A FEW EARNEST SOULS

Whenever any public event or public improvement is carried forward to accomplishment, the burden of effort is usually carried by a few earnest souls who see that there is a job to be done and then go ahead and do it.

A small town that has a good city park, a good ball team, is well paved, has well kept lawns, puts on a good 4th of July celebration, has adequate lighting or has or does anything at all better than the average place, usually owes it to the initiative of a few who have ability and who will work.

One man's hobby is beautifying his home grounds. By the judicious use of trees and shrubs and painstaking care of them he sets an example to his neighbors and other homeowners which may have a marked effect on an entire community, even though few may have the time or patience to even approach the excellence he attains. That man may consider a good home baseball team a thing of minor importance or even useless foolishness.

Another man may look with admiration on the first man's beautiful lawn and hedge but as far as putting that much effort into having one himself he has never even thought of it. But he may take hold of the seemingly thankless job of managing a good ball team; he might even have the intestinal fortitude to try to be its umpire. Baseball is his hobby. He helps the community by doing his part to have a good team.

Another man may think baseball is the bunk and that a wonderful blue spruce tree in a pleasing setting is something to enjoy with only a fleeting glance as he drives by. But he possibly believes that good paved streets with plenty of bright lighting are a necessity for his home town, and he goes ahead and pushes through the improvement against opposition of the "do nothings" and the "pay nothings" with which every place is cursed.

With another it's a fine golf course, with another it's a better city hall or a better school system. Each man may have a different way of helping his community and help it in connection with some activity in which he takes a personal interest.

Give the boys a good hand, whatever activity they try to put across! They're trying to do something in a creditable manner even though their way of doing it may not be exactly your way of doing it. At least recognize the fact that they are putting honest effort into the job. It takes a lot of different kinds of live people to make a live town.—Star News, Medford, Wis.

POSTAL SAVINGS VS. BANK DEPOSITS

There are still many people who believe in the fallacy that in depositing their surplus cash in postal savings it will be safer than in a local bank. That may have been true at one time, but now, with nearly all banks operating under the Federal Deposit Insurance plan, postal savings as well as any other form of government banking, or investment are just as safe but not a bit safer than local bank deposits up to the amount specified.

In his annual address to the Minnesota Bankers' association, D. J. Fohquette of this city, president of the association, pointed to the advantages of local bank deposits in the following:

The depositing public is unquestionably confused in regard to our stand. As a result, they are not making proper use of our banks and are still making a large part of their deposits with the postal savings system.

Few of the millions who regularly deposit their funds with the postal savings system are aware that by doing so they are aiding and abetting a system which is sapping the life blood from their own communities. Many of these people would not patronize such a system if they knew that when they deposit with the postal savings system their funds become unavailable as a basis of credit in that community. I do not believe that the government is deliberately attempting to compete with our banks. I do not believe that they are seriously urging anyone to deposit with the postal savings rather than in a bank. I believe the fault lies more with us, as bankers. What are we doing to inform people that banks today offer a degree of safety comparable to the postal savings system with an interest rate slightly greater and the added advantage that money deposited in the bank is available for credit to local business as business justifies the extension of such credit.—Sentina, St. Cloud, Minn.

EDITORIAL SHORTS

Well, just for variety, we are still waiting for a wedding where they sing the ballad "I'll Be Faithful" instead of the good old stand-by "I Love You Truly" and "Oh Promise Me."

The only people we know of who are as foolish as those who ridicule new ideas because they are new are those who ridicule all old ideas because they are old.—Thief River Falls Times.

One feature in favor of the old style phonograph over the radio is that it doesn't take time out to tell us about tooth paste, auto tires and stomach medicine.

Incidentally there are signs that the administration is going international—at least it is abandoning the self-contained argument sufficiently to go out after a larger share of foreign trade than we have had. This is not to be a rapid transformation. It will take considerable time to get the trade negotiations to a point where volume can be increased. But progress is being made. Also there are signs of a stabilization program for international currencies. Judging by present day happenings, a stabilization of the dollar in relation to the pound and franc may be expected early in 1935.

January 3 next is the deadline for veterans wishing to obtain adjusted service certificates. Applications not filed by that date will not be considered. Such are the terms of the adjusted compensation act, reports veterans administrator Frank T. Hines. In case veterans have died without making application, their dependents entitled to such payments may obtain service certificates retroactively on or before January 3, 1935. Payments go to dependents in the following order of precedence: widow, children, mother, father, etc. If no one is living within six months prior to the date indicated without filing application, the time allowable for making application is extended to six months from the time of his death. The above rules do not apply to beneficiaries designated by veterans who have died or who die in the future. Claims of such beneficiaries may be filed at any time after the death of the veteran.

President Roosevelt apparently is satisfied that the nation is well on its way to recovery. This is disclosed in a letter which he wrote several days before he left for his annual Thanksgiving vacation at Warm Springs, and which was read before the United States House of Representatives in session in Chicago last week. "Our effort along the road of economic recovery have been productive of substantial results" wrote the president. He added that the coming congress undoubtedly would give further attention to proposals involving unemployment relief, public works, unemployment insurance, old-age pensions, and housing. The letter was written the day before the president said, addressing the conference on economic security: "I do not know whether this is the time for any federal legislation on old-age security." It bears out the explanation made by secretary of labor Perkins that the president has "checked the floor of his mind against old-age public works since he expects congress to consider them."

Alphonsus With Members Come
Prior to the outbreak of the World war no airplane in the world was so admired as the zeppelin. It was actually armed with machine guns, and had pilots and crew carried by pilots and observers. The Father zeppelin (A. L. Z. 120), was the first effective "ship" in the air. It was fitted with a slow machine gun firing straight ahead, and a speedbreaking gun by which the actions of the zeppelin and the machine gun were co-ordinated that the gun only fired when the propeller blade was not opposite the mouth of the gun.

The MAN from YONDER

Finally these jokes and compliments were smothered by other cries for silence.
"Hirsey a chance, now or never" a man shouted.
"Gents!" the man called Hirsey cried from his vantage point. "As chairman of the committee, I'm asking for help! This committee's worked hard. We got a long program of sports for today but this football game is going to flop unless we get more contented. All these fellows we come to town more to see this match than anything else on the card and what we've showed 'em is open to the public from 12 to 3 p. m. each week day and from 7 to 9 p. m. on Saturdays.

"I'll give you a dollar if you'll let me have the rights to this match." Hirsey said to the man on the left.
