights human progress.

"A high school diploma is the greatest safeguard against the penitentiary. Out of 10,000 prisoners in Illinois only 175 are high school graduates."

"It is not possible to spend too much on education. But the graduate must remember that which he receives his education he is at the same time placed under an obligation for the coming generation."

"The importance of highly trained teachers can not be overestimated. Fully defined aims in education are the improvement of schools. How thorough is the graduate's education? Is a question often asked. In the past the teacher gave the direction, discipline and respect him to be able to give them back as they were given. Now young people are thinking for themselves and what to choose that will make them better citizens. They are picking the things in education that will help them to fill their places in the world in the best way. It is becoming increasingly important to seek the truth in education. We all people feel that a child should come out of high school prepared to earn a living; but 75 out of every 100 failures are due to lack of judgment and not to poor writing and spelling."

"The influence of heredity, poor homes, and poor environment to establish contact with reality. Persistence brings success. Effort means training and increased will power; it means the refusal to fail."

In closing, the speaker turned to the graduates stating that he hoped they had enough learning to give reverence to the words with this sentence: "God gives skill but not without men's hands."

Musical numbers at the exercises included selections by the high school orchestra and vocal solo by Miss Blanche Frye.
