The Sable
The term sable belonged originally to the tree-climbing weaver for less numbers, northeastern Russia and Siberia. It is represented by similar animals known since ancient times as the marten. When English colonists came first to what is now New England they found it in the woods a marten so like the European marten that they naturally applied the same name. In fact, the planimartin is practically the same creature and the same name. Hudson Bay marten is properly borne by it. As to color this weasel is variable.

Sanitary Engineer Explains Delay in Local Sewer Plans
Sanitary Water Board With Approval Pending Supreme Court Decision

The sanitary engineer in charge of the Barrington sewerage system, Richard D. Vokac, explained the delay in the completion of the sewerage system. He stated that the delay was due to the fact that the sanitary board had not yet received the approval of the supreme court regarding the sewerage system. He also mentioned that the board had received the approval of the state supreme court regarding the sewerage system.

Both swimmers were generous in their performance and gracious about repeating dives upon requests from the audience. Richard D. Vokac, captain of the guards at the pool, stated that the delay was due to the fact that the sanitary board had not yet received the approval of the supreme court regarding the sewerage system.

Changing Shifts, Numerous Regulations Slow Up Progress
Constantly changing shifts of workmen in regard to working hours have impeded the progress at Barrington public school under the ERA to such an extent that the work which was scheduled August 1 may not be completed September 1, according to Superintendent E. S. Smith. Laboring since early in June but so far no one job has been completed. Foundations for a new 70 foot chimney to replace the old one were poured this week and building of the chimney was scheduled for the week-end.

That Yawn Was Too Wide; Result: Fractured Jaw!
Yawning, the act of "opening the mouth involuntarily through drowsiness, or fatigue" as Webster defines it, proved to be a dangerous indoor sport for Charles Hutchinson, rural mail carrier of Barrington. Hutchinson was engaged in a wide, relaxing yawn only to feel a terrific pain in his jaw. Examination by a local physician disclosed the possibility of a fracture so he was rushed to an Elgin hospital where x-ray pictures verified the doctor's diagnosis. Hutchinson is now on a liquid diet and will avoid the luxurious relaxation of a yawn after this, it was reported.

Spectators Fill New Grandstand to Watch Divers
Newly-built grandstands at each side of the low swimming pool were well-filled for the first performance of the season Friday evening. Estimates of the crowd varied from 500 to 750 but witnesses agreed on the enthusiasm of the spectators who cheered the fancy divers, urging them to repeat their performances and diving champion Clark, 18-year-old, diving expert of Miami, Fla., held the state until almost 8:45 p. m. Frank Vokac of the Fox River was delayed until that time. Mr. Vokac is a member of the Cary baseball nine and had agreed to appear in a game the same evening, thinking that the two engagements would not conflict. But the game lasted longer than usual and the crowd at the pool had almost decided the show was to be a one man affair when Mr. Vokac arrived.

Four Pinochles in One Hand a Record—What Do They Count?
Quadruplets have a way of causing plenty of excitement, but a quadruplet hand at pinochle seems even more unusual than quadruplet infants. At least H. Bates, veteran of pinochle, was so surprised when he received four Jacks of diamonds and four Queens of spades in a game at home, 207 N. Hager avenue, Wednesday evening that he has been busy ever since consulting local pinochle authorities trying to find out what such quadruplet honors are worth. He says singles count 40, doubles, 300, three in one hand, 900—but he has never heard of anyone getting four pinochles before.
