State Police Plan to Arrest All Motorists Crashing Stop Signs

Crashing stop signs is going to become a hazardous practice in more ways than one according to the state highway police department.

A letter received from the department by William Gallagher, highway policeman, states in part: "Due to the great number of complaints that have been made against violators of the state stop sign regulation, this office has been instructed to begin a rigid enforcement of this section of the law, and especially in the case of drivers coming onto state highways from side roads. All officers in the district are instructed to make arrests for these violations."

National Holidays

Contrary to the common impression, there are no legal national holidays in the United States—not even the Fourth of July.

The Spruce Grouse

The spruce grouse is smaller than the ruffed grouse and darker. The male is barred and spotted with black, white and gray.

An Atlas

A book of maps is called an atlas because when the earliest collection of maps appeared it bore on its title page the picture of Atlas, the Titan, bending under the weight of the earth upon his shoulders.

War Mail in Zinc Balls Recalls Siege of Paris

During the siege of Paris by the Germans in 1870 the post office administration hit upon the expedient, in addition to the balloon, of enclosing letters in small zinc globes, water tight and hermetically sealed and dropping them into the Seine.

Squirrels' Diet

It is a mistaken belief, although generally held, that squirrels subsist entirely on a diet of nuts. The animals also eat large insects and other natural foods.
