COTTON PICKERS

The other day, a ponderous new machine, 10 feet high, lumbered through a southern cotton field. Although still imperfect, it picked in eight hours as much cotton as 75 or 80 men could have picked by hand. At once there arose the cry: "Here is another machine that will rob men of Jobs!"

The New York Times remarks that the immediate effect of the widespread use of this machine might be to take away
jobs from some. But it adds:

jobs from some. But it adds:

"To concentrate our attention solely on these possibilities would be to regard the perfection of the mechanical picker as a calamity. But this would be to overlook the immense benefits that mechanical improvement brings.

"No one would wish to cancel Eli Whitney's invention

"No one would wish to cancel Eli Whitney's invention of the cotion gin nearly a century and a half ago. No one regrets the invention of the wheat harvesting and threshing combine, which reduced labor on the operations involved, it has been estimated, about 84 per cent. We do not want to wipe out the whole Industrial Revolution, which has created a hundred jobs for one it has taken away.
"The mechanical picker would begin, it is true, by displacing labor, but it would also greatly reduce cost of production. As the praching will make possible cheener outline.

duction. As the machine will make possible cheaper cotton, so cheaper cotton, in turn, will either encourage the increased consumption of cotton goods, thus benefiting the cotton textille industry, or it will leave consumers with more purchastile industry, or it will leave consumers with more purchasing power for other goods.

"We must not forget that the lowest standard of living, the greatest wretchedness, the greatest single source of child labor in the United States, is among the tenant farmers and sharecroppers, mainly negroes, of the south.
Perhaps the greatest single reason for their low standard of living is that hand-picked cotton is uneconomic. Mechanized cotton fields would have fewer workers, but they would be wage laborers, much better off."

Lexicographic note with a British twist to it: In the Shorter Oxford dictionery, "to make whoopee" is defined as "to go on the razzle-dazzle."—The Rail.

In the Eskimo language, "I love you" is "Univigssaern-tuinalfinajuanjuarisiguejak." This explains why the arctic nights have been so long.—Pathfinder.

According to a recent news story, hail as large a nuts fell in Africa. Nothing like this ever happened in Africa until American newspapers stationed corre over there.—Grand Rapids Press.

London conference in 1933.

Peace parleys open between exponents of the provenment's electric power program and the chiefs of the utility companies affected from the Tennessee Valley archerty. If a formula is agreed upon, it is expected to be applied throughout the nation.

Beyond this point, discussion in future conferences hinges about these proposals as advanced.

1. Prinsary consideration must be widest and best service with profit limited to the degree necessary to attract new capital and progressive development.
