

John Case Speaks Before Pure Milk Meeting Tuesday

Association Markets Milk for 14,500 Members During 1936 Period

Over 22 million dollars worth of milk was marketed in 1936 by the 14,500 dairy farmers of the Pure Milk association. It was revealed Tuesday by John P. Case, president, in his annual report given before the 12th annual session held in the auditorium theatre, Chicago.

Praiseworthy was accorded Pure Milk association members for their co-handle 300,000 pounds of milk daily when completed.

Mr. Case also reported that the present plan of equalizing base is working out very satisfactorily, especially since the association is financing the purchase of base by the members over a period of several months to aid them in remedying their milk production situation if they desire to do so.

Open New House for Public Inspection

The first of a series of custom built houses has been thrown open for public inspection by R. L. Huszagh, local realty dealer, on Brinker road as part of the development of the Orchard Hills property owned by Kenneth G. Smith.

Situated on Brinker road just north of Otis road, the house rests on a nine acre plot. Ralph D. Huszagh and Frederick Hodgdon were architects.

Built of white washed brick and white clapboard, the structure is modeled on Connecticut Colonial design. The first floor plan shows a large living room extending across the building and joined to the dining room. A lavatory, kitchen and bedroom complete the layout. A two-car garage is attached.

The second floor has four master bedrooms with two baths with showers and a dressing room. The house has been completely insulated and the windows have interlocking weather strip. The latest type air-conditioned oil burner heating plant is installed.

The Orchard Hills development is part of the Hills and Dales subdivision from the estate of the late Spencer Otis Sr.

The interior of the house has not been furnished as yet. Mr. Huszagh reported, although all fixtures are in.

Transparent Metal
The National Bureau of Standards says that there is no transparent metal. Very thin gold leaf is translucent but not transparent. A film of silver can be deposited on glass that will be so thin that with a proper arrangement of lights objects can be seen through it. In this case the glass supports the silver, which could not exist in a self-supporting film of the required thickness.
